Under and by virtue of the powers and authority vested in the Tax Collector of Garrett County, Maryland, by Tax Property Article 14-808 through 14-870 of the Annotated Code of Maryland, 1994 Edition and amendments thereto, the undersigned will on:

Friday, May 6, 2005
at the hour of 10 a.m. D.S.T.

in the Courthouse Building in the Town of Oakland, Maryland, offer and sell at public auction to the highest bidder all the following described land, coal situate, lying and being in Garrett County, aforesaid, for nonpayment of State, County, Municipal and/or an other taxing agency taxes as hereinafter set forth:

Terms of Sale:

Cash, cashier's check or certified funds (no personal checks) on the day of sale of the full amount of taxes due on the property sold, together with interest, penalties and expenses of sale. Residue of purchase price shall remain on credit.

Purchasers will be issued a certificate of sale, which may be recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County. The holder of any certificate of sale, his heirs or assigns may, at any time after the expiration of six months from the date of sale, file a bill of complaint to foreclose all rights of redemption of the property to which such certificate relates. Unless a proceeding to foreclose the right of redemption is filed within two years of the date of the certificate of sale, the certificate shall be void, and all rights to the holder of the certificate shall cease and all money received by the Tax Collector on account of said sale shall be deemed forfeited. Upon foreclosure and payment of the balance of the purchase price and all taxes, interest, penalties and costs, which have accrued, in the meantime, the Tax Collector will execute a deed which will vest in the purchaser an absolute and indefeasible title in fee simple in the property, free and clear of all alienations and descents.

The right of redemption continues until foreclosed as above, upon payment of the whole amount of money received by the Tax Collector from the sale of the property, together with interest at 10 percent (10%) per annum from the date of sale to the date of redemption together with all taxes, interest and penalties accrued which have been paid by the holders of the certificate of sale and the total disbursements of the holder of the certificate of sale made in accordance with law. All costs as to examination of title, preparation of deed, court costs and other expenses accruing after the sale must be assumed by the purchaser.

ALL BIDDERS MUST REGISTER AT THE TAX OFFICE PRIOR TO THE SALE. ALL SALES ARE FINAL!

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• If you start your day with breakfast cereal, you're well aware that you're not alone — cereal is a staple of the morning meal. You may not realize, though, the long history it has in America. When North America was first colonized by Europeans, the natives introduced them to corn. Records from the era show that the settlers particularly enjoyed the grain in milk and topped with sugar.

• It's been estimated that more than 90 million pounds of marshmallows are sold every year.

• Next time you're in Hollywood, skip all that movie madness and make a trip to a different sort of point of interest: The Museum of Death. With exhibits ranging from artwork by serial killers to celebrity-pet deaths to execution devices, it will surely satisfy anyone's morbid curiosity.

• Igor Sikorsky is well-known as the inventor of the helicopter. What most people don't realize, however, is that he was 50 years old when he built it.

• It was noted Irish writer and wit Oscar Wilde who observed, "In this world there are two tragedies. One is not getting what one wants, and the other is getting it."

• The U.S. Census Bureau's recent American Community Survey indicates that the average American spends more than 100 hours every year just commuting to work. In Baltimore and New York City, more than 5.5 percent of workers are what the study calls "extreme commuters": those whose commutes take more than 90 minutes each way.

• In the Elizabethan era in England, the typical school day started at 7 in the morning and lasted until 5 in the evening.

• The duck-billed platypus can see sideways, but not straight ahead.

• On May 1, 1931, at the White House in Washington, D.C., President Herbert Hoover pushes a button that turns on the lights of the Empire State Building, officially opening the New York City landmark. Crazy Cat

Q. I have a long-haired cat that is about 3 years old. He is declawed and neutered, and sleeps indoors. "Max" is a great cat, very cuddly, but we have a few problems with him. First, he never drinks out of a bowl — only from a running faucet! And, he loves to chew on the strangest things, like my wooden clothes-drying rack, newspapers and cords. The cord-chewing worries me the most — he actually chewed the cord of my iron into two pieces! What can we do with this crazy cat? — A reader in South Dakota

A. Cord-chewing can be very worrisome — there are numerous incidents every year where pets are electrocuted after chewing on power cords. These often involve kittens or puppies, but adult pets can be just as much at risk.

First, control Max's access to cords of any kind by hiding them or taping them along the baseboards. Next, develop a kitty training program to get Max's mind off chewing: Each time he starts gnawing on the newspaper or wood, startle him by clapping your hands, or develop a unique "growl-hiss" sound (kind of like "nyarr-ssss!") that you only make when he's doing one of those two things. Then divert his attention to an approved item, like a catnip toy or a string. This will reduce the amount of chewing he does — although you should still hide the cords.

The faucet-drinking thing isn't so crazy: cats instinctively seek the freshest water around, and if it's running out of a tap, that's the stuff. (My cat thinks the shower is the greatest thing ever and sometimes leaps in — only to leap out when he realizes he's soaked!) If you have a spare $50, purchase a cat drinking fountain at the pet store — it's battery operated and moves water from a storage tank to the bowl. At the very least, it'll save money on your water bill.

WWII Maps

Q. As a veteran combat pilot of the 386th Bomb Group flying the Martin B-26 Marauder out of England, France and Belgium, I acquired a collection of about 20 flight maps used on the 62 missions flown in 1944-45. These are British RAF with a 1-to-500,000 scale similar to today's U.S. sectional maps used in aerial navigation. I am interested in establishing a value for these unique items. — Earl, Schenectady, N.Y.

A. Your maps sound extremely interesting. I have several sources that might be helpful. Jacqueline Grace is a member of the Appraisers Association of America and specializes in both maps and charts. Write to her in care of Grace Galleries, 20 West Cundy's Point Road, Harpswell, ME 04079. Two clubs highly recommended are the Chicago Map Society, the oldest such group in North America, c/o The Newberry Library, 60 West Walton St., Chicago, IL 60610; and the California Map Society, 1109 Linda Glen Drive, Pasadena, CA 91105.

Since your maps are military, I suggest you contact Frank Pereny, an appraiser who specializes in militaria. His address is P.O. Box 176, Spring Grove, PA 17362. Two of the better publications for collectors are Military Trader, P.O. Box 1050, Dubuque, IA 52004; and Military Magazine, 2122 28th St., Sacramento, CA 95818.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

EARTH DAY

Q. At school, they're having a big celebration of the 35th anniversary of "Earth Day." How did all that get started?

The first "Earth Day" was on April 22, 1970, and it was a big deal back then to the handful of people who observed it, but it was also the beginning of a whole new way of understanding the planet and the need to take care of it.

It is sometimes said that people in Columbus' time thought the Earth was flat, but actually scientists since the ancient Greeks have known that the Earth is round, a sphere. But nobody paid any attention until much more recently. It always seemed as though there were more resources out there, more room to expand into, and so forth, without limits.

After World War II, there was tremendous economic expansion in America, with factories booming, products being shipped overseas, and plenty of natural resources to feed the appetite of commerce. People began to notice pollution in some places, but that always seemed to be "somewhere else." In London, England, in 1952, many people died one time from the thick smoky fog that was produced by everyone having a coal-burning stove to heat their homes. But eventually the wind started to blow and the problem went away. In Los Angeles in the mid-1950s, the word smog was coined to indicate the combination of smoke and fog that frequently blanketed the city.

By the mid-1960s, scientists worldwide were making measurements that showed real danger ahead, but still not much attention was being paid by most people. Like in Columbus' time, it seemed there were always more resources out there and always somewhere else to go. All you had to do was go away a little, moving out into suburbia. The standard catch-phrase was "the solution to pollution is dilution."

Then one very significant event took place, and suddenly the entire world woke up. The Apollo 8 flight circled around the moon, and on Christmas Day 1968, the astronauts took a photograph of the earth from a quarter-million miles away. It showed the earth as a shining blue jewel against the huge field of utter blackness that is empty space. That was a real Christmas gift to all mankind. For the first time, the reality that the Earth is finite sunk in.

That photograph spread around the world in a few days, and it made people realize: "There is no place else to go! We have to take care of planet earth, because it's the only home we have." Words like environmentalism appeared in the vocabulary for the first time. By the time of the first moon landing, on July 20, 1969, nobody at all had any illusions that you could escape pollution by colonizing the moon.

People began to take note of serious pollution in places where they had ignored it before. (The city of Cleveland attained notoriety when the Cuyahoga River caught fire.) During the same time when Americans were divided about the war in Vietnam, the entire country came together in agreement that something had to be done to stop pollution and correct the mistakes of the past. Congress heard from the citizens, and began drafting legislation. In those days, economists calculated that it would require America to take a hit of about 4% in the gross national product to prevent pollution, and the people said "Okay, we'll accept that. It's worth it!"

That was the setting in which the first "Earth Day" took place, on April 22, 1970. There were ceremonies here and there to mark the occasion, and some newspaper coverage, but you really had to be in a position to know about the event in order to participate. I was working for Bell Telephone Laboratories in those days, and about 100 of us gathered out on the lawn at lunchtime and listened to speeches. I vividly remember one essential part of the message: It is impossible to turn back from technology. One speaker's talk was titled "Don't Get a Horse." He had calculated that if everyone abandoned their car and went back to traveling by horseback, then between all the oats going in and something else coming out, there would be nothing to eat and no place to step for all the people on Earth.

Soon after Earth Day, Congress passed the Clean Air Act of 1970, and that was the first major step toward cleaning up the environment. Clean water was another big legislative issue, right behind that. In subsequent years, there were regulations and policies put into place, and things began to clean up, as the old cars gradually vanished from the roads. Various chemicals and pesticides were banished, and the water quality improved. Lake Erie, written off as a "dead sea" circa 1970, recovered its fish population and you could swim at its beaches once again. Following America's lead, the other developed countries of the world got serious about the environment as well.

Looking back over that history, I think that single photograph taken by Apollo 8 was the key to it all. That was the thing that changed minds and convinced everyone on Earth that we only have one planet, and have to take care of it.

FSU SENIOR COMPLETES INTERNSHIP – Brandon Butler of Grantsville recently completed an internship for Minority Leader George C. Edwards (District 1A) and the Maryland House of Delegates Republican Caucus in Annapolis. The internship, which lasted the entire 90 days of the General Assembly session, was completed as part of Butler's studies at Frostburg State University. "It's a lot different than what you see in textbooks," said Butler about the state's legislative process. The internship included answering constituent concerns, writing press releases, and tracking local issues. Brandon, son of Randy and Kim Butler, hopes to one day work in politics or law. He is currently completing his dual major in political science and law and society at FSU and will graduate in May. "It was a pleasure to have Brandon with us this session," Edwards said. "He really helped a lot, and I'm sure he'll have a bright future in whatever he decides to do." Pictured, left to right, are Edwards and Butler.

McKenzie Chosen To Attend HOBY Youth Seminar

Alyson M. McKenzie, Finzel, will be one of nearly 200 sophomore student leaders representing all Maryland counties at the 28th annual Hugh O'Brian Youth (HOBY) Maryland Leadership Seminar at Mount St. Mary's University in Emmitsburg, May 27-29. The three-day seminar brings together a select group of students (HOBY Ambassadors) to interact with distinguished leaders in the business, governmental, and educational arenas to discuss relevant present and future issues.

McKenzie is a sophomore at Northern High School, and is the daughter of Rodney and Tina McKenzie, Finzel.

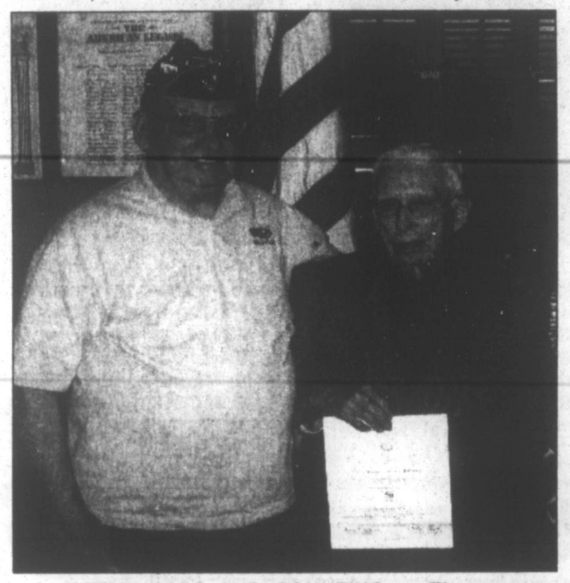
The annual event is organized solely by volunteers, many of whom are HOBY alumni who are committed to "giving back" by offering leadership training, one-on-one mentoring, and financial sponsorship.

Major sponsors include the Federation of Women's Clubs, Jaycees, Optimists, Kiwanis, and Lions clubs.

The goal is to provide a stimulating forum for HOBY Ambassadors to learn more about the American incentive system and the democratic process while gaining a broader understanding of their leadership potential and quest for self-development. Topics for discussion include education, volunteerism, the media, entrepreneurship, world hunger, goal-setting, and leadership & motivation.

Following the seminar, HOBY Ambassadors are challenged to return to their respective cities and participate in community service projects. They are to perform at least 100 hours of community service within the year.

Sophomores are nominated to the HOBY program by their high school principal or advisor. These students must be seen as leaders within their high school and in the community. Only one student per school is nominated.



FIFTY YEARS AND COUNTING — Three members of American Legion Post 214, Grantsville, were recently honored for 50 years of continuous membership in the American Legion. Pictured above left is Eugene Dobos, Post 214 commander, presenting a 50-year certificate to George Murphy. The other two honorees were Emmons E. Handwerk and Ellis P. Local Residents Among Graduates Of NRP Academy

Three Garrett County residents graduated recently from the training academy of the Maryland Natural Resources Police (NRP), the law enforcement arm of the state's Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

The new NRP officers from Garrett County are Timothy McMillan of Grantsville, Charles Thomas of McHenry, and Michael Cooper of Oakland.

These officers and their fellow graduates will be responsible for ensuring the public's safety as well as enforcing a broader variety of laws and regulations covering boating, wildlife, parks, fishing (both commercial and recreational), and resource protection. With an authorized strength of 285 officers and a dedicated staff of civilian and volunteer personnel, the NRP provides a variety of other services including homeland security, search and rescue, emergency medical services, education, information and communications services on a 24-hour basis. NRP and the Maryland State Police are the only police forces to have statewide jurisdiction.

"I want to thank the families of our officers and our newest graduates for their loyalty and support, for standing by us and believing in our principles and our mission," NRP superintendent Col. Mark S. Chaney said at the graduation ceremony. "You are what encourages us to go forth to face the challenges of our profession and what calls us home at the end of the day."

Law Enforcement Agencies Promote Crosswalk Safety

Garrett County's law enforcement agencies are promoting a message of "Look out for each other" as a key safety point for motorists and pedestrians to remember. Now in its fourth year, the safety education program is part of a statewide pedestrian safety enforcement effort.

Each year in Maryland an average of 109 pedestrians are killed and nearly 3,000 are injured, according to the State Highway Administration.

"Motorists need to remember a few of the rules they were taught in driver's education, and pedestrians need to be reminded to use crosswalks and always look left, right, and left again before crossing," said 1st Sgt. Scott Trice, acting commander of the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police. "We want to send a strong message that failing to stop for pedestrians in crosswalks will not be tolerated. Motorists need to understand that only a moment of inattention or distraction can seriously injure or take a person's life."

The Maryland SHA Highway Safety Office, in cooperation with the Garrett County Health Department Highway Safety Office, hosted a training workshop on Tuesday to provide Garrett County police officers with tools for increasing pedestrian safety and more effectively enforcing pedestrian safety laws.

The workshop, which was designed to help officers more effectively promote safety and enforce existing laws, concluded with a field enforcement operation on Garrett Highway near Deep Creek Lake.

"The Maryland Highway Safety Office recommends that drivers always stop for pedestrians – it's the law – and that pedestrians use crosswalks and look left, right, and left again before crossing," Health Department spokesperson Diane Lee said.

Been There

Perspectives on Being 80
by Joan B. Crawford

I have always maintained that age is an attitude and that we are only as old as we think. Maybe that is why I did not want to think about my approaching 80th birthday. I remember when I was 50, I thought 60 would be "old" and 70 was "out of sight." Yet each of those decades came and went, and now I must deal with that incomprehensible number "80." I first confronted this fact two years ago on a warm February day in southern California.

I was sitting on the patio watching the hummingbirds in the honeysuckle and savoring my last few weeks in the Coachella Valley sunshine before I returned to the snows of western Maryland. Around me bright petunias sent a spicy fragrance into the desert air, while the distant mountain peaks still held the snow caps of winter storms. On the table beside me lay John Grisham's latest book, The Summons I had purchased to read on the plane going back. Although I had not yet become a fan of Grisham's, I knew that my daughters and their husbands had read most of his novels. Perhaps my purchasing this book was an inadvertent reach to their generation.

Now that I had retired from teaching at a two year college and my granddaughters were graduating from college into their careers, I was missing the younger people who had been a major part of my life. I picked up the book and leafed through it, then settled on the first page. The opening sentence brought my own reality home like a well-aimed arrow.

"It came by mail, regular postage, the old-fashioned way, since the judge was almost 80 and distrusted modern devices." Until I read that, I had not thought of myself as "almost 80," and was determined to take the whole thing in stride without any remarkable fanfare. People turn 80 every day. I had even made a New Year's resolution to get with the computer age.

As time inevitably fast-forwarded toward my September birthday, I began to read AARP bulletins and other literature on the subject of aging. One of the articles I read set forth a name for my age group. Those of us who are older than "adults," but not yet assigned to the category of "elderly" are referred to as "senescent." The recognized advantage of reaching this plateau is that there are fewer things we have to do and more time to do things we want to do.

Things I want to do. The thought intrigued me. I had only to make the choices. First, there would be more time to write, time to read apart from literature anthologies, time to travel, time to volunteer in the community, time to join the Civic Club, time to learn to fly fish, time to walk country roads with my big black Lab. I would do just fine as a senescent.

When my daughters gave me a wonderful 80th birthday party, I read a doggerel poem I had written mocking the idea of growing older. Like Ulysses in Tennyson's poem, I was going to "sail beyond the sunset," full speed ahead. No rocking chair for me! I hear a friend of mine complain frequently about the aches and pains of being 80, and I tell her, "Hey, it beats the alternative."

Yet, there are the realities I can not deny. It has been almost 20 years since my late husband and I joined the Double Nickel club that gave us senior discounts at a local restaurant. Some of our friends and one of my sisters have already moved into retirement communities. At the May commencement of the college where I had taught, I was named the college's first professor emeritus. That did it! I now must accept the connotation that goes with the title: old!

There is other evidence, too. My wooden Cypress Gardens water ski–the "old lady's slalom" as my daughters call it-has been hung up for several years, along with my cross-country skis and my figure skates. Fifty years of climbing Pittsburgh's steps have taken their toll on my knees, but I can still walk and swim and paddle a canoe.

I have not joined the Red Hats, but I applaud their style. Forty years ago my own grandmother was a lavender person, and I have always associated that shade with white hair, a sweet face, and a porch swing. Today's Red Hats flaunt the tradition of pastels and primroses as they assert their right to be free of age-related proprieties. The maverick in me likes that.

My grandfather had a way of expressing his belief in tomorrow. When an old friend would ask how he was doing, he would chuckle, "Well, I'm still buying green tomatoes." So green tomatoes, along with three-year renewal subscriptions, have become symbols of endurance for me, signs that there will be a tomorrow and that I expect to be here, with my bifocals, to see it.

MARYLAND TOPS #379 members Bonnie Snyder, left, and Kathy Powell, right, together have lost more than 200 pounds. Pictured modeling a skirt that Snyder wore prior to her weight loss, they attribute their success to the support they received from the other group members. TOPS (Take Pounds Off Sensibly) welcomes all those who want to lose weight or who just want to maintain their current weight. Meetings are held Mondays at 6:30 p.m. at Mtn. Glade Adult Day Care, located along Pythian Avenue (the street just past the hospital along Memorial Drive). For more information, persons may call Tammy at 304-789-6402, Kathy at 301-616-1232, or Norma at 301-334-1455.

KIDS' GROUP HELPS TSUNAMI VICTIMS – The children's group of the Crellin Assembly of God Church donated $1,000 to aid victims of the Dec. 26 tsunamis in southern Asia. The children raised $700 by soliciting donations from family members and friends, and the Crellin Assembly of God pitched in an extra $300. The money was used for construction supplies for a home for children who lost their families in the disaster. The home was built with help from a team of 12 members of Faith Evangelical Church who traveled to the region. Crellin Assembly of God children's group director Stephanie Sisler, left, is shown presenting the donation to Linda Stephens, a member of the Faith Evangelical team.

LEARNING ABOUT THE CHESAPEAKE – Students from Northern High School's AP environmental science and biology classes and the Envirothon team recently took a three-day trip to the Chesapeake Bay. Through the Chesapeake Bay Foundation, they took a ferry to Fox Island, where they studied the environmental aspects of the Chesapeake Bay from crabbing and oystering to sediment pollution and its effects on the submerged aquatic vegetation (SAVs). The students learned about the impact Garrett County has on the bay's water quality through firsthand experience, plus the importance of the marsh, farming, and construction in the watershed. "We would really like to thank the Chesapeake Bay Trust and Gear-Up for providing some funding for the trip," said April Slagle, teacher. Above, in the front from the left, are Heidi Hare, Nicole Kovach, Jessy Beal, and Slagle. In the back are Erik Wood, Billy Woods, Mike Moyer, Dave Vagnetti, Margaret Mastej, Angel Giron, Mike McKewen, April Kyle, Tim Glotfelty, Zach Beitzel, Taylor Jones, Scott Bass, Darryl Glotfelty, Andrew Frazee, Sam Sherrard, and Elliot Glotfelty. Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

Spring is stepping slowly toward Bittinger – one step forward, one step backward. The hardest thing for me is the fluctuating temperature, with a few days of plus-70 degree weather and then plunging back to make the inside of my house feel cold just as quickly. I put on a sweater and then, bong, it is too hot.

The second spring agony for me is, it is the time to make a big beautiful garden. It was always important to me, even when I was heavy with child. I would run the roto-tiller myself, giving me severe numb hands. But my 4-H training told me it was my responsibility as a mother and homemaker to produce high-quality, healthy food for my family that was enough to last the whole year. Just as important was lots of beautiful garden flowers.

Most people believe it is not yet time to put a garden in, but peas, lettuce, spinach, broccoli, and carrots need the early planting to be fully grown before hot weather. It is true it would be foolish to put in tomatoes, peppers, or green beans just yet because the chance of a May frost is too good to risk the tender vegetables and flowers.

It is not too early to greet the pests of spring and summer season, with flies and, even worse, the wasps. It looks like a good year for wasps. They are designed so well that it's almost impossible to kill them without hazardous spray. Meredith used a pair of scissors to cut one in half, and it seemed to work pretty well. But it is not a useful solution for myself, as I can't reach them to use scissors on them, and flyswatters are not powerful enough for them.

I can't drive around Bittinger without breaking one of the Ten Commandments – Thou shalt not covet anything of your neighbors. I don't covet my neighbor's house, or new car, or husband, but I do covet some of my neighbor's big thick bed of daffodils. I have only two small clumps of them and not enough to pick for a house bouquet. I don't know if my few need a healthy dose of fertilizer.

The morning news is just so bad to me. I can't think of that news as happening somewhere else, with a fatal school bus wreck in the suburbs and an upright, responsible family man in Kansas being the RTK killer; also a tragic house fire in Pittsburgh and serious car crashes. They could be happening right here in Bittinger. I don't like the world my girls will have to face in their lives. However, it is not too much unlike the post World War II era when returning soldiers celebrated their safe return to their home, only to get drunk and drive recklessly, risking their lives and the other people's lives.

Drinking served as a solution to ease the pain of the girl he had loved, and who is now in love with another man.

I lost a good friend in the first week of April in a wreck when he was drinking, whether he was celebrating his 18th birthday or at the prospect of being drafted for the Viet Nam War. Either one, the result was the same. Every year when spring first bursts out I remember the first tragedy in my young life. Now our woods start blushing as the red maple start budding.

We were blessed by a visit by my aunt Dot Quaintance and her younger granddaughter, Hannah, from upstate New York. Hannah's big sister is spending her high school spring break in Florida. Kate will fly into New York City on Thursday, and she convinced her parents that while they are in the "Big Apple" to get up early on Friday to join the crowd at The Today Show, as since she was a small girl has loved Katie Couric. I look forward to seeing them Friday morning, even if the news following is unsettling.

Dot and Hannah had plenty of things to do during their brief visit. Dot helped me get together a small container garden on my front deck. Hannah joined her cousins, Emma Bass and my Meredith, on a fishing expedition along Bear Creek, with "Gram" Ruth DiPaolo. Later on Monday they all watched our twins, Darryl and Elliot, play and win a doubles tennis match against the team from Fort Hill. Then it was on to watch Matthew Bass play in a home baseball game at Northern. Dot enjoyed taking a walk around Foxtown Road and a visit with Miriam Brenneman. Dot stayed overnight with her sister-in-law Ruth DiPaolo during her visit.

Matthew had a pretty exciting weekend, as he and his mother visited several colleges. Robbie Glotfelty showed them around the University of Maryland, then it was on to have Landon Southerly show off St. Mary's in southern Maryland. I can't bear to think about our kids going off to college. I only have one more year with Cailtin. It is bad enough to miss them, but the horror of the cost is overwhelming.

There is not much I can do about the worst worries I am plagued with, but I had better boil some sugar water soon before my hummingbirds appear. Last winter I bought a Christmas present for me, which was a new hummingbird feeder. I believe I deserve the little extra pleasure it gives me.

I think with spring here, I should not think about bad things happening and must force myself to listen to the bird songs and look at the new life budding on our shrubs and trees. Even though I can't go back into my woods, I planted blackberry bushes by my front window. They are covered with new baby leaves, but are not yet blooming. They are pale green with just a hint of pink shading.

Blackberries remind me of my Glotfelty grandparents. My grandfather, Orval, loved blackberries more than any other good food. My grandmother, Emma, canned dozens of quarts of them, which I helped him pick during August. This was enough to last all winter. My small patch can only produce enough for maybe one pie. Maybe I can get someone to give me a ride on a four-wheeler to the big thick blackberry patch in the middle of our hemlock woods. I believe my grandfather's diet included some healthy wild food besides blackberries, as he also loved sassafras tea, and like many old timers, dandelion greens with a sugar/vinegar sauce. It is time for ramps soon, but I don't remember him ever eating them.

I was so lucky to grow up near both sets of wonderful grandparents, as they taught me so much. I was able to walk with them, help them with haymaking and canning, and love and care for them when their lives were almost over. A lot of them still lives inside of me. Their marriages were truly inspiring, and they loved each other even at their death beds.

FOURTH GRADERS LEARN JAPANESE CULTURE – Students in the fourth grade class of Donna Hinebaugh and Doris Cooper at Accident Elementary School recently learned about Japanese culture from Kaoru Mitomo, a professor at Frostburg State University. This visit was arranged by fourth grader Elizabeth Green's grandfather, Tom Carr, who is also a professor at FSU. Mitomo showed students how to use chopsticks with mini marshmallows, shared her silk kimono, sang a Japanese song, and gave the class a handmade origami ball. As part of this unit, students were taken to the Tokyo Steak House in LaVale for lunch. This presentation was one of many the fourth graders have had this year. Guests from Spain, the Philippines, and Japan have visited the class. In May, visitors from Africa will present a unit. These multicultural units have crossed all subject areas in the curriculum. Pictured above are students with Mitomo.

Thank You!

This is to thank Johnny and Kathy Michaels for helping me celebrate my 105th Birthday. They came for me at 8:30 that morning and took me out to a wonderful breakfast. Then to Wal-Mart for some lovely flowers. then Kathy picked me a bouquet of her lovely daffodils out of her yard. We went up on the mountain to see the windmills.

A reporter came from The Republican office, interviewed me and took pictures. Then we went for a ride in the amish buggy.

Thanks again to Johnny and Kathy for helping me celebrate my 105th Birthday, otherwise I would have spent the day alone.

"Moms In Middle" Campaign Set To Honor Caregivers

A "Moms in the Middle" campaign to raise awareness of women who care for an older adult while also raising children is currently under way through Tuesday, May 3. Sponsored by the Eldercare Locator, a nationwide public service of the U.S. Administration on Aging, and the National Alliance for Caregiving (NAC), the campaign is also designed to raise awareness about the community-based services that are available through state and area agencies on aging to help Moms in the Middle.

According to a recent study, more than 4 out of 10 Americans between the ages of 45 and 55 are caring for a child and an older adult. Forty-four percent of these "sandwich generation members have children under age 21 as well as living parents, in-laws, or both.

The Moms in the Middle campaign is offering families throughout the country an opportunity to publicly honor their moms by submitting a 300-400-word description highlighting the admirable work she does each day caring for an older adult and for her children, in addition to managing her other responsibilities. Descriptions must be submitted by May 3 to the Eldercare Locator by e-mail at mom-middle@n4a.org, fax at 202-872-0057, or by mail to Moms in the Middle, 1730 Rhode Island Avenue, NW, Suite 1200, Washington, D.C. 20036. One mom will be randomly selected from among the entries to receive a Mother's Day gift of $500 to use for a day of respite and relaxation.

A list of services available to assist "Moms in the Middle" with their daily caregiving activities, including adult day care, financial assistance, home health services, home modification, personal care, and respite care, can be obtained by contacting Eldercare Locator at 1-800-677-1116.

"Through this campaign, we want to educate these moms and their families about the local services that are available to help them juggle the many responsibilities they have, and let them know how important they are in supporting long-term living for their older loved one," said Josefina G. Carbonell, Assistant Secretary for Aging at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

Local 4-H Youth Recognized For Achievements

Garrett County 4-H recently held its annual recognition program and reception at Northern High School.

Over 300 youth were recognized for their project completion during the 2004 year. In addition, volunteers were honored for years of service, and several community awards were presented.

Buffet coordination for the evening was handled by Red House 4-H, and beverage donation coordinators were Bittinger and Oak Hill clubs. Door prizes were donated by all clubs and coordinated by North Star 4-H. Finzel and Avilton clubs led the pledges.

A welcome was given by Amanda Bowers, Garrett County Farm Queen.

Awards were presented by Garrett County Commissioner David Beard and 4-H Extension educator Ann Sherrard. Presentation assistants were Nichole Harvey, Kara Savage, Abby Sherrard, and Brittany Wilhelm.

Alumni pins were presented to Nancy Collier Savage, North Star; Mike Yoder, Oak Hill; and Sandy Harvey, Country Kids.

Certificates were also presented to recognize graduating 4-H members. They were: Eric Beitzel, Jodi Brenneman, Robert Glotfelty, and Claire Sussman, Bittinger; Beth Long, Friendsville; Rhonda Kinsinger, Grantsville; Jessie Woods, North Glade; Lacie Berkebile and Chris Hayhurst, Oak Hill; Eli Green, Red House; Michael Steyer, timothy, etc.) meadows, put on 2/3 of the nitrogen in the spring (late April) and 1/3 in the late summer. For a corn crop, use a starter fertilizer at planting, such as 150 pounds of a 10-20-10. When the corn is about 12 inches tall, apply the rest of the needed nitrogen. Corn will require about one pound of nitrogen for each bushel of grain yield or about 7 pounds for each ton of silage yield.

Remember, if you have applied manure and started fertilizer, the best way to know how much more nitrogen you need is to have a pre-side dress nitrogen test (PSNT) completed. The Extension office does PSNT testing on a first-come, first-served basis, so let us know early if you would like a PSNT done.

If you will consider these couple of management steps, you should save on your fertilizer bill and have the best yields possible.

If you have any questions or would like assistance, call the Extension office at 301-334-6960.

Treatment for Too Little or Too Much Thyroid Hormone

Hormones from the thyroid gland affect virtually every organ system of the body. In children, thyroid hormone is critical for normal growth and development. In adults, the primary role of the thyroid is to maintain normal metabolism. In most instances, substantial reservoirs of thyroid hormone in the thyroid gland and blood provide consistent availability. However, hypothyroidism (low thyroid) occurs when the reservoirs drop to very low levels. Common symptoms of hyperthyroidism include weight gain, cold intolerance, dry skin, and depression. The goal of therapy is to fine-tune oral dosing and restore normal levels of thyroid hormone. Many types of oral tablets exist.

Hyperthyroidism, when the body is exposed to too much thyroid hormone, can be caused by a number of things. Recognizable symptoms include an enlarged thyroid gland, extreme fat loss or abnormal distribution, and exophthalmos (protruding eyes). Treatment of hyperthyroidism includes surgery, radioactive iodine or antithyroid medications. Talk to your pharmacist if you have questions about any of these thyroid medications.

USDA ANNOUNCES CROP INSURANCE DEADLINE FOR W.VA. NURSERIES

West Virginia nursery producers should be aware that the final date for a new applicant to apply for insurance on nursery for 2005 is May 31, 2005, according to the Raleigh Regional Office, USDA Risk Management Agency. New applications for crop year 2005 may be accepted until May 31, with coverage beginning 30 days after receipt of a signed application.

The premium for a new policy is pro-rated according to the month coverage begins. Applications accepted after May 31 will not begin coverage until October 1, 2005. For existing policies, coverage automatically attached on October 1, 2004. The insurance year runs from October 1 through September 30.

Crop insurance provides protection for field-grown and containerized nursery plants against losses from adverse weather conditions, fire, failure of irrigation water supply, wildlife, and delay in marketability of plants resulting in reduced plant value. Insurance premium subsidies have been significantly increased in recent years, particularly at the higher levels of coverage.

Producers are strongly urged to contact a local crop insurance agent as soon as possible for a premium quote and additional details. For a list of crop insurance agents in one's local area, persons should contact the local USDA Farm Service Agency or log on to the following Risk Management Agency web site: http://www3.rma.usda.gov/tools/agents/.

FSA REMINDS PRODUCERS TO SIGN UP FOR CROP DISASTER ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

Eric M. McCartney, executive director of USDA's Farm Service Agency in Preston County, has issued a reminder that eligible producers should complete sign-up for the Crop Disaster Program (CDP) at the FSA office as soon as possible. The CDP authorizes crop loss assistance for producers who suffered 2003 or 2004 and certain 2005 crop losses from damaging weather.

"Sign-up began last month, and FSA wants to make sure that all eligible producers receive benefits as quickly as possible," McCartney said. "Drought, floods, and hurricanes are unpredictable weather events that put farmers and ranchers at risk in producing a dependable and affordable national food supply."

Eligibility for CDP is similar to that of the 2001-2002 crop disaster program. Producers suffering a greater than 35-percent production loss and/or more than a 20-percent quality loss are eligible. The payment rate for CDP has been increased to 65 percent of the established commodity price for insured crops and noninsured crops, and 60 percent of the price for uninsured commodities. Previous disaster assistance provided payments of 50 percent of the established commodity price for insured and non-insurable crops and 45 percent for uninsured crops.

Producers may apply for CDP for any crops that are eligible for coverage under the Federal Crop Insurance or the Noninsured Assistance Program. This program results from Congressional passage last October of the Military Construction Appropriations and Emergency Hurricane Supplemental Appropriations Act 2005 (the Act).

The payment limit is $80,000 per person for all 2003/2004/2005 CDP payments. The closing date for this sign-up will be announced later.

As part of the CDP implementation process, FSA has prepared a fact sheet that contains information about the disaster assistance programs. For more information on these issues, persons should visit FSA's web site at http://www.fsa.usda.gov/. Producers may also visit the FSA office located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza, or telephone 304-329-1923 to inquire about or apply for CDP.

35th Annual Earth Day Set For Tomorrow

The Solid Waste & Recycling Division, General Services Department, reminds Garrett County residents, businesses, and students that Earth Day is tomorrow, Friday, April 22.

"[In 1970] Americans came together for the very first Earth Day...they came together...because of one American – Gaylord Nelson. As the father of Earth Day...he inspired us to remember that the stewardship of our natural resources is the stewardship of the 'American Dream,'" former President Bill Clinton said during a 1995 speech.

"Recycling is an important Earth Day activity. Recycling reduces trash and litter found along our streets and highways," said Kimberly Madigan, recycling coordinator for Solid Waste & Recycling. "Natural resources are saved along with landfill space when you chose recycling over the popular disposable lifestyle."

She invites residents to celebrate the 35th year of Earth Day by participating in at least one activity that helps to protect the beautiful natural resources in Garrett County.

Persons with questions regarding Earth Day or any recycling or solid waste issues may contact her office at 301-387-0322.

Madigan also offers the following Earth Day tip: "Clean the condenser coil on your air-conditioning unit at least once a year. It improves performance and cuts down on energy consumption."

THANK YOU

We would like to thank all those who offered support and concern during the illness of our son Kenny Braithwaite. The overwhelming thoughtfulness to our family from so many caring people during the last several months is greatly appreciated. The words thank you will never cover how we feel to all who helped and assisted our family.

A special thanks goes to the Mt. Storm Ambulance, Keyser EMS, and Valley Medical Transport. Also to the doctors, nurses, and the staff at Potomac Valley Hospital, Pittsburgh Children's Hospital, University of Pittsburgh Presby Hospital, the Pittsburgh Rehabilitation Center, the Garrett Rehab Services, and MeadWestvaco Clinic, an earnest thanks for all the excellent care on behalf of Kenny. We would like to thank all those who visited Kenny and brought gifts to him while he was in the Pittsburgh Hospitals. We are so fortunate to have such considerate family members, neighbors, & friends. We will never be able to thank them enough.

Another heartfelt thanks goes to our co-workers at MeadWestvaco, Mineral County Sheriff's Department, and the Mineral County Courthouse for all the concern and gifts of love given to us. The support given to us from the staff and faculty at Union Education Complex and the UEC Boosters Club was outstanding and means so much to us. We indeed want to thank the Elk District Volunteer Fire Company for planning and holding the benefit dinner. To those who assisted with the dinner, namely the Nethken Hill Methodist Church Ladies, New Creek Fire Department, those who donated toward the dinner, namely the Nethken Hill Methodist Church Ladies, New Creek Fire Department, those who donated toward the dinner and most of all those who attended the benefit, we thank you. We would like to sincerely thank all of the local churches for their gifts of love, prayers and support. We know that Kenny had many prayers said on his behalf. To all the churches who placed his name on their prayer chains, we are truly thankful.

We may never know of everyone who prayed for, contributed to, or helped our family in any way during this time, but we will be forever thankful.

Real Estate Facts by...

DON'T GET CAUGHT IN THIS WEB!

When you think of "online shopping," you envision browsing through pages of results for clothing, music cds and movie dvds, collectibles, sporting merchandise, almost anything you can imagine. But what about your home? Are you going to add a three-bedroom, two-and-a-half bath with fenced yard to your "shopping cart" and proceed to checkout with your credit card information?

It may seem like a ridiculous scenario, but the reason people look for (and sell) things online is the convenience. It may seem harmless enough to browse the offerings on "For Sale By Owner" websites, but be wary of the information presented there. Like elsewhere on the web, misinformation abounds.

If you want to begin your search from the comfort of home while relaxing in your pajamas, start by looking at what licensed real estate agencies are offering. You can find "virtual tours" and links to neighborhood information that are backed up by the agency offering the listings. As it stands right now, you don't get much protection from do-it-yourself listing sites.

Be aware that these "For Sale By Owner" websites are not yet regulated and not held to the same high standards that you expect from a real estate professional. The Internet might be a great place to start your research, but ultimately meet with a professional face-to-face to guarantee both your legal rights and home buying satisfaction.

If you'd like to buy a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call today!

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

U.S. Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Jamie M. Spano recently departed on a routine scheduled deployment to the Mediterranean Sea while assigned to the guided-missile destroyer USS Gonzalez, homeported in Norfork, Va.

Her ship deployed along with the USS Ponce and USS Ashland as part of the USS Kearsarge Expeditionary Strike Group in support of the "global war on terrorism" and Operation Enduring/Iraqi Freedom.

The primary mission of Spano's ship is to provide multi-mission offensive and defensive capabilities. The USS Gonzalez is capable of operating independently or as part of a strike group. Its flexibility provides presence with a purpose and strike power to support joint and allied forces afloat and ashore, according to the Department of the Navy.

The petty officer is a 1998 graduate of Allegany High School and joined the Navy in August 1999.

She is the daughter of Melody I. Calderon of Oakland and Nicholas A. Spano of Cumberland.

Edwards, Hafer Bills Signed By Governor Ehrlich

Five local bills sponsored by Del. George Edwards and Senator John Hafer were signed into law on Tuesday by Gov. Robert Ehrlich. The new legislation is as follows:

•SB 378 will allow the Garrett County commissioners to adopt, amend, and enforce a "reasonable" charge for disconnecting and reconnecting water service to Sanitary District customers, effective Oct. 1.

•SB 404 will remove Garrett from the list of counties in which one-half of fines imposed for alcoholic beverage violations are required to go toward the Circuit Court law library. The new legislation goes into effect Oct. 1.

•HB 466/SB 376 allows the county to increase the gross maximum weight limit for vehicles traveling on Table Rock and Wilson Run roads. The limit cannot exceed 87,000 pounds. It is effective Oct. 1.

•HB 754/SB 655 outlines regulations for gaming events, paper gaming, and bingo in Garrett County. It also allows the commissioners to impose certain taxes, which will be used to establish a Special Gaming Fund to benefit fire and rescue services. It becomes effective on June 1.

•HB 1407/SB 922 allows wine festival sales to be held on Sunday in the two county districts in which alcohol sales are allowed on that day. The bill becomes effective on June 1.

The governor's next scheduled bill signing day is May 10.

RESCUE UNDER WAY AS TROOPER 5 LANDS – The three occupants in this van were transported to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, one by way of medevac helicopter, after the vehicle was hit by a tractor-trailer at the intersection of Rt. 219 and Rt. 50 Monday morning. The driver of the truck was not injured. The accident remains under investigation. According to police, the operator of the van failed to stop at the flashing red light and was struck by the truck. See story for more details. Photo by John McEwen.

Three Injured After Van Is Struck By Rig

Two people were transported via ambulance and one by helicopter after their Chevy van was struck by a 1998 Freightliner tractor trailer at the intersection of Rt. 219 and Rt. 50 at approximately 10 a.m. Monday, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Initial investigation revealed that the van operated by Rhonda Lee Twigg, 41, Frostburg, failed to stop at the flashing red light and was struck by the tractor trailer, operated by James Byron Hartzler, 58, Burlington, W.Va.

Twigg and her passenger, Ariky Arikina, 24, Cumberland, were transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, and were then transported to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland. Another passenger, Terri Clair, 40, Cumberland, was transported to Memorial Hospital by Maryland State Police Trooper 5 helicopter.

Hartzler was not injured. Oakland and Gorman firefighters also responded to the scene.

The accident is still under investigation by the Sheriff's Office.

Man Sought For Making Alleged Threats With Rifle

The Maryland State Police at McHenry are searching for a Deer Park man who allegedly pointed a rifle at his girlfriend and threatened to kill her at their Swanton residence Sunday. Several charges are pending against the suspect.

Brian Keith DeBerry Jr., 21, who has an address of Peach Tree Lane in Deer Park, is wanted on charges of first and second-degree assault, and assault with a deadly weapon, in connection with the 2 a.m. incident that occurred at a home at 815 Sweitzertown Rd. An argument there reportedly escalated into a physical confrontation, and DeBerry allegedly made the verbal threats as he was pointing a .22 caliber rifle at the victim's head.

The woman escaped, and returned to the home at approximately 1 p.m. with her father. DeBerry allegedly argued with the father, the police were called, and DeBerry fled the home and ran into the woods. Police said they consider DeBerry, to still be armed.

Man Exonerated Of Domestic-Related Charges

A Terra Alta, W.Va., man was deemed not guilty of two separate domestic-related accusations during a recent Garrett County District Court proceeding.

David Wayne Welch, 44, had been arrested by Garrett County sheriff's deputies in October on a second-degree assault charge, and again in February on a harassment charge. The arrests stemmed from accusations leveled by his estranged wife, Alice Leona Welch, who claimed that he had beaten her and made harassing phone calls to her home. After the alleged physical altercation, the woman displayed bruises and hair that had been pulled from her head to the deputies who responded to the scene.

In other district court news, two local men received "not guilty" verdicts after their respective spouses refused to enter testimony against them in court. Both defendants had been charged with second-degree assault, and both suspected victims had required emergency medical

Former Counselor Handed Five Years For Sex Offenses

Former Garrett County Health Department counselor Dale Clifton Vance, 45, currently of Petersburg, W.Va., was sentenced to five years in jail by Garrett County District Court Judge Ralph Burnett this week. Vance had pleaded guilty to a variety of charges, including several sex offenses, during his December trial.

The net length of the sentences for the various charges will leave Vance imprisoned for five years, with an additional suspended sentence of four years and 90 days.

The breakdown of charges and respective sentences is as follows: for a charge of harassment, a sentence of 90 days was imposed, with all of that suspended; for a charge of fourth degree sexual offense, a sentence of one year was imposed, to be served consecutively; for a charge of second-degree assault, a sentence of two years was imposed, with one year suspended and the remaining one year to be served consecutively; and for a charge of perverted sexual practice,

GC Health Dept. Proposes Increase In Permit Fees

Garrett County Health Department officials asked the county commissioners this week to increase permit fees for food services and water wells. Health Officer Rodney Glotfelty and Environmental Health director Steve Sherrard indicated that the increases were needed to offset cuts in grant and state funding to noncore programs.

Health Department officials want to double the current well fee of $80 and most of the food service fees, which are currently $150 for high priority, $125 for moderate priority, and $15 for a temporary permit. A low-priority permit would remain at $100. Fees are charged to help cover the cost of inspections.

The officials estimate that they will issue a total of 265 food service permits and 325 new well permits. As a result, they anticipate that the new fees would generate an additional $55,675 for the department. The new revenue could then be used for noncore programs and to help maintain Environmental Health's current level of service.

The Health Department submitted its FY 2006 core budget request to the county and state in February. The department receives the vast majority of its funding from the state and through grants.

"We tried to keep our budget requests low this time," Glotfelty said. The new budget for core services, however, is still about $7,000 to $8,000 over last year's because of increases in fuel and snow removal costs.

In addition to Environmental Health, the department's core divisions are Adult Evaluation and Review, Community and Family Health, Home Health, Mental Health, Personal Health, and Substance Abuse.

Glotfelty expects a total decrease of between $40,000 to $50,000 to local noncore programs this year. The cuts include $8,000 to the breast/cervical cancer program, $13,000 to $14,000 to family planning, $13,000 to AIDS/HIV services, and $12,300 to the Maryland Children's Health Insurance Program.

"We have a significant number of AIDS patients in the county," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg. He added that the AIDS/HIV program cuts would "wipe it out." Glotfelty agreed. There would be no money for testing, counseling, or administration.

"The bottom line is, we're not getting a lot of

CAN YOU FIND THE GARRETT COUNTIAN in this picture? There was a time in the life of Charles ("Chick") Handsaker, a resident at Deep Creek Lake, when he was making the rounds as a singer, back in the days of radio and early television. Chick has led an interesting life, singing with people like Ella Fitzgerald and Rosemary Clooney, and also serving as a guard on the residential grounds of a former United States president. He is pictured here, the one standing, as a member of the Blendtones, with co-singers Jim Rafferty and Billy Foster. The group sang extensively in the early 1940s, performing the popular western ballads of the day. A feature story about Chick's life can be found in this section of today's paper. Grantsville Receives Grant For Restoration Of Blighted Property

The Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development (DBED) has awarded the Town of Grantsville a $260,000 Community Development Block Grant for restoration of a blighted property, formerly known as the Summers Auto building. The conditional grant will be used to assist with the costs of acquisition, demolition, disposal, and site restoration of the property.

"The revitalization of an attractive and thriving downtown business district is essential to the health of any community," said Governor Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. "The demolition and renewal of this property is not only an important part of Grantville's and the state's overall economic strategy, but also an inducement toward tourism and the creation of a scenic city center. It is part of our commitment to ensure that all regions of the state share in the prosperity of a One Maryland economy."

The building is located in the heart of the town's business district, and is in an advanced stage of deterioration. Efforts to sell the property have been hampered by high demolition and disposal costs because of structural decay and the presence of asbestos. The town has determined through engineering studies that it is not economically feasible to rehabilitate the building. After site restoration, the town will market the building lot to interested parties for the development of retail and commercial uses.

Constructed in 1899, the Summers Auto building is a 13,000-square-foot concrete and masonry building sitting on a .39-acre lot. Because the building was in such disrepair and a safety hazard for both pedestrian and vehicular traffic, the town has already removed a portion of the rear section. In addition to presenting health and safety hazards, the building also conflicts with the historic theme that the town is attempting to preserve.

"This project will fit well within the goals and strategies of the town's recently completed strategic plan," said Fred Holliday, county commissioner. "The funding received will allow the town to acquire and demolish the building. The result will be a valuable and marketable piece of property that will offer great potential and become an asset to the town."

Grantsville is known for its plentiful historic and scenic resources, as well as its productive farmland. The town's location along U.S. Route 40 provides opportu-

"OVER THE RAINBOW" is the title of the spring concert of the Garrett Community Concert Band, which will be presented this Saturday, April 30, at the Wisp in McHenry. The program will feature music of Harold Arlen, whose most famous song was "Over the Rainbow," made famous by Judy Garland in her role as Dorothy in The Wizard of Oz. A variety of other styles of music will also be presented. Vocal soloist for the program is Caroline Stahl, a Garrett College student and a member of the band. (See story on the arts pages in this section.) Dr. Jerry McGee, above right, is the director/conductor of the band. Saturday's concert will be preceded by an optional buffet dinner, available from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., and a dessert and coffee buffet after 7:30 p.m. The concert will begin at 8 p.m. Tickets for the concert are $7 for adults, $2 for students, and free for children under 6. More information and dinner reservations are available at 301-387-3127.

A CELEBRATION was held Friday following the announcement that a $260,000 state grant was awarded to the town of Grantsville for the acquisition, demolition, and site restoration of the former Summers Auto property. April Snow Blamed For Vehicle Mishap

A wet snowcovered roadway was to blame for a single-vehicle mishap on Rt. 50 just east of Rt. 219 Sunday afternoon, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Ray Arthur Teets, 67, Oakland, lost control of his 1999 Dodge Caravan on the wet snow and overturned, police said. He was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Gorman firefighters also responded to the scene.

According to superintendent Dr. Wendell Teets, Vent has been a "wonderful asset" to the system. Pictured above, from the left, are Teets, Vent, and board member Charlotte Sebold. See story. Vent Honored By Md. State Dept. Of Educ.

JoAnn Vent, who recently retired as the career and technology education supervisor for Garrett County public schools, was recognized by the state board of education with the Distinguished Service (Secondary) Award.

Speakers and award presenters included the state superintendent, Nancy Grasmick; president of the Maryland State Board of Education, Dr. Edward Root; and assistant state superintendent for Career Technology and Adult Learning, Katharine Oliver. Marina Harrison, communications and youth development specialist with MSDE and the current Miss Maryland USA, served as the master of ceremonies for the evening.

Maryland's Career and Technology Education Awards of Excellence program is sponsored by MSDE. It is an annual event recognizing outstanding programs, student organizations, change agents, business partnerships, distinguished service, and national award winners.

"These outstanding award recipients represent a commitment to high standards at every level – from academic and technical achievement to business and community involvement," said Grasmick. "They are all deserving of recognition and are a testimony to Maryland's nationally recognized system of career and technology education."

According to Dr. Wendell Teets, school superintendent, Vent is very deserving of this award.

"JoAnn has done outstanding work in our career and technology education," he said. "She has been a wonderful asset and is very deserving of this award."

Teets, along with several board members and school personnel, attended the awards ceremony with Vent.

Accident Man Arrested For Alleged Burglary

An Accident man was arrested after police responded to a residence on Accident Bittinger Road for a burglary and theft complaint, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Ronald Wayne Reckner II, 18, was charged with first-degree burglary and felony theft. According to the Garrett Bureau of Investigation, Reckner allegedly removed more than $1,000 in collectible coins and currency from the home while the resident was away.

W.Va. Women Charged With Gasoline Theft

Two West Virginia women were arrested by Maryland State Police troopers Sunday morning after they allegedly stole a tankful of gasoline from a Friendsville gas station.

Hope Ann Leonard, 28, and Simonee Nicole Pennix, 20, both of Charles Town, were apprehended near Grantsville after reportedly fleeing from the Funny Farm Citgo. The 10:54 a.m. arrest took place along eastbound Interstate 68 at Route 495.

Both women were charged with misdemeanor theft, and were released when they posted a $1,000 bond each set by a District Court commissioner.

Tri-County Council Awarded Business Loan Funding

The Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development has awarded the Tri-County Council for Western Maryland (TCC) a $100,000 grant from the Maryland Economic Adjustment Fund to be used in conjunction with each of its four Revolving Loan Funds (RLF).

The purpose of the funds is to provide gap financing for projects for local businesses throughout Garrett, Washington, and Allegany counties, in instances where businesses are unable to arrange full financing through conventional lenders. The funds are targeted toward the development of new businesses and jobs, as well as to provide assistance in the retention of jobs and expansion of existing businesses.

For its RLF program, TCC has targeted specific industries in each western Maryland county, with recreation, tourism, and natural resource-related industries singled out in Garrett County. In addition, TCC has targeted the following industries in general across all three counties – industrial and small manufacturing; national growth industries; start-up businesses; firms locating or located in publicly assisted industrial parks and sites; and firms with more than 50 percent of their sales outside the TCC development area.

TCC requires that clients arrange private financing which constitutes at least 50 percent of project costs. TCC also targets a minimum of one job created or retained for each $10,000 in RLF funding. RLF loans may range in size from $10,000 to $150,000. Overall, the fund has helped to create or retain over 3,800 jobs in the region. For fiscal year 2004, the TCC RLF Committee committed $607,133 to four businesses, including three start-ups, which were responsible for more than 88 jobs.

"Small business development is vital to the well-being of every region in the state," said Governor Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. "Giving western Maryland the capability to provide greater assistance to new and existing businesses is an important part of the area's and the state's economic vision. We are dedicated to making sure that every community in the state prospers and grows."

Persons interested in obtaining additional information about Tri-County Council's financing programs can contact Krisindra Heavener at 301-777-2158 or visit www@tccwmd.org.

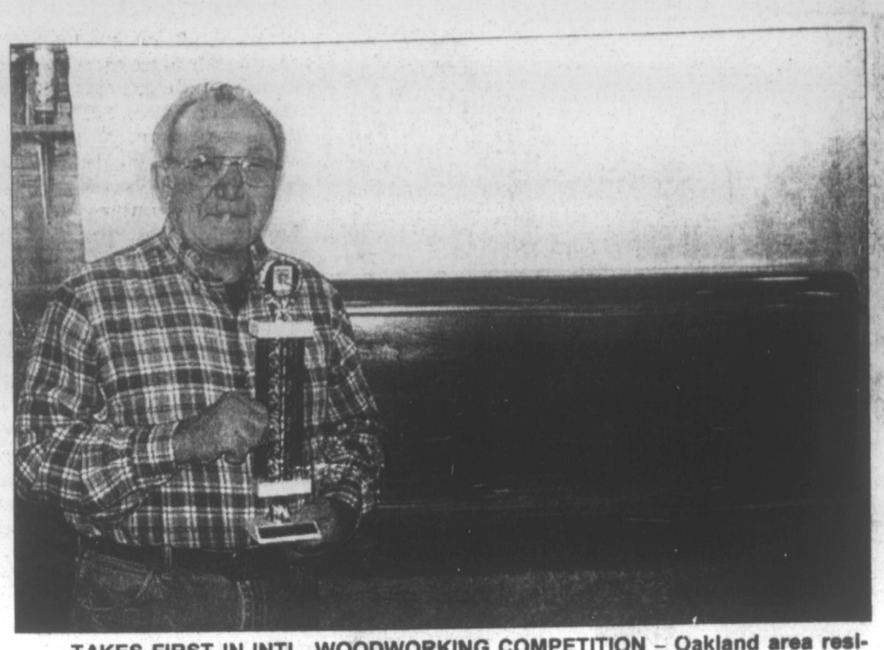
Man Sentenced In Circuit Court For DUI Charge

A Charles Town, W.Va., man pleaded guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court recently to driving under the influence of alcohol. Related charges against Earl Grant Edmondson, 60, were not prosecuted, based upon his plea.

Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Edmondson to 30 days in the Garrett County Jail, suspending all but five days of that sentence and placing him on supervised probation for three months. A $200 fine was also imposed.

Edmondson was charged by Maryland State Police last March after the van he was driving was stopped along I-68 for a speeding violation. According to the police report, the trooper detected a strong odor of alcohol on Edmondson during the stop and conducted field sobriety tests.

License and registration checks revealed that Edmondson's driving privilege was revoked in West Virginia and that he was operating an unregistered, uninsured vehicle. His van also displayed plates that had been issued to another vehicle.



TAKES FIRST IN INTL. WOODWORKING COMPETITION – Oakland area resident John Michaels is shown with his cedar chest, which took first place at the senior woodworking division of the recent 2005 Smoky Mountain Jubilee in Gatlinburg, Tenn. The international competition was sponsored by the Church Of God. A member of the Loch Lynn Church of God, Michaels had earned a berth in the international event by placing first in the Church of God DelMarVa Region competition back in November. This cedar chest, which began as rough lumber, represents three weeks of work in Michaels' Pleasant Valley workshop. "I give God all the praise and the Glory for giving me the talent to do woodworking," Michaels said.

Trucker Injured When Rig Rolls On Interstate

A tractor-trailer driver was injured when his rig overturned on Interstate 68 near Friendsville early Tuesday morning, according to the Maryland State Police.

Willie Lacy, 49, of Louisville, Ky., lost control of the tractor-trailer as he was traveling eastbound near Blooming Rose Road shortly after 4 a.m. The rig overturned in the slow lane, spilling its load of tires.

The Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad transported Lacy to Cumberland Memorial Hospital. The Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the accident scene.

Charges are pending, according to the investigating trooper.

THE EARLY BIRD OFTEN CATCHES THE SNOW and not the worm in Garrett County. These pink flamingos were placed in front of Get-N-Go in Oakland last week as part of the United Way of Garrett County's 2nd annual Flamingo Flocking fundraiser. Any hope of the bright pink birds being harbingers of spring was quickly dashed, however, as several inches of heavy wet snow covered the flamingos over the weekend. Store employee Mary George is pictured brushing off their backs. Perhaps the warm-weather fowl were placed outside too early, or perhaps it was just another sign of the unpredictability of a Garrett County spring. The flamingo fundraiser continues through tomorrow, Friday, April 29. No snow is in the forecast. Planning Commission Continues Examination Of DCL Growth Study

The Garrett County Planning Commission continued its ongoing review of the recommendations regarding Deep Creek Lake Watershed Economic Growth and Planning Study recently. Environmental Resource Management's (ERM) 16 major recommendations are available for review in the consultant's 40-page report, which can be viewed online at www.garrettcounty.org/pandz/dclstudy.htm. The commission's minutes may be viewed in their entirety on the web site of the Planning and Land Development office, which can be accessed through the main Garrett County government web page at www.garrettcounty.org.

RECOMMENDATIONS 4 & 5

4. Ensure that new residential construction is compatible in size and scale with nearby homes.

4.i. Through the master plan process, identify areas or communities where special regulation on size or bulk would apply. [Planning Office director] John Nelson explained that these special areas would have to be identified in the process of updating the master plan.

4.ii. Designate these areas on a map that would be adopted with the Master Plan or as overlay zoning districts on the Deep Creek Watershed Zoning Map.

4.iii. Regulate the size, bulk, and location of new construction in these designated areas. The study has the following sub-recommendations.

a. Height – Require a new house to be similar in height at the front and the sides to nearby houses.

b. Size – Establish a maximum structure square footage for house sizes based on the size of the lot.

c. Floor Area Ratio (FAR) – Set up requirements so that a new house could have only, for example, a 30 percent greater FAR than average of houses on either side.

d. Placement on the lot – Establish limits on variances that could be granted by the Board of Appeals for setbacks on non-conforming lots. The commission feels that this particular recommendation may have the most merit because large houses on small lots may cause many of the overcrowding problems at the lake.

4.iv. Placement on the lot – Limit the enlargement of the extension of existing nonconforming structures under Section 801 of the Zoning Ordinance. Some members were surprised to learn that there were no constraints on the size of an enlargement for existing nonconforming structures. The commission also supports this recommendation.

There was a misunderstanding by members of the commission regarding the use of a portion of an existing structure to bypass the need for a building permit. Nelson explained that the location of an existing structure may grandfather setbacks but would not negate the need for a building permit. There is no advantage in saving or using a portion of an existing foundation for new construction.

Generally, the commission is not supportive of recommendations listed in numbers 4.i., 4.ii., and 4.iii. The members feel most of these recommendations would be difficult to regulate and implement. The commission does unanimously agree there is a need for some type of limitation in the enlargement of existing, nonconforming structures, under Section 801 (4.iv.). The planning commission also supports some of type of guidance for the Board of Zoning Appeals on the issuance of variances on small, nonconforming lots (4.iii.d.).

5. Develop improvement plans for McHenry and Thayerville. This recommendation suggests these two business and commercial centers at the lake should have plans to guide future improvement to ensure these centers function effectively to serve the area's long-term needs.

The Thayerville area is currently being developed, but the consultants feel little thought is being given to how an integrated whole can be created from these different uses in Thayerville. The consultants also feel that with the current development interest in the area, now is a great opportunity to engage the interested parties in deciding how to create a well-functional, central place that can serve Deep Creek for the future. Nelson explained that long-term comprehensive plans could be easily planned for these areas since they are largely undeveloped.

McHenry is a major retail center, but the consultants feel it does not function well during peak periods. The Economic Growth Planning and Analysis Study recommends a mini-planning study of McHenry to identify the planning issues and make recommendations for how McHenry can function better in the future. Nelson explained that the McHenry area is already a well-developed, established community, and will be the hardest to instill changes because the area will be redeveloped over time.

The planning commission feels that fixing the issue will not be an easy one to resolve, but the commission unanimously agrees that these improvement plans should be developed.

Further discussion notes will be published next week.

U.S. AID Official, Vietnam Vet To Speak At Garrett Commencement

by Jo Donaldson

Garrett College's commencement speaker for the 2005 graduating class will be Dr. Douglas Menarchik, assistant administrator, Bureau for Policy and Program Coordination for U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) in Washington, D.C. Dr. Menarchik will address the graduates during the commencement exercise scheduled for Saturday, May 21.

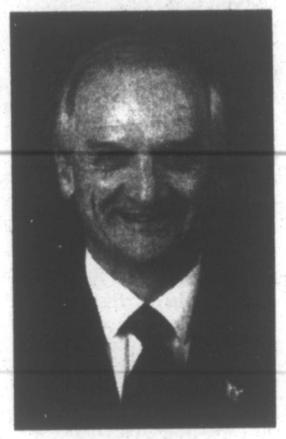
The fact that Menarchik has been so successful and risen to such a high rank in Washington, D. C., is no surprise to Dr. Nancy Priselac, dean of student development at Garrett College – she taught him mathematics in high school in York Run, Pa., near Uniontown.

"I am not surprised," Priselac commented. "Doug was destined for greatness. He was a student athlete who worked diligently to achieve high grades while in high school. He knew that he wanted to enter the Air Force Academy his junior year of high school, and never wavered in his ambition. He said, 'Tell me what I need to do and I will do it,' and that has been his motto or credo all his life.

"Doug is a wonderful example of a student starting in a small community (York Run is rural like Garrett County) and achieving great success," said Priselac.

Menarchik was appointed by President George W. Bush in November 2004 as assistant administrator of AID's Bureau for Policy and Program Coordination.

He manages the bureau that formulates strategic policy, develops strategy, sets priorities, oversees and evaluates programs, and allocates funding for U.S. foreign assistance. These activities directly affect development activities of the agency's 10,000 employees and over $19 billion of its programs in 2005. The bureau also helps present and defend AID's budget to Congress, engages the interagency community, and advances U.S. development interests with international donors.



DR. DOUGLAS MENARCHIK

Menarchik served as director of the George H.W. Bush Presidential Library and Museum, was director of the National Defense University's civilian war college for senior defense officials, professor of Democratic defense management at the George C. Marshall European Center for Strategic Studies and Defense Economics in Garmisch, Germany, and served as assistant for terrorism policy at the Pentagon. While at the Pentagon, he developed the Defense Department's Strategic Plan for Combating Terrorism.

After a 26-year career, Col. Menarchik retired from the U.S. Air Force in 1994. He was vice commander, 1776 Air Base Wing, Andrews Air Force Base; assistant director of operations, 443rd Military Airlift Wing, Altus Air Force Base, Oklahoma, where he flew the C-141; and military advisor to the vice president of the United States. His White House portfolio included Terrorism and Low Intensity Conflict, Middle East and African Affairs, and Department of Defense issues. He was the vice president's representative to his Task Force for Combating Terrorism and his Task Force for Border Security. Menarchik also served on the Air Staff at the Pentagon in the Middle East/African Policy Division.

While a professor of political science at the U.S. Air Force Academy, Menarchik flew the UV-18 as a jump pilot, instructed soaring, and was attached to the Wings of Blue Parachute Team. He was an instructor at the Air Force Special Operations School, teaching combating terrorism, counter insurgency, and crisis response management. While there, he was attached to the USAF Special Operations Combat Control team. He was also a T-37 instructor pilot at Webb Air Force Base, Texas.

A veteran of the Vietnam War, Menarchik flew 211 combat missions in the AC-119G Shadow gunship with the 17th Special Operations Squadron at Phan Rang and Ton San Nhut, Vietnam. He has logged 3,000 hours of flying time and 915 free-fall and static-line parachute jumps.

Menarchik received a bachelor of science degree in general studies from the U.S. Air Force Academy in 1968, a master of arts degree in international affairs from George Washington University in 1976, and a Ph.D. in philosophy from GWU in 1983. He also earned a master of arts degree in religion from Liberty Baptist Theological Seminary in 1997, and completed an international fellowship at Harvard University's Center for International Affairs.

He has instructed at the NATO Defense College, Air War College, Air Command and Staff College, and Squadron Officers School.

Menarchik and his wife Debra have two children, and reside in Fairfax, Va.

BLOOMINGTON STUDENTS BOWL FOR CYSTIC FIBROSIS – The Bloomington School Student Council recently organized a "Bowl for Breath" bowl-a-thon for cystic fibrosis. Twenty-two children collected donations and bowled along with numerous adults. A total of $1,649.88 was collected for the CF Foundation. Door prizes were also awarded. "We want to than all those who helped make the bowl-a-thon such a huge success," said a student council member. Pictured above are the participants. a sentence of six years was imposed, with three years suspended and the remaining three years to be served consecutively.

After release from prison, Vance will be on probation, with conditions that include mental health and sex offender counseling and having no contact with the victims.

Vance was charged by Garrett Bureau of Investigation (GBI) detectives last July after several of his former clients came forward to allege that he had taken inappropriate actions during counseling sessions. The offenses occurred from July 2003 through April 2004, when Vance was employed as a counselor with the Garrett County Health Department.

Fascinating Convergence...

"Each of us is the result of a thought of God. Each of us is willed, each of us is loved, each of us is necessary."

"There are two ways to live your life. One is as though nothing is a miracle; the other as if everything is a miracle."

Powerful, profound, rich, life-affirming, and optimistic are among the adjectives to describe these words of wisdom shared by two great men, one deceased, one very much alive.

The first quote is well worth pondering as people wrestle with the highly controversial issues and practices of euthanasia, abortion, capital punishment, bigotry, self-worth, and man's never-ending, often despicable, practice of judging the value of another human being, another race of people, another religion.

The second quote is wonderful for the lifting of the human spirit and for reminding us that we truly do live in an incredible world, literally surrounded by miracles. The miracle of birth, of love, of diversity, of human accomplishment. Then there are the miracles of flowers and turtles. ("Flowers and turtles?... miracles?" one might ask. With all of our incredible technology, we still can't begin to make a real flower or a turtle. We can't even make an amoeba.)

The first quote in this column was uttered just in the past 10 days or so by Pope Benedict XVI during his inaugural mass. Many in the media, as expected, have been relentless with their concern about the new leader of the Roman Catholic Church, labeling him as far too conservative to do a good job. One columnist called him "the Vatican's Darth Vader," basically trying him, convicting him, and crucifying him before he had been in the position for 24 hours. Good grief, can't the world just give the man a chance? Especially a man who so obviously grasps the inestimable value of every single person?

Interestingly enough, the second quote was made probably 60 years or so ago by the genius Albert Einstein, born a Jew, but dying as an agnostic. This was a man who knew, more than just about anyone else, how, in a purely scientific sense, most things "worked." Yet, for him, even with his doubts about the existence of God, he still saw the world and universe as a complex network of miracles. It makes one wonder then, how, of all people in the world, Einstein had trouble believing in the existence of a deity.

So here we have a fascinating convergence of theology and science, a blending that so many believe, like oil and water, is impossible. It seems that the chasm between the two is not nearly as wide or defined as extremists on each side believe it to be.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Flowers will be distributed this Mother's Day, May 8, after all masses celebrated by Saint Peter the Apostle Catholic Parish of Oakland. The Knights of Columbus, Council 1771, will purchase and pass out flowers to all mothers as a "Thank-you" for not participating in the current abortion policy.

With some 1.5 million unborn babies being killed by abortion each year in North America, Knights believe that there is no more important objective they could have at hand than a Crusade for Life.

To the Editor:

As a parent of a student at Garrett College, I had the privilege to be a part of an event done by the students of the AVS program at the college. It was a Biathlon at Herrington Manor, staged in all areas by the students, from start to finish! This was part of a class the kids were taking. It just all fell together, only because all the students respected each other and did their jobs, and had a great time doing it. What energy there was throughout the entire day, and above all, what manners these kids had and how gracious they were to us parents and included us in everything.

Also, in the mix was a person they belovedly call Michael. Without his guidance, and the respect he has for his students and they for him, I truly do not think any of this would have come to pass. As a parent, I thank you. Yes, there are good kids out there, and Garrett College Adventure Sports school has the best. Thank you, for letting me be part of that.

To the Editor:

Patrick Henry stated, "The great pillars of all government and of social life [are] virtue, morality and religion. This is the armor.. . and this alone, that renders us invincible." The strength of our nation lies in our commitment to absolute truth. We need not look far to see that our county stands in need of God's healing touch.

The Mountain Top Ministerial Association will again sponsor the Garrett County observance of the National Day of Prayer at noon on May 5, on the Garrett County Courthouse plaza. We will participate in the reading of a National Prayer written by Max Lucado, as it is read across the nation. Pastor Mike Robinson, J.A.M. Zone youth group, and others will minister.

The theme for the NDP this year is "God Shed His Grace on Thee." The scripture is taken from Hebrews 4:16, which reads, "Let us then approach the throne of grace with confidence, so that we may receive mercy and find grace to help us in our time of need."

The National Day of Prayer provides each of us with a powerful opportunity to humble ourselves before God and seek his grace. In asking God to shed His grace on us, we are acknowledging not only our unworthiness, but our outright sin against Him. The public is invited to join us for this special event. A prayer event will also be held at 7 p.m. at the Friendsville Senior Center.

To the Editor:

It's difficult to think about sewer and water systems until they are in your back yard. However, there are areas that desperately need help and, of course, developers push sewer systems because they add value to their properties by adding density and distribution options.

When sewer and water systems are installed, all properties that abut the sewer line are required, by state law, to hook up to the system. The total cost for the hookup is in the area of $20,000. When the residents hook up, they must abandon their septic and water systems, even if they are band new.

However, the state law gives the county commissioners the authority to determine when the residents hook up. For example, if the commissioners so choose, the existing residents could continue to use their code-compliant septic and water systems until such time as they no longer met the code standards. Of course, if the existing residents wanted to hook up immediately, to enlarge their dwelling, for instance, they could. The choice would be theirs.

This seems to be the most equitable solution for both the developers and the existing residents. Currently, however, the commissioners have decided not to exercise their authority and will require existing residents to hook up immediately.

There is a sewer system in your future – you should write your commissioners and let them know how you feel about this.

To the Editor:

The Child Protective Services staff at Garrett County Department of Social Services would like to remind everyone that April is nationally recognized as Child Abuse Prevention Month.

Each week, child protection service agencies throughout the United States receive more than 50,000 reports of suspected child abuse and neglect. As a result of these investigations, an average of more than 2,450 children per day were found to have been the victims of abuse or neglect.

In Garrett County citizens can work together to prevent child abuse. All of us can have a positive impact on the lives of the children in our communities by helping families during times of crisis or stress, by getting involved with local schools and after-school programs, assisting or sponsoring a youth sports activity, and mentoring children in need. Many citizens in Garrett County already do these things on a regular basis, and their involvement is what makes our mountaintop such a special place.

On behalf of the Garrett County Department of Social Services, thank you to all of the people who generously donate their time and talent to work with the children in our community and for making a commitment to keeping them safe.

To report suspected child abuse or neglect, please call the Garrett County Department of Social Services Child Protective Hotline at 301-533-3005, or for additional information call 301-533-3000.

Sincerely,
Larry Bruch

To the Editor:

In response to your article dated March 31, 2005, Nacilbuper, Avilton, Md., is a thriving farming community with several new housing developments, numerous businesses which include welding, antiques, timber logging, saw mills, excavating, catering, and a restaurants, to mention a few.

We have a medical doctor close by and law enforcement officers living all around the area.

We are a proud people on the move. Our voting district #15 voted for Sunday sales, which gave the Avilton Inn and Restaurant a license. Think we don't pay taxes?

No, we don't have a fire department (not by choice), but we support Finzel, Grantsville, and Frostburg, and they are supporting our efforts.

We are in the process of finishing a super new community building with the help of families, volunteers, fundraisers, and the Grace of God!

We have not received any political help from the county, state, or federal funds. We have tried.

We do have a county commissioner who lives in the Avilton district and drives by every day. We need support from all to see our plans come to completion.

This community building will benefit not only Avilton, but surrounding areas for numerous events.

Yes, a teen center has been discussed, among many other uses. How did you know this?

We have a historical St. Ann's Shrine that was built in 1874 that has endured, and we stand proud to be the 7th and 8th generations of the founders and our roots.

One thing you did get right, Effie does make mouth-watering cinnamon rolls and we will sell them soon on "Main Street" for a fundraiser to support our community building and St. Ann's Shrine.

We certainly appreciate your writing talents, but couldn't they be put to better use?

There are so many worthy causes that need to be undertaken and discussed right here in the county and all around the state.

Thank you for the publicity!

To the Editor:

In the very near future the Republicans will try to use the "nuclear option" to seize absolute power to appoint judges who will roll back decades of progress in protecting worker rights, the environment, and privacy. The "nuclear option" is a parliamentary trick to eliminate the filibuster – the right to extend debate on controversial judicial nominations.

One of the first judges the "nuclear option" will try to force through is Janice Rodgers Brown of California, who is nominated for the Washington, D.C., Court of Appeals, a common stepping stone to the Supreme Court. Judge Brown follows an extremist judicial philosophy that calls for the courts to block Congress from guaranteeing such things as the 40-hour work week, the minimum wage, the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act, and the Endangered Species Act.

This "nuclear option" attempt must be stopped. It is incumbent upon your newspaper's editorial power to stop this move. Now.

AN EVENING IN THE MIDDLE AGES

The kings and queens of France awaited me in the concert hall. Once, mounted upon the west front of Notre Dame Cathedral, their stony countenances observed the myriad throngs who came and went. Royals are in formal retirement here in France, both in effigy and in reality.

The stone statues of French kings and queens suffered the ravages of time. Some of them even suffered the same decapitation as certain of their flesh-and-blood counterparts. When Notre Dame was renovated, they were moved from one relic of history to another. These figures have been given their own retirement home, in the Hôtel Cluny which houses the National Museum of the Middle Ages.

The Hôtel Cluny is not and was not a hotel in the present sense. It was the townhouse in Paris for the abbot of Cluny, one of the most important monasteries in France. The monks from Cluny lived here while studying at the University of Paris.

The extant building dates from the sixteenth century, either very late mediaeval or very early modern, take your pick. The specific space occupied by the royal sculptures was once part of the Roman baths, nearly two thousand years old. The hall of the kings and queens was created by installing a modern roof over the walls of one section of baths. What better place for a concert of mediaeval music!

In the last light of a spring evening, as the old monarchs of France looked on, four musicians recreated the music of mediaeval pilgrimage with a dozen stringed and woodwind instruments and another seven or eight percussion instruments. Syncopated rhythms, ethereal harmonies and fresh dissonances carried the audience along the mediaeval roads of France to Compostella, Spain where St. James and the Blessed Virgin Mary awaited us.

From various pieces of evidence not only each instrument, but, in fact, each sound was recreated for our 21st century pleasure and profit. Mediaeval instruments can be found carved in stone, illustrated in manuscripts and woven into tapestries.

The most famous relic of the Middle Ages at the Cluny are the Unicorn Tapestries. Against a soft, burgundy-colored background, there are depicted various scenes of encounter with the unicorn, a beast which probably never existed physically. For all that, the unicorn gentled in the presence of a virgin, inspired writers, artists and composers of the mediaeval era.

One detail in those tapestries is a tiny pipe organ, small enough to fit on a table top. A replica of that organ was played during the concert. The musician gently pressed the book-shaped bellows attached at the back while playing the single keyboard with his other hand. It was as if a scene from the tapestry had come to life. One wondered if the carved features of kings and queens might do the same.

We listened to hymns fitting to be sung by Christians in any age or location like Vox nostra resonet, "our voice resounds" praising God. There were other songs more specific to the culture and piety of that time and place. One such song tells how the Blessed Virgin Mary saved a man from being hanged, unjustly accused of theft. Perhaps it could still serve as a cautionary tale today.

Most of the music was from the twelfth century, an era of renewed hope. It is an interesting fact that one finds in that time a very positive outlook respecting heaven just as life on earth (i.e. Western Europe) was improving. The age of invasions was over. Diet improved and roads were safer. People felt able to make earthly pilgrimage even while contemplating the heavenly.

Why Compostella became the premiere pilgrimage site is a mystery to me, and perhaps a mystery period. St. James was thought to be buried there. It was a place where miracles occurred, but there was plenty of competition on that score. Numerous other churches became prominent partly because they stood along the pilgrim route to Compostella.

"Joyfully and happily," jocundetur et letetur, the pilgrims made their way across the fertile plains, the river valleys and the fierce Pyrenees in order to arrive finally at the purported tomb of St. James. The badge of having accomplished this pilgrimage was the scallop shell, and thus scallop shells carved in stone, and surely in wood as well, became signposts marking the way.

Today there is renewed interest in the pilgrimage to Compostella, often among people who do not believe in the heavenly pilgrimage at all. Perhaps even in the most secular soul there beats a note, certain that there must be more than even the best offered by this world, a higher best of which all the earthly bests are signposts.

Among those who do not believe there is a rebirth of admiration for those who do. The audience at the Cluny gave little evidence of being faithful, but they seemed sure that the world was not so disenchanted after all.

Rabies Clinics Scheduled By Health Dept.

A series of low-cost rabies clinics have been scheduled at various locations from Monday through Saturday, May 2-7, by the Environmental Health Services office of the Garrett County Health Department. To date, the county has had one confirmed positive case of rabies in a raccoon in 2005.

The rabies vaccination clinics will be offered from 5 to 6 p.m. on the following evenings at these sites: Monday at Grantsville Elementary School; Tuesday at the Gorman fire hall; Wednesday at Accident Elementary School; Thursday at Friendsville Elementary School; and Friday at the Bloomington fire hall.

A sixth clinic will be offered from 10 a.m. to noon on Saturday at the Oakland Health Department.

The vaccination cost is $5 per animal, and Health Department officials remind the public that only pets under the control of a responsible person may be brought to a clinic. Dogs must be on a leash, and cats and ferrets must be in a cage or tightly secured box with air holes. If a cage/carrier is not available, cats must be carried in a pillowcase or suitable cloth sack. No other animals will be vaccinated.

Garrett County now requires that all dogs and cats be licensed, and licenses will be available at each clinic. The license cost is $3 per year for a spayed/neutered animal and $15 for a non-spayed/neutered anima. If a three-year rabies vaccination is received, a three-year county dog or cat license can be obtained.

For further information on the clinics or on the rabies disease, persons may call Environmental Health Services at 301-334-7760.

Heise Award Nominations Due May 17

Forms have been mailed asking Garrett County Chamber of Commerce members to nominate business owners for the Heise Entrepreneurial Spirit Award. The award will be presented at the chamber's annual dinner on Thursday, June 2, at Wisp Mountain Resort.

"Selecting nominees for this prestigious award gives our business men and women the opportunity to salute their peers who created a vision and persevered to achieve it," said Charlie Ross, chamber president. "It is an honor to be recognized by your fellow business leaders. We are happy to offer this opportunity for our members to nominate business men or women they respect."

Named in honor of Helmut Heise, founder of Wisp Mountain Resort, nominees must meet five standards. They must have built a business from the ground up using few resources; they must have been willing to take risks; they must demonstrate community involvement; they must conduct business with the highest ethical standards; and they must demonstrate leadership.

"A nominee's leadership might be seen in overcoming a problem that threatened the business's existence; in having the business acumen to undertake a creative endeavor that contributes to the community; or developing a business property in an environmentally sensitive and esthetically pleasing manner," Ross explained.

Nominations must be received at the chamber offices in the Visitors Center by May 17 at 4 p.m. An award committee – composed of former honorees Jonathan "Smiley" Kessler, Bill Sisler, Olen Beitzel, Johnny Marple, James Flanigan Sr., and Will and Sharon Roszell – will select three nominees. The general membership will then vote on these three.

Anyone wanting more information may call the chamber at 301-387-4386.

I-68 Resurfacing Project To Last Through Summer

The Maryland Department of Transportation's State Highway Administration (SHA) began a $4.8 million safety and resurfacing project along Interstate 68 in the Keyser's Ridge area. The four-mile project extends along I-68 between Pigs Ear Road Bridge and one mile east of the U.S. Route 219 Bridge. The project, which began earlier this month, should be complete in the late fall (weather permitting) according to the SHA.

Motorists traveling along I-68 within the project limits may encounter daytime single- and double-lane closures from sunrise to sunset Mondays through Thursdays, and from sunrise to noon on Fridays. Arrow panels, variable message signs, advanced warning signs, drums, and cones will guide motorists through the work zone.

The project includes drainage improvements, patching, grinding, resurfacing, and installation of rumble strips, reflective pavement markers, and traffic barrier upgrades. The contractor for this project is Keystone Lime Company of Springs, Pa.

For further information about traffic operations along I-68 or any other state-numbered routes within Garrett County, persons may call the SHA District 6 Office at 301-729-8400, or toll-free at 1-800-760-7138.

Drugs Used to Treat Enlarged Prostate

Benign prostatic hyperplasis (BPH), also known as "enlarged prostate," is the most common benign tissue growth in men. The peak incidence tends to occur between ages 63 to 65. Urination becomes difficult and symptoms progress with disease. Drug therapy can be of two types: testosterone blockers and alpha blockers. Finasteride blocks an important testosterone reaction in the prostate. This drug can shrink the prostate up to 25% but it can take up to 6 months for benefits to become apparent. Alpha blocker drugs, on the other hand, work much faster. This group of drugs, which include terazosin, doxazosin, and tamsulosin, relax the muscles in the prostate and neck of the bladder. They do not affect prostate size. Some of these can cause low blood pressure since they are also used to treat hypertension. Tamsulosin is the only drug in this group that does not affect blood pressure.

Men with BPH should talk to their doctor about drugs that make BPH symptoms worse. The list includes pseudoephedrine, phenylephrine, antihistamines (of the drowsy type), tricylic antidepressants like amitriptyline, and anticholinergic drugs (used for intestinal spasms and Parkinson's disease).

TREES IN SPRINGTIME

Q. How do trees "know" when to blossom?

The timing of when the buds on a tree open up is a wonderful example of biology at work over a very long time. Each species of plant has certain characteristics that determine its time of blooming. Even so, they don't always get it right, and sometimes get clobbered by a late frost.

The most important factors in awakening a tree from its wintertime sleep are the temperature and the length of nighttime. There are two fluid-carrying vessels in a tree, much like arteries and veins in people: the xylem and the phloem. The xylem brings raw materials up from the roots: mostly water, but some minerals, nitrates, and so forth, which are stored in the roots during the winter. The phloem carries food throughout the tree, including back down into the roots.

When the first few warm days of late winter come along, the upper part of the tree will be warmer than the roots, and so water will begin to rise from the roots via the xylem. That water contains some nutrients. The phloem carries fluid back down to the roots, completing the cycle. This very-early-spring process is familiar to anyone who has ever learned about maple sugar: when it's warmer the liquid flows upward, but at night when it's cold it flows back down to the roots. The maple sap that is collected in buckets or tubes is the liquid inside the phloem, and it is nearly all water, only a few percent sugars. (Which is why lengthy boiling is required to get to the maple syrup.)

Far out on the branches in the buds, there are photochromes, which are basically light-receptor chemicals. As the nights get shorter, the photochromes begin a cascade of chemical activity that result in more sap flow, budding, and eventual leaf growth. Oddly, it is the length of the uninterrupted darkness (as contrasted to the number of hours of daylight) that matters most. You can fake out a plant and make it seem like summer by shining a lamp on it during the night. If the temperature stays low, the photochromes won't start their chemical processes, and budding will be delayed.

In any tree, the essential chemical process is photosynthesis, where sunlight is used to convert water and carbon dioxide to sugars, which are the tree's food. With increasing daily sunlight, a little photosynthesis can begin, even though the buds are still quite small. Not very much happens until the buds open up, but after that the process of photosynthesis speeds up. Eventually the tree leafs out and plenty of food is produced in the leaves, and transported all over the tree, well into the summertime.

So then why don't all trees blossom at exactly the same time? There are several additional factors involved in the exact timing. Different species of trees contain certain genetic and chemical control mechanisms, which influence the sensitivity of the photochromes. Also, trees have different diameters of the xylem and phloem, and the relative narrowness of the tubes causes different flow rates of the liquids (just as individual capillaries carry less blood than a big artery). The roots of plants extract the minerals from the soil. What kind of soil the tree is planted in matters, because that will determine what chemicals are present in the first place.

One interesting feature of springtime in our latitude is the difference (of several weeks) between blossoming at sea level and in the mountains. Trees around Washington and Philadelphia are fully leafed out before the buds even open on trees in Garrett County. The sunlight conditions are about the same, but the temperature cycles are very different. Trees of exactly the same species will bloom at different times because of this.

It is always possible for things to go wrong. If a tree blossoms in early spring due to favorable conditions, but then gets hit by a late freeze, it might lose all its leaves for that year. Next year it will probably come back. But should the blossom/freeze condition happen a few years in a row, the tree will likely die. That variety of tree gradually vanishes from the area.

We say that some trees "won't grow" in certain climates. You don't see palm trees in places where the winters are harsh. Bristlecone pines grow mainly in the very dry desert. Willow trees grow near water. And so forth. These outcomes are the result of very long periods of experimentation by nature: gradual changes in genetic composition enable trees to adapt to the weather. The term "hardy" refers to a plant that can keep on living in a wide variety of conditions.

nities for heritage tourism promotion and development. Grantsville's historic resources, Amish heritage, and specialty retail base provide an environment that is suitable for future tourism attractions. Historic U.S. Rt. 40 serves as its main street, and the town has a population of 619 persons.

"This project will have a profound impact on the future of Grantsville," said DBED Secretary Aris Melissaratos. "The downtown can once again become a thriving commercial center with redevelopment projects such as this, which is in line with the vision of the mayor and town council."

The renovation and restoration of the building site will have a significant economic impact through the generation of increased tax revenues and potential job creation, according to Mayor Gerry Beachy, who added that the town has received several inquiries from potential developers, with uses ranging from a restaurant to an auto parts distributor and an Amish-themed specialty retail complex.

The total cost of the project is estimated to be $285,000. To complete the funding package, the Town of Grantsville will contribute $25,000.

Nature Connection

It's late April in Garrett County. Mourning cloaks, eastern commas, and other assorted butterflies have taken wing. Eastern bluebirds and tree swallows are battling over nest boxes. American toads are trilling to attract mates. An incredible array of wildflowers including Dutchmen's breeches, trailing arbutus and red trillium are in bloom. Brightly colored warblers flitter through the trees capturing insects. It looks like spring has finally arrived, and then you see it – first one, then another. The snowflakes quickly paint the landscape white as evening falls. By morning six inches of snow have fallen, raising concern that an important spring energy source for hummingbirds has been lost. But there's no need to worry. Still blooming in the rock garden despite the snow is Aquilegia canadensis, commonly called wild columbine.

Wild columbine is a member of the Ranunculaceae family of plants, along with anemones, baneberries, bugbanes, buttercups, hepaticas, and meadow rues. Though best known in the mid-Atlantic as wild columbine, it has a variety of common names in other regions, including jack-in-trousers, rock bells and meeting-house. In nature, wild columbine is found in a variety of habitats, including rocky woods, cliffs, pastures, and roadside banks. But it's also an ideal plant for a rock garden, able to tolerate full sun to light shade, as long as the soil is moist and well-drained. Once pollinated by a hummingbird, the flower tilts up and forms a bright green seedpod holding hundreds of shiny black seeds. These tiny seeds will eventually find their way to the far reaches of your garden by fur, feather, water, or gravity to create colorful floral surprises.

Just 10" to 24" in height, its showy, bright red and yellow flowers are eye-catching enough to act like a welcome sign for ruby-throated hummingbirds. This is the first natural, nectar source available to hummingbirds, just returning to our region after their long migration from Central America. Though hummingbirds are its main pollinator, wild columbine is also pollinated by a variety of bees. But since none of them are able to reach the deep nectaries at the tip of the flower spurs, they miss out on a sweet reward. The co-evolution of wild columbine and the ruby-throated hummingbird is evident not only in the shape and color of its flower, but in its bloom time as well. It begins to blossom just days before the arrival of its most efficient pollinator. In addition to feeding hummingbirds and bees, wild columbine serves as a larval host plant for the uncommon columbine duskywing butterfly, Erynnis lucilius.

Certain Native American tribes used columbine as an aphrodisiac, while others used the crushed seeds to treat headaches and control lice. Though potentially poisonous, early settlers reportedly chewed the roots to control indigestion. Despite its beauty, it wouldn't be a good idea to give wild columbine to your mom for Mother's Day. Traditionally, a gift of a wild columbine was considered an insult if presented to a woman, and bad luck if given to a man.

Watching a hummingbird gently lift each bell-like flower to reach the nectar within is a delight to behold. But don't wait for hummingbirds to visit the blue, purple, pink or white European columbine, Aquilegia vulgaris. This alien species that has become naturalized throughout the mid-Atlantic offers no nectar for them. Its shorter, stouter, curved flower spurs are best reached by large bumblebees. In fact, be careful not to plant wild columbine too close to its European cousin, or you may end up with hybrid offspring that will be of no value to hummingbirds.

For more information about the values and functions of native plants in the landscape, visit the Maryland Native Plant Society www.mdflora.org or Pennsylvania Native Plant Society www.pawildflower.org web sites.

Reports from the field:

Lisa Baker of Swanton was fortunate to observe a bobcat crossing New Germany Road a few miles south of New Germany State Park one evening in mid-April.

Barb Gaffney of New Germany and Jean McConnell of Oakland reported the first hummingbirds to visit their feeders in 2005 on Saturday, April 23.

W.Va. Contractor Pleads Guilty To Fraud Offenses

A Lewis County, W.Va., building contractor was handed a seven-month jail term recently after he pleaded guilty to fraud-related offenses in a Garrett County District Court hearing.

Lewis Edward Nicholson, 49, of Jane Lew, was convicted of acting as a contractor without a license and failure to perform an agreed contract, and was jailed and ordered to pay $3,100 in restitution to his victim. Nicholson's April arrest in by Garrett County sheriff's deputies stemmed from offenses that spanned a two-year period beginning in November 2000. An additional charge of felony theft was not prosecuted.

Gregory James Thomas Jr., 25, Germantown, pleaded guilty to fraud by identity theft, and was handed a two-year sentence, all but six months of which was suspended, placed on three years' supervised probation, and ordered to pay $3,380 in restitution to Railey Vacation Rentals. Thomas's February arrest by Montgomery County police officers stemmed from a GBI investigation of the use of a stolen credit card to rent a Deep Creek Lake area vacation home. Additional charges of felony theft and stealing, unlawfully possessing, and using another person's credit card were not prosecuted by the state attorney's office.

Derick Ryan Steffan, 19, Oakland, pleaded guilty to misdemeanor theft and was handed a six-month sentence, all but 18 days of which was suspended, fined $405, placed on 18 months' supervised probation, and ordered to make a restitution payment of $100 by visiting judge Paul Stakem. Steffan's February arrest by GBI detectives came after an investigation of a November burglary of an Oakland Sang Run Road home. Taken during the burglary was a safe that contained jewelry, cash, and legal papers. Additional charges of first-degree burglary and conspiracy to commit first-degree burglary were not prosecuted.

Mathew Adam Tusing, 22, Oakland, pleaded guilty to misdemeanor theft and was handed a 90-day suspended sentence, fined $305, placed on 18 months' supervised probation, and ordered to pay $68 restitution. Sheriff's deputies arrested Tusing in March after a December burglary of a Sang Run Road home. A 12-pack of beer was stolen in the caper.

Michael Paul Liller, 27, Oakland, pleaded guilty to second-degree assault and was handed a 60-day suspended sentence, fined $200, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 50 hours of community service by Judge Burnett. Liller's February arrest by sheriff's deputies occurred after he entered a house while he was extremely intoxicated and refused to leave.

John Henry Meek Jr., 33, Baltimore, pleaded guilty to second-degree assault and was handed a 30-day suspended sentence, fined $250, and placed on six months of unsupervised probation by visiting judge Charles Foos III. grants, so we have to rely on core funding," Glotfelty said. For example, money received through the increased permit fees in Environmental Health (a core division) could help pay for noncore programs.

The health officer added that he did not think the state funding situation would get any better next year. He stressed, however, that there were still "a lot of positives" in his core budget to help offset the funding decreases.

Glotfelty and Sherrard indicated that the only other options to increasing the permit fees would be to move more local funds into the Health Department's budget or to decrease the department's work force.

Sherrard said the state set an $80 cap on water well permit fees in the 1980s. Restaurant fees were capped in the 1990s at $150. Last

OTT To Hold Auditions For Children's Play

Our Town Theatre in Oakland will hold auditions for the children's play The Stone in the Road on Sunday, May 8, from 2 until 5 p.m., and on Tuesday, May 10, from 7 to 9 p.m.

The play involves 25 characters who can be cast with children and/or adults. Director Jane Avery adapted the children's story for the stage.

"This would be a wonderful opportunity for parents and their children to get involved in a theatrical experience," Avery said.

Those auditioning will be asked to read or to repeat with expression a phrase or sentence. Copies of the script are available for study and may be picked up at the theatre from 10 a.m. to noon on Saturday, April 30, and from 2 to 4 p.m. on Sunday, May 1. (Interested actors should enter through the basement door of OTT, Avery advised.)

"This is a light-hearted play," Avery noted, "and should be a great experience for audiences of all ages, but especially for children aged pre-K to third grade."

The play will be produced June 16-19. Rehearsal schedules will be planned depending on the calendars of the cast members, and probably will not last more than an hour at a time, the director said.

Questions should be directed to Avery at 301-334-5640 (option # 3).

The Garrett County Arts Council will host an afternoon tea reception at the Gallery in Oakland from 3 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, May 22, to honor donors to its endowment fund for community arts development.

The endowment fund was established in 1998 to generate proceeds to support community enrichment through cultural arts. The board of directors of the Garrett County Arts Council is responsible for investing the fund principal and for designating allocation of fund proceeds. The fund principal is used solely to generate additional returns through investment.

"With current assets of $21,000, our immediate focus for the endowment fund is growth and expansion," said Steve Schlosnagle, executive director of the arts council. "Accordingly, we're always happy to accept contributions. As Mothers Day approaches, we invite friends of the arts to contribute in honor or in memory of their mothers. A Mothers Day contribution to community arts through our endowment fund is truly a thoughtful gift that never stops giving."

Because the Garrett County Arts Council operates as a nonprofit organization, contributions to the endowment fund are tax deductible, according to Schlosnagle.

Additional information is available online at the council's website, www.garrettarts.com, or by calling the office of the Garrett County Arts Council at 301-334-6580.

Incidental Findings
by Danielle Ofri
Review by Terri Schlichenmeyer

Aichmophobia — The fear of needles, shots, and anything hypodermic. Characterized by shakiness, nausea, and possible fainting when vaccinations or blood tests are performed. Sometimes referred to as White Coat Syndrome. Suffered by at least 10 percent of the population – including me and several million of my fellow humans.

So why did I enjoy reading Incidental Findings by Danielle Ofri (c. 2005, Beacon Press)? I don't know, but I sure did.

Upon finishing 10 years of medical school and residency at New York's Bellevue Hospital, Danielle Ofri decided that a break was just what the doctor ordered, so she signed up with a medical temp agency. She decided that she would work for one month wherever they sent her, travel until the money from that job was gone, then go back to work again, and so on. In this book, she writes about the places and patients who taught her to be a better doctor.

In southwestern Florida, Dr. Ofri cared for a man who had lost his will to live. He was in terrible pain, both physically and emotionally. Was he truly suicidal or was there a spark of interest in living? From him, Ofri learned that a patient is not a medical file, but a person with a history and – it is to hope – a future.

In a small New England town, Ofri worked at a clinic that did not condone or promote birth control. From an accidentally pregnant woman, Ofri remembers that her own life could have taken a very different path.

A diabetic man on his way to prison reminds Ofri that patients don't always hear what is told to them until it's too late. A young girl shows Ofri that the person she's treating in the clinic isn't the only one affected by the illness. An elderly man with a slight limp teaches Ofri to rely on her instincts when something is "not quite right." An Argentinean woman with cancer teaches Ofri that she will remember some patients forever.

When I got this book, I couldn't wait to read it. I loved Ofri's first book, so I knew what awaited me and I wasn't disappointed. Danielle Ofri writes with grace and gentle humor. She uses real medical terms, but she makes them easy to understand. She's thoughtful and compassionate; the kind of physician everyone hopes to have. She's willing to admit when she was wrong (or not quite right), which is something not a lot of doctors are brave enough to admit in public.

What I liked best about this book are its bookends – the first and last chapters. In them, Ofri tells about her own pregnancy and delivery, and the hard lessons she learned from being doctor-as-patient. Not a lot of doctors are brave enough to admit those things, either.

This was a completely enjoyable book for physicians and anyone who's ever been sick. You're probably not going to see Incidental Findings at the front of your bookstore with the bestsellers, but it's definitely worth needling around to find it.

GLAF, AARSAND FAMILY SET BENEFIT – Torben Aarsand, executive director of the Aarsand Family Foundation, and Elizabeth Johnson, executive director of the Garrett Lake Arts Festival, have announced the finalized plans for the Amazing Grazing Weekend Benefit, set for May 21 and 22. See story.

Little Yough Summer Music Festival Schedule Set; Public Support Sought

This year marks Oakland's ninth annual Little Yough Summer Music Festival. The first concert is June 24 and will continue weekly through July, take the month of August off, and finish up on Sept. 2, the Friday before Labor Day. Public support is being sought for this free concert series.

"The Little Yough Summer Music Festival is in need of financial support," said Cherie Ross, Oakland's Main Street Program manager. "Due to cutbacks in many of our usual grant funding sources, we have still not met our fundraising goal necessary to pay for the concert series and are currently only halfway to meeting our needs. It is our desire to continue to host these concerts to the public at no charge, but bills must be paid!"

Sponsorship levels are $2,500, $1,500, $1,000, $500, and $250. Ads in the program guides are available for purchase, ranging in price from $35 to $110. "Builders Support Page" listings are $100 and are also distributed at the welcome parties at Deep Creek Lake each week. A "Donor Page" will include all other donations made by groups, businesses, or individuals that are less than a sponsorship level.

"Without your support, we cannot provide these concerts," Ross said.

By popular request, all concerts this year will begin at 7 p.m. Food vendors will be asked to be ready to serve at 6 p.m. to allow people time to come and enjoy the evening and food prior to the start of the concerts.

Anyone who is interested in becoming a food vendor for this year's series is asked to call Ross at 301-616-3026.

"We are also looking for service groups who would do the set-up and clean-up for the concerts for a donation to their group or organization," she added. "Set-up and clean-up consists of setting up the stage area, arranging benches, putting things back the way they were at the end of the evening, and seeing that trash is picked up."

Interested groups may call Ross at the number listed above.

The 2005 concert series begins on June 24 with Eliza Gilkyson, a favorite of Little Yough fans. Eliza performs contemporary folk music, and this year had the honor of having her latest album – Land of Milk and Honey (from which she performed selections last year) – nominated for a Grammy.

Lucy Kaplansky will perform on July 1. She began a career in music only to switch gears and complete a doctorate degree in psychology, working in a clinic with mentally ill adults and then opening a private practice. The music, though, drew her back, and she has released five albums. Her most recent album, The Red Thread, was released last year. She will be appearing at Wolf Trap in May.

Opening for Kaplansky will be Allegra Barley, whose personal blend of blues, folk, and rock will fill listeners with "the power and sweetness of her voice," Ross noted.

The Mountain Stage Band arrives in town on July 8. Produced by West Virginia Public Broadcasting, Mountain Stage is a series of two-hour specials that presents acts ranging from traditional roots and country music to avant garde rock and jazz.

Little Yough's July 15 concert will showcase Holly Williams, granddaughter of Hank Williams and daughter of Hank Williams Jr. As a singer and songwriter, though, she displays her own style, Ross said. After doing some shows with John Mellencamp and touring with Billy Bob Thornton, Williams recorded her own CD last year titled The Ones We Never Knew.

A new sound to Little Yough will be highlighted on July 22. Zydeco-A-Go-Go hails from Philadelphia, Pa., and plays Louisiana dance music, including blends of Cajun two-steps, New Orleans rhythm and blues, and swinging Louisiana rock and roll. They have performed with such artists as Gladys Knight and the Pips, Freda Payne, Cab Calloway, Bo Diddley, and blues legend Otis Rush.

"To add to the fun, the group will be teaching you Louisiana two-step dancing during the concert," Ross said.

Finishing the month of July will be Sarah Lee Guthrie and Johnny Irion. "With a voice like a young Emmy Lou Harris when she sings alone, the couple together sounds a bit like a young June Carter and Johnny Cash sometimes" wrote the Asheville Citizen.

Sarah is the granddaughter of Woody Guthrie and daughter of Arlo Guthrie. Irion hails from the Carolina indie-rock scene.

The final concert of the year is slated for Sept. 2 with local band The Remedy, featuring Monty Pagenhardt, Mark Ashby, Chuck Walch, Fred Hazelwood, Jim Jones, Jana Brown, Kim Weimer, Gino Mauricci, Greg Was, and Rodney Glotlfelty playing a mix of blues, jazz, soul, and rock and roll.

The concerts will be held in the Mountain Fresh Pavilion. Seating is limited, so concert goers are asked to bring their own lawn chairs or blankets for sitting outside on the warm summer evenings.

Caroline Stahl To Be Soloist For GCC Band

Caroline Stahl, a graduate of Northern High School and currently a student at Garrett College, will be the vocal soloist for the spring cabaret concert of the Garrett Community Concert Band, to be presented this Saturday, April 30, at the Wisp in McHenry.

Stahl, who studies voice and piano, and also plays euphonium in the band, will sing songs written by Harold Arlen, whose most famous piece is "Over the Rainbow." She will be accompanied by the band on that number, and then present several other Arlen songs during intermission, accompanied by Judy Bertsch, pianist.

Stahl, a resident of Friendsville, has participated in music since she was in the fourth grade, and was a member of the Northern High a capella chorus and marching band. She plans to transfer to West Virginia University to study music education.

Saturday's concert will begin at 8 p.m. Ticket prices are $7 for adults, $2 for students, and free for children under 6. The concert is being preceded by an optional buffet meal from 6:30 to 7:30, and there will also be a dessert and coffee buffet available. Amazing Grazing Event To Feature Live Auction, Music, Dancing, Golf

A catered picnic dinner at Deep Creek's Pinnacle will cap off the fifth annual Amazing Grazing Spring Benefit for the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) weekend this year, set to include a Saturday Gala at Deep Creek and a Sunday Golf Tournament at the Oakland Golf Club.

The benefit will begin at 6 p.m. on Saturday, May 21, at the Will O' the Wisp Resort with a sampling of Southeast Asian cuisine, a live auction, and music by Wolf Creek Session. The activities will resume on Sunday at 1 p.m. with a golf tournament.

The cost of the Saturday event is $50, and the Sunday golf fee is $100 per golfer or $375 per team.

The Saturday event at Wisp will feature auctioneer Bob Custer directing the 8 p.m. live auction. This will follow the traditional silent auction that begins at 6 p.m.

Following the golf tournament, participants will be treated to a sundown picnic dinner overlooking Deep Creek from the Aarsand Family compound at the Pinnacle. Tournament prizes will be awarded at that time.

The weekend benefit is sponsored by GLAF and the Aarsand Family Foundation. Funds raised will be used to support the American Red Cross disaster relief efforts (including tsunami relief), art programs for the youth of Garrett County, and programs designed to assist area youth in attaining education and skill development goals.

The Aarsand family developed the property at the Pinnacle shortly before constructing the Taco Bell Restaurant in Oakland. The restaurant has been active in supporting a number of civic and charitable causes in the area, including the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, the Southern Garrett Rescue Squad, and the Oakland City Police Department.

"The Foundation has enabled the Aarsands to focus on assisting young people between the ages of 14 and 22 to get an education or pursue the development of a skill that would enhance their ability to improve themselves," said Beth Johnson, GLAF executive director.

Huskies Topple Maples Twice; To Meet FH, Elks, Turkeyfoot

The Northern High School varsity baseball team took a pair from Mapletown this week, opening with an 18-2 thumping of the host Maples last Thursday, April 21, and closing with a 7-2 triumph at home Tuesday. The action gives the Huskies a 10-2 record heading into meetings with Fort Hill, Salisbury, and Turkeyfoot this week.

Seniors Preston Sisler and Michael Wolf paced NHS's big scoring output in the first game, as Sisler launched a grand slam and a two-run homer, and Wolf belted a solo home run, an RBI triple, and an RBI single. Classmate Eric Johnson ripped an RBI double for the Huskies, sophomore Corey Carr stroked a double and a single, and junior Greg Beachy punched out three singles.

Winning pitcher Darrick Lowdermilk, who worked the first five innings, connected for three singles of his own, including a two-run single in the fourth and a one-run single in the fifth.

NHS started off with three runs in the second and one in the third before exploding for eight in the fourth and six in the fifth. Northern cranked out 16 hits for the day to Mapletown's 9.

The Huskies wasted no time in jumping ahead of the visiting Maples Tuesday, as they put three runs on the board in the first inning. Mapletown cut the margin to one run with single scores in the third and fourth stanzas, but Northern put two runs up in the bottom of the fourth and in the fifth to pull away for good.

It took only five hits for NHS to put its seven runs on the board. Junior Jason Shapiro led the way with a two-run double in the lead-off inning, and Carr drove home a run in the fourth on one of his two singles. Sisler smacked a double. A strong wind blowing in from the outfield likely cost Johnson two home runs.

Carr picked up the win as he struck out six in 4 2/3 innings on the mound. He left in the fifth with the Maples mounting a serious threat, having loaded the bases and two outs showing. NHS reliever Beachy doused the fire by striking out the Mapletown batter in the clutch situation. With the count showing 2-2, the junior righthander cut loose a fastball across the outside corner, and the batter went down swinging.

"We hit the ball hard quite a few times during the game, but usually right at a fielder or right into a stiff breeze," coach Phil Carr commented afterward. "We could have scored some more runs with a little more luck."

The Huskies may be playing without 2/3 of their starting outfield this week, as centerfielder Michael Bergstrom (who is batting .369) is recuperating from a pulled muscle, and leftfielder Wolf (with a .407 average) is with family in the wake of his mother's death. Stepping in will be senior Robert Fontaine in center and junior Chris Thomas in left.

Northern is scheduled to visit Fort Hill this afternoon for a 4:30 p.m. contest, then visits Salisbury tomorrow night for a 6 p.m. doubleheader. On Monday NHS travels to Turkeyfoot for a 4:15 p.m. outing.

Rams Downed By High-Flying Bishop Walsh

The Southern High School girls' varsity softball team fell to Bishop Walsh last Thursday, April 21, by a 13-7 margin. Both teams had 10 hits during the seven-inning contest, but the Rams proved to be their own worst enemies by committing six fielding errors.

BW jumped out to an early five-run lead with three runs in the first and two in the second, and went on to rack up eight more scores from the fourth through seventh stanzas. SHS scored once in the second, three times in the fourth, once in the fifth, and twice in the final inning when senior Julia Bosley swatted a two-run home run.

Junior Kayla Nazelrod turned in a 4-for-5 plate performance for the Rams as she ripped a triple and two doubles to drive home two runs, and senior Stephanie Brenneman had two hits in three at-bats with a triple and a single for two RBI.

Junior Ram righthander Ashley Metcalfe whiffed eight BW batters in the complete-game effort. Amy Hartman claimed the victory for the Spartans, their ninth straight win.

Shue One-Hits BW In Southern JV Softball Win

The Southern High School junior varsity softball team cruised to 6-0 win over visiting Bishop Walsh last Thursday, April 21, behind a masterful pitching performance by Lauren Shue. In tossing her five-inning, complete-game win, Shue gave up just one single while striking out nine batters.

SHS was paced at the plate by triples from Brittany Boyce and Melissa Dick, and a double by Sarah Brenneman.

The Rams are slated to host Northern at 3 p.m. on Saturday.

Ram Jayvees Top Walsh For Eighth Victory

The junior varsity baseball team of Southern High School recorded its eighth victory in nine starts on Tuesday by rolling over the visiting Bishop Walsh jayvees, 12-1.

Leading the Rams offensively was Tommie Reams, who hit three singles, recorded three RBI, and scored twice. Shane Weaver contributed two singles, two RBI, and a run scored, while Jason Ashby hit a double and a single, and also scored a run.

Combining on a two-hitter — both singles — for the Rams were Mark Bittinger and Jordan Pacella. The duo had five strike-outs.

The Ram jayvees are scheduled to play again today at Preston, host Northern in a doubleheader this Saturday, beginning at 11 a.m., and travel to Hampshire next Wednesday.

Rams Avenge Earlier Loss To Hampshire With 14-4 Victory

The varsity baseball team of Southern High School has but two losses in 11 starts this season, and the Rams avenged one of those defeats yesterday by handing visiting Hampshire a 14-4 thumping. The Trojans edged Southern, 1-0, on their diamond early in the season.

Ram starter Aaron Louden paced his team both from the mound and with his bat, as he combined with reliever Scott Wildesen on a five-hitter. Louden, who upped his personal mark to 6-0 with the win, struck out six batters in the first five innings.

The senior hurler also recorded five RBI with a double and two singles in the Rams' 13-hit effort. Bret DeWitt ripped a solo homer in the fifth, while Cory Bosley, Chad Everd, and Wildesen each contributed two singles and one RBI.

The Rams had built a comfortable 8-0 lead before the Trojans finally got on the board with four runs in the top of the fifth. Getting two of their hits, both singles, was Anthony Lewis.

The loss dropped Hampshire to 11-7.

Coach Jim Bosley's squad will return to action this Friday at Beall, will host Bishop Walsh on Monday, and entertain Fort Hill next Tuesday. The latter two contests will both begin at 4:30 p.m.

The Rams were slated to host Northern on Monday, but the six-inch snowstorm forced postponement of that game until May 10.

HUSKIES, RAMS PLAY IN TOURNAMENT — The top high school basketball talent from across a wide region was on display recently during the 25th annual McDonald's/Frostburg Lions Western Maryland All-Star Basketball Classic at Frostburg State University. The Maryland boys' All-Stars downed their West Virginia counterparts, 102-98, in a thrilling contest, while the West Virginia girls defeated the Maryland squad 73-65. These three Garrett County seniors – shown from the left, Eric Johnson of Northern High School, and Corey Tressler and Cory Bosley, both of Southern High School – contributed to the boys' win, as Tressler scored 12 points, Bosley recorded 9 (on a trio of three-pointers), and Johnson had 7. Two SHS Rams and two NHS Huskies played on Maryland's girls' squad, as Southern's Kayla Nazelrod and Jasmine Scheffel and Northern's Jeseca Gibson and Lakin Weimer each took part.

Lakers Split Twinbill With Cecil; Swept By Cardinals

It was a 1-3 week for the Garrett College baseball team, as the Lakers split a doubleheader with host Cecil Community College on Saturday, and then dropped both ends of a twinbill at Catonsville CC on Tuesday.

The Lakers were hammered by Cecil in Saturday's first game, 13-1, and rallied for three runs in the top of the final inning of the second contest to record a 9-7 win. Against the Cardinals of Catonsville, Garrett dropped the first game, 8-5, and fell 14-4 in the nightcap. The results left the Lakers with an overall record of 13-20.

Garrett held a brief 1-0 lead in the first game against Cecil, but the home team scored six runs in the bottom of the second inning to take the lead for good.

Each team finished with six hits, but the Lakers committed eight errors and allowed 11 unearned runs.

Taylor Billingsley and Brian McGee each had two hits for Garrett, while Spike Austin recorded two for Cecil.

The Lakers built a 6-1 advantage in just an inning and a half in the second game, but allowed Cecil to rally with a single run in the fifth and five more in the sixth to take a 7-6 lead going into the final frame.

But a two-run homer by Danny Flores gave the Lakers an 8-7 edge. They added one more insurance run, and held on in the bottom of the seventh for the win, as reliever Brian McGee recorded three straight outs to earn the win on the mound.

Also recording a homer for Garrett was Craig Canfield, while teammate Tyler Boshart finished with two hits and a pair of RBI.

In Tuesday's opener with Catonsville, the Lakers rallied from a 3-0 deficit with three runs in the top of the third, and they led 5-4 after 3½ innings. But the Cardinals took the lead for good with three runs in the bottom of the fourth.

Billy Largent smacked two homers for Catonsville, while Nick Popp rapped a solo shot. Leading the Lakers' seven-hit effort was Flores, who stroked a two-run blast and a single. Bernie Diaz added a two-run double.

A 2-0 lead for Garrett in the second game was short-lived, as Catonsville scored five runs in the bottom of the first and three each in the second and third. The highlight of the Cardinals' five-run first was another home run by Largent, this time for three runs. His teammate Tom Barker had a two-run shot in the second inning.

Matt Butler hit a double and a single, and Flores singled twice for the Lakers, who were limited to a total of six hits by Adam Kalafas and Kip Lane.

The Lakers are scheduled to play a doubleheader at Frederick CC this Friday, host Potomac State College in a twinbill on Saturday, beginning at 1 p.m., play a single game on Sunday at Potomac State, and travel to CCAC South Campus for two games next Tuesday.

RAMS SAILING THROUGH SEASON – The Southern High School girls' varsity tennis team is cruising through the 2005 campaign so far, mounting a 4-2 record. "Although this is only the second year since we've resumed fielding a team, and the first time many of our girls have picked up a tennis racket, our experienced players are doing a great job helping us teach the newcomers the finer points of the game," SHS coach Diana Ashby said. "We also have a lot of athleticism and strength on the court." Shown from the left, in the front row, are Sarah Stephens, Brittney Scheffel, Stacy Sanders, Jackie Skeweris, and Liz Thayer. In the back row are Hannah Watkins, Katey Gnegy, Meredith Pagenhardt, Jasmine Scheffel, and Stephanie Spano. The Ram girls and the SHS boys (2-4) travel to Fort Hill this afternoon.

Ram Girl Netters Split With Beall, Alco; Boys Lose Two

The Southern High School varsity tennis team had a busy week of action, as the girls took a win over Beall before losing to Allegany, and the boys lost to the Mountaineers and the Campers.

The SHS girls won by a 5-2 margin over host Beall last Thursday, April 21. Each of the Rams' wins, at the Nos. 2-5 singles slots and in second-seed doubles play, came by convincing margins. Sarah Stephens recorded an 8-0 sweep of her No. 2 singles opponent, while third seed Brittney Scheffel romped in an 8-1 triumph.

The Ram boys dropped a 5-2 contest to the Mounties, despite an 8-0 win by Seth Fike at No. 3 singles and an 8-2 second seed doubles combo victory by Brad Lilly/Richie McCartney.

Tuesday's outing against Allegany ended in a 5-2 loss for the Ram girls, while the boys were edged 4-3. The second-seed girls' match was a barnburner, as SHS's Hannah Watkins took a 9-8 (8-6) squeaker. Southern's boys took two of five singles' matches and split in doubles play.

Southern's girls' squad record stands at 4-2, while the boys are 2-4. The Rams are idle until Wednesday, when they are slated to visit Northern's Huskies in Accident.

NHS BLANKED BY BW – The Northern High School girls' varsity softball team sustained a 17-0 home field defeat at the hands of Bishop Walsh's top-ranked Spartans yesterday afternoon. NHS first baseman Casey Fratz is pictured above making a put-out at first, and ready to fire the ball across the diamond to third, past pitcher Sarah Masters, in an unsuccessful attempt to garner a double play. Below is senior second baseman Dani Glotfelty at the plate, shown taking a healthy cut at an incoming pitch. The Huskies were held to two hits in the five-inning contest, while Bishop Walsh collected 19 hits overall as the Spartans strode to their twelfth straight win. Northern's mark falls to 2-8. Husky Girls Sweep BW, Now 6-1; Boys Downed

The girls' squad of the Northern High School varsity tennis program put on a clinic yesterday, as the Huskies swamped visiting Bishop Walsh in a 7-0 sweep. The NHS girls improved to 6-1 with the victory, while the Northern boys fell to 3-4 after their 6-1 loss to the Spartans.

Each of the girls' victories was never in doubt, as NHS singles' top seed Amy Brenneman took an 8-2 win, No. 2 and 3 seeds Lakin Weimer and Amy Lander cruised to 8-0 sweeps, and Becca Stark and Jessica Fratz each took an 8-1 win in fourth- and fifth-seed play.

Northern's No. 1 seed doubles' combo of Erin Brenneman/Keri Bachtel won handily, 8-1, while the second-seeded duo of Nicole Espada/Erica Maust took an 8-2 victory.

Boys' play was a different matter, however. Gonzalo Velasquez's 8-5 win in top-seed singles play was the only bright spot for the Huskies, as the win averted a complete BW sweep.

Both Husky squads are slated to play at Allegany this afternoon.

The Huskies' 400 and 800 relay teams each placed second with times of 56.84 and 2:04, while Shayla Rodeheaver finished third in the discus.

The NHS boys were paced by senior Nick Maxim, who won the 110 high hurdles in 15.66 seconds and the 300 hurdles in 40.5 seconds. He was also second in the 400 dash with a time of 51 seconds.

Also earning a first place for the Huskies was freshman Ryan Bowser in the 3,200-meter run with a time of 10:57, crushing the second-place finisher from Berkeley Springs by 29 seconds. Bowser was also third in the 1,600 run with a time of 4:57.

Other Huskies earning second places were Scott Pusateri in the 1,600 run (4:48), Tyler Warn in the 100 dash (11.91), and the Northern 800 relay team (1:41).

Frostburg Squads Sweep Svc. Club Hoops Tourney

The Oakland Service Club Basketball 5th and 6th Grade Ram Tournament was played recently at Southern Middle and Southern High schools. The double-elimination tourney featured six competing teams in the boys' division, and four teams in the girls' division.

The boys' division was composed of the Oakland All-Stars, Northern All-Stars, Frostburg, Tucker County Heat, Tri-Towns team #1, and Tri-Towns team #2.

The Northern squad opened tourney play by downing Tucker behind a 10-point performance by Austin Doerr and a 6-point tally by Cody Humberson. The win gained the All-Stars a berth in the championship series with Frostburg.

The two squads battled through an overtime barn-burner in their first meeting. Regulation ended with a tie score, and the OT period appeared headed for another deadlock near its conclusion; however Northern All-Star player Matt Gibson sank a clutch three-pointer in the final seconds to give Northern the win and force a second game.

Frostburg took that contest, and the tournament crown, as Jake Shade netted 12 points and Pat Jones scored 8.

Four teams – the Southern All-Stars, Garrett Girls, Frostburg, and Keyser – participated in the girls' division.

The Southern All-Stars defeated the Garrett Girls in a semifinal contest that opened with a hard-fought first half. Southern pulled away in the second half by implementing a full-court press that held the Garrett Girls scoreless over the third quarter as the All-Stars built an insurmountable lead.

The championship game pitted the Southern All-Stars against the Frostburg team. Southern fell behind early and was down by six at the half, but went to its patented full-court press in the third quarter to pull within four points at the end of the stanza.

The fourth quarter went Frostburg's way, as Stephanie Fazenbaker stepped up to convert 8 of 13 free-throw attempts to keep Southern out of reach. Frostburg claimed the championship behind Fazenbaker's game-high 23 points, while Gina Stuck and Alyssa Cowgill led the Southern All-Stars with 6 points and 5 points, respectively.

SERVICE CLUB TOURNEY FINALISTS – The post-season Ram Tournament of the Service Club Basketball League's 5th and 6th grade divisions took place in Oakland recently, and two local squads, the Northern All-Stars and the Southern All-Stars, both advanced to their respective championship rounds. Both teams were downed in the finals by teams from Frostburg. The Northern All-Stars are pictured above, as kneeling from the left are Brody Fike, Steven Holtschneider, Jeffrey Trautwein, Wil Larson, and Matt Gibson. Standing are Austin Doerr, Coach Dennis Gibson, Alex Baker, Cody Humberson, Eric Maxim, Coach Tim Humberson, and Tyler Wilt. Local Wrestlers Finish Second At Nat'l Event

A record number of wrestlers from the Southern Mat Club (five) qualified to compete in the Middle Atlantic Wrestling Association's Eastern National Championships, hosted by Pennsylvania State University April 16 and 17, and three of the five placed second in their respective divisions, which is the most success the club has ever had at the national event.

Jakob "Bubba" Scheffel and Ryan Bennett, both 11-year-old students at Southern Middle School, each came home with a second-place trophy, as did Coy Ozias, a 9-year-old student at Broad Ford Elementary School.

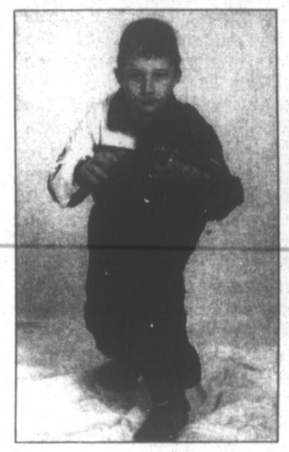
Lex Ozias, a 12-year-old student at Southern Middle, and Scott Cooper, a 10-year-old student at Dennett Road Elementary School, qualified to attend the tournament, but did not place in their divisions.

"Taking five kids to this tournament and watching three of them make it to the final match in their divisions was real confirmation of all of the hard work these kids and the club have done all season," said Darryl Ozias, who coaches the club.

Although wrestling is an individual sport, good training partners are important, according to Coach George Scheffel.

"Behind all of the boys who made it to the nationals at Penn State, there were several other training partners who continued to come to practice three nights a week, even after the regular season was over," said Scheffel. "This shows that wrestling can also be a team effort."

LOCAL YOUTH GRAPPLERS VIE AT PENN STATE — Six youth wrestlers from Garrett County — five from the Southern Mat Club and one from the Northern Youth team — qualified for and competed in the Middle Atlantic Wrestling Association's Eastern National Championships, hosted by Penn State University April 16-17. Of an estimated 12,000 wrestlers from 17 states in the East and Midwest, only 16 in each weight and age class earn the right to compete in this tournament. Three of the six local youth captured second places in their divisions: Jakob Scheffel, Ryan Bennett, and Coy Ozias. Pictured from left above, seated upon the Penn State Nittany Lion, are: Coy Ozias, Lex Ozias, and Jakob Scheffel, all of the Southern Mat Club; Jason Opel of the Northern squad; and Ryan Bennett of the SMC. Pictured below is Scott Cooper, also a member of the SMC. See story for details.



The mat club had more than 50 members this year.

To earn a position on the roster at the Middle Atlantic Championships, the wrestlers had to qualify at two earlier season tournaments. In all, 12,000 wrestlers from 17 states in the East and Midwest vied to make it to the national tournament at Penn State, and only 16 wrestlers in each age and weight class ultimately earned the honor to compete there.

Jason Opel, an 11-year-old student at Northern Middle School, also competed at the tournament and took sixth place in his division.

NORTHERN 6TH, 7TH GRADE B-BALL TEAM WINS TOURNEY – The Northern Sixth and Seventh Grade Girls' Basketball Team won the seventh grade division of the Gene Scaletta Memorial Tournament, held at Westmar High School recently. In the double elimination contest, the young Huskies first defeated Romney, 37-31, then Washington Middle School, 23-22, in an exciting finish: With four seconds on the clock and the Huskies down by one, Kaitlynn Fratz went to the foul line and made one shot to tie and another one shot to win. In game three, the Huskies engaged in another intense match-up with Frankfort, again winning the game from the foul line with 16 seconds remaining, 17-15. In game four, the Huskies played the only other team remaining in the winner's bracket, Braddock Middle School. The game went into a triple overtime with Braddock coming out on top 29-26. The Huskies were then shifted to the losers' bracket and were challenged to win the next three games. The team proceeded to defeat Frankfort, 33-21, then did the same to Braddock, handing that team its first defeat in the tournament with a score of 39-26. The final game of the championship was a defensive battle with both teams pressuring throughout the game. In the end, the Huskies came out on top to win the tournament 28-14. "We have had an incredible year with this team and have made history for Northern girls' basketball," said Coach Pete Brosnihan. "It has been rewarding to teach girls who are willing to work so hard and demand so much of themselves. We are excited about the future of these players." Also providing coaching was Steve Fratz. The team is pictured above. In the first row, from left, are Chelsi Kling, Morgan Brosnihan, Kaitlynn Fratz, Adria Graham, Melissa Myers, and Coach Brosnihan. Second row, same order: Coach Fratz, Amber Miller, Alyssa Rounds, Jennifer Shaffer, and Terra McKenzie. Not available for the photo were players Eulinda Logan and Brittany Mallow. JESSE BROADWATER

Broadwater Wins Again In Archery Event

Jesse Broadwater of Old Frostburg Road competed in the Pittsburgh Archery Classic last month, where he won first place. Normally held in Atlantic City, N.J., this is the first time the event was held in Pittsburgh.

The two-day competition involves shooting distances of 40, 50, and 60 yards indoors. After the last round of shooting, a shoot-off is held for a Ford Mustang. Broadwater won the car last year, and came in second in the two-day competition, missing first by one point.

Broadwater also won the Lancaster Archery Classic in Lancaster, Pa., in January.

The Pittsburgh Classic is one of the biggest shoots held by the National Field Archery Association. Other association-sponsored shoots include the Indoor Nationals in Kentucky, the Outdoor Nationals in South Dakota, and the Redding Trail Shoot in Redding, Calif.

Broadwater has been competing since the age of 10. He is currently 21, and has been shooting professionally since he was 18. He shoots for Hoyt Bow Company, which is one of the largest bow companies in the world. He has won many competitions and set many records.

Broadwater's next competition is the Redding Trail Shoot, which is a marked 3-D shoot with distances of over 100 yards.

Broadwater and his father currently own Champion Archery Pro Shop along Old Frostburg Road.

NESSELRODT NAILS BIG BIRD – Nine-year-old Justin Nesselrodt, son of Missi and Shawn Nesselrodt of Kitzmiller, shot this 20-pound turkey during the recent Youth Day hunt. The big tom, which boasted a nine-inch beard, fell to Justin's 20-gauge shotgun pellets on private land near Kitzmiller, where the boy was hunting under the supervision of his father, and his grandfather Robert Paugh.

GCHD Proposes

year, however, the General Assembly passed legislation allowing the caps to be increased to $160 for wells and $300 for food service permits.

The director noted the amount of work involved in on-site inspections of wells and food service establishments. Environmental Health personnel often have to make six or seven trips to a construction site to test a new well before it is approved.

"[Even the] $160 is not even close to the actual cost involved in the inspections," Glotfelty said.

Sherrard also stressed the importance of the food service inspections. High-priority sites, such as nursing homes, are inspected three times a year. Moderate priority sites are inspected two times a year, and low priority once a year. Temporary permits are issued to for-profit concessions, such as those set up at the Garrett County Fair and Autumn Glory Festival.

Non-profit organizations, such as the Lions Club, are not charged permit fees, but the Health Department still inspects their food services.

"We have someone at the fair every day of the week," Sherrard said about inspections conducted by his department.

Because of those diligent inspections, there are very few "outbreaks" at the fair, festivals, and other events, Glotfelty noted.

Sherrard said the Health Department puts a lot of time into the events and that new events involving food services were on the increase.

He added that the department would like to be able to hire full-time sanitarians to help with the department's work load. In the past, only contracted sanitarians working without Health Department benefits have been used, making it difficult to retain workers.

Commissioner Fred Holliday asked how the proposed new fees compared to other counties' fees. Sherrard said many counties were in the process of increasing their fees now that they may do so. Currently, Allegany County charges $150 for a high-priority food service permit, $135 for a moderate, $100 for a temporary permit.

Garrett County's fee increase proposal must be approved by its board of health and the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. The commissioners will draft a formal letter requesting the increases and submit it to the board during its meeting next month. If the board agrees, the county will then seek approval from the DHMH.

The Garrett County Health Department's FY 2005 operating budget was $771,000. For FY 2006, the department has requested $804,000, according to County Administrator Monty Pagenhardt. County officials are in the process of approving the budget.

The commissioners will present the county's FY 2006 budget on June 14 at 10 a.m. in their meeting room at the courthouse. The county's new budget year begins on July 1.

Family Raises Understanding Of CF; May Named Awareness Month

by Beth L. Bowers

May has been named National Cystic Fibrosis Awareness Month, and families like Sydney Willig's are trying to raise the profile of cystic fibrosis (CF) by creating a greater understanding among the public, and to inform as many people as possible about the research, care, and educational programs offered by the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, which was founded in 1955.

SYDNEY WILLIG

In 2003 when Sydney was born, the state of Pennsylvania was testing all newborns for various diseases, one of which was CF. So after enjoying their "perfectly healthy" baby girl for two weeks, Lisa and Greg, who are also part-time residents of Deep Creek Lake, got a call from their doctor explaining that Sydney had tested positive for CF.

Cystic fibrosis is a life-threatening, genetic disease affecting approximately 30,000 individuals in the United States. A defective gene causes the body to produce an abnormally thick, sticky mucus, due to the faulty transport of sodium chloride (salt) within cells lining organs such as the lungs and pancreas.

"The first adjustment for us was just the mental realization of dealing with and understanding CF," said Lisa. "We went from having a healthy little girl to one whose future was unclear. After our first visit to Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh, we were emotionally drained."

For the first two months, the Willigs went to Children's two to three times a week to learn, understand, and deal with CF. On their second visit, they learned about enzymes, which they had to administer before every bottle. Now, Sydney takes enzymes almost every time she eats a meal or very fatty foods. They also perform chest physical therapy on Sydney. This is a form of airway clearance done by vigorous clapping on the back and chest to dislodge the thick mucus from the lungs. They also use a nebulizer to keep her airways clean and healthy.

"After two years, the adjustments are just part of our lives, and Sydney believes she is like any other child," said Lisa. "Sydney usually is pretty good about everything, which is probably because we have been doing this since she was two weeks old. I am sure as she gets older, she will figure out that not all children need enzymes to eat or chest physical therapy. But we will face that time when we get there."

An individual must inherit two defective CF genes, one from each parent, to have CF. Each time two carriers conceive there is a 25% chance that their child will have CF; a 50% chance that the child will be a carrier; and a 25% chance that the child will be a non-carrier, according to the CF Foundation.

Lisa's younger sister Jenny had tested positive as a carrier of CF. This caused her husband Ken to be tested and he was negative. So, if they have children, the children could be carriers of CF but not have CF, Lisa explained.

She added that she and Greg have a one in four chances of having another baby with CF though natural conception. "So far, we have been lucky with Sydney, but CF affects each person differently, so the next time could be worse or better."

At this stage, Sydney does not have any limitations, although her family is cautious with her around people who are sick and especially around cigarette smoke.

Finding day care was difficult for Lisa. She said she wanted Sydney to be around few children at first until her immune system starts to build up before she is exposed to a lot of children in school.

According to Lisa, her entire family has come a long way since the diagnosis.

"Education is the biggest plus for everyone involved," she said. "My parents and sister have come to Children's for a visit to talk with the doctors and ask their own questions. CF has made us appreciate Sydney even more than before. Personally, I have attacked the situation by working with the CF Foundation with fundraising. I believe it is my job to do whatever is necessary to help in finding a cure."

The Willigs with collaboration with Wisp Ski Area have organized an annual CF ski race at the Wisp. This year the race raised $1,200, nearly doubling last year's total, said Lisa.

Greg said that through this race they have met many people who have been affected by CF. Some race in memory of someone, and many tell him the stories of others who are currently afflicted with the disease.

The CF race for next year has already been scheduled for Presidents' Day weekend of next year.

Another popular fundraiser for CF are the Great Strides walks held in May.

More than 500 walk sites are set up across the country to raise money and awareness for CF. Since the first Great Strides walk in 1989, more than $150 million has been raised to support the vital research and care programs of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

The Western Pennsylvania chapter will hold 15 different walk sites set up in western Pennsylvania.

Persons may visit www.cff.org, or call 800-FIGHT CF for the closest walk.

When the CF Foundation was established, children with the disease rarely lived to attend elementary school. Now because of better care and various therapies, the median life expectancy for people with CF is in the mid 30s, according to the CF Foundation. The number of adults with CF has steadily grown, and today 40% of the CF population is age 18 and older.

People with CF have a variety of symptoms, including very salty-tasting skin, persistent cough, wheezing or shortness of breath, and an excessive appetite but poor weight gain.

CF occurs in approximately one of every 3,500 births. More than 80% of patients are diagnosed by the age of 3, although nearly 10% of newly diagnosed cases are those 18 and older.

Since 1965, 65 Roses® is what some children call their disease because the words are much easier for them to pronounce. But making it easier to pronounce doesn't necessarily make it easier to live with, said a CF spokesperson.

The site cysticfibrosis.com reminds children and those with CF that, "if you have CF – it doesn't have to have you!"

THE GARRETT COUNTY CHAPTER OF THE RED HAT SOCIETY gathered Monday at the Book Mark'et in Oakland to celebrate Red Hat Society Day to promote a new publication titled The Red Hat Society Laugh Lines. The nationwide organization began a few years ago when a small group of women decided to greet middle age with "verve, humor, and élan." The members' philosophy includes the belief that silliness is the comedic relief of life. The society has grown to more than 40,000 chapters, with about 1 million members in more than 25 countries. Shown here from left to right in their colorful purple and red attire are Betty Rouse, Patty Bobo, Pamela Dixon, Pat White-Moore, Patty Glotfelty, Wanda Sigler, Lydia Bowman, Ruby Stademan, and Gayle Miller. The local members also enjoyed a recent lunch together at the German Village, Deep Creek Lake. Photo by Glenn Tolbert.

Chick Handsaker: The Surprising History Of A Quiet Garrett Countian

By Mary Sincell McEwen

In today's world of high-tech communications, countless types of entertainment, and cutting-edge television and cable programs that produce such things as "American idols" or "reality" TV, it is always interesting to take a look back at the early days of mass communication entertainment, when television was always live, or, for the truly live show seeker, a Vaudeville-type act could still be caught in any city at any time. Those were the days of burgeoning talent and escalating ideas, the jumping-off point of what is considered "entertainment" in this day and age.

Locals might be surprised to know that one man living in Garrett County has quite a history with those early days of American entertainment. Charles ("Chick") Handsaker lives a quiet life at Deep Creek Lake. He sings in the choir at St. Mark's Lutheran Church, and he regularly attends Oakland Rotary meetings, having been a Rotarian for 33 years now. A widower for more than a decade, Chick enjoys visits from his two grown children and their families. When they are not here, Chick has his dog, a feisty and excitable mutt named Tucker, who has a penchant for running off.

This quiet day-to-day existence belies Chick's history, though, which is full of travel, show business, rubbing shoulders with celebrities, and heading up the entertainment at Hyde Park, N.Y., for Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt during World War II. Chick's experiences in this life would certainly fill a book or two. The focus of this writing, however, is on his life as a singer.

Chick was born with a fine tenor voice, and was encouraged by his family to explore that talent. He grew up in Nevada, Iowa, a town of about 3,300 people at that time (now about 7,000). His entry into show business happened in the fall of 1941, just as World War II was darkening the door. Chick was working at Iowa State College when he was approached about his fine singing voice.

"They asked me if I'd like to audition for a singing group, and I said sure. So we went into a men's room and I sang for them. In a little bit, they came to me and said, 'Can you leave for Chicago tonight?' I actually didn't leave until the next day, but I did go and I joined the Four Blenders." The singers rehearsed for three days, and then opened at the Stevens Hotel in Chicago for their debut.

Chick and his fellow singers — Jim Rafferty, Billy Foster, and Arch McGee — hit the entertainment circuit, performing the popular western ballads of the day. They were singing at Fort Slocum in New Rochelle, N.Y., when they heard of the attack on Pearl Harbor. It wasn't long until the group was diminished by one, as McGee joined the service. After his exit, the singers changed their group name to the Blendtones, and continued performing.

It was during this time when a childhood friend of Chick's by the name of Neva Patterson introduced him to her friend, Fran Dane. (Neva, who also grew up in Nevada, Iowa, went on to have a lengthy career in show business, appearing in such movies as An Affair to Remember and All the President's Men, to name just two of multiple film and television programs she has been in over the last 50 years.) Fran was also in the business, and was a student at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York (where incidentally she was a friend of Miss Betty Joan Perske, better known later as Lauren Bacall). Chick and Fran hit it off, and were steady companions, swept up in the entertainment world together.

The war raged on, and Chick and his friends wanted to do their part. He went into basic training at Fort Ontario, N.Y., and was eventually assigned to a post at Hyde Park, N.Y. This was the home of Eleanor and Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

"We served as the honorary guard at Hyde Park," Chick said. "To be in that guard, a soldier had to be at least six feet tall and have an I.Q. of 130 or higher. In other words, we had to be officer material."

Chick served in that capacity from the spring of 1943 until a month after FDR's death in 1945. He was in charge of the entertainment for the troops there, as well as for the Roosevelts when they were home.

To entertain the troops, Chick relied on his show business experience to write and direct variety programs, starring his fellow servicemen, who played all the roles (there were no women in the guard, so the men fulfilled those roles, too. See photos.) The shows were sometimes also given for the Roosevelts.

He also had the important duty of providing private entertainment for the Roosevelts as they took rest at the estate.

"The Roosevelts would be in the dining room having their meal, and we would be in the next room. We had a piano, saxophone, bass fiddle, and drums, and I sang. We performed while they dined."

He spoke personally with Mrs. Roosevelt on a number of occasions, and would also introduce her before the shows, and she would in turn open the programs.

The honorary guard members were responsible for protecting the Hyde Park estate, and had regular drills and other maneuvers to stay on their toes. However, they also found themselves with a chore they may have not expected to perform as soldiers.

"We spent a lot of time chasing after that dog," Chick said, referring to Fala, the famed presidential Scottie. "He would get loose and run off, and we would be out there on the grounds trying to find him. That happened a lot."

The singing soldier was of course granted leave time, most of which he used to visit Fran, who lived near New York City. In time, and after convincing her parents that Chick was The One, the young lovers were joined in marriage on June 11, 1944. (They remained husband and wife in a happy and contented union until Fran's death in 1994.)

In April of 1945, the Hyde Park Honor Guard had the sobering duty of accompanying FDR's funerary caisson as it arrived at the estate. The guard was on duty for the national memorial service, and Chick was stationed at the gate. He was forced to turn away one member of Roosevelt's cabinet because the man was not in possession of the required invitation.

"It was a pretty uncomfortable spot to be in," Chick said. "But I had my orders." The cabinet member was later admitted when the proper identification was received.

The guard was required to stay at Hyde Park only a month after FDR's passing. The war was ending, and Chick again turned his attention to show business. The Blendtones were still together, but now could focus on their singing careers without the worry of war.

The Blendtones added a girl to their group after the war, as well as singer Jimmy Pollock, who had sung with Chick's partner Jim Rafferty in the Broadway production and movie version of Winged Victory, an Army Air Corps musical.

The group traveled extensively. They got a "regular gig" at the Copacabana in Miami, Fla. There, serving as the staff singers for six months, they performed with a number of celebrities, including Danny Kaye.

A HUMBLE MAN, Chick Handsaker does not boast about his interesting career as a singer and entertainer, but will talk about it if asked. He keeps his memorabilia organized in photo albums, and has a sharper memory than many of his peers as he recalls his days behind the microphone, on stage, and on live television.

A MEMBER OF THE HONOR GUARD AT HYDE PARK, Chick was in the presence of both Eleanor Roosevelt and the president on several occasions. He was also a witness to the president as he struggled with the effects of polio. The world was not completely aware of the severity of FDR's physical limitations, but Chick watched as a muscular aide would lift the president's entire body out of his car, which was, incidentally, specially adapted for total hand operation. The grounds of Hyde Park were beautiful, Chick said, and he and his guardsmen knew them well, marching across the area countless times.

Shortly after that job, the Blendtones disbanded and the singers returned to New York.

"There were two guys up there who had a group. They asked me to bring one of my girls and see about the sound," Chick said. "It was a good sound, so we joined up and formed the Day Dreamers."

The Day Dreamers had a good run. They sang at numerous clubs, as well as on National Network Radio. They were a part of the early days of television, appearing on shows including Broadway Open House, and Texaco Star Theater with Milton Berle.

It was during this time in Chick's career that his voice

HAPPIER NEW YEAR

THE PRESIDENT AND MRS. ROOSEVELT

A CHRISTMAS CARD TO KEEP – The members of the Hyde Park Honor Guard were each presented with this Christmas greeting from their president in December 1943. It came with a new handkerchief, which Chick keeps in the photo album next to the card. Note that the Roosevelts wished the soldiers a "happier" new year. Certainly an appropriate sentiment at the height of WWII.

THE GUARDSMEN AT HYDE PARK were a special lot, chosen only if they stood taller than six feet and had an I.Q. higher than 130. They had a number of duties, mainly protecting the area from any enemy, but also doing such things as chasing the Roosevelts' wayward dog, Fala. Chick is pictured at right, standing with a fellow soldier with whom he went through basic training.

Mother's Day May 8, 2005

KEEPING MORALE HIGH among the soldiers was part of Chick's job at Hyde Park. World War II was at full throttle, and he had the task of helping the men deal with the tension. Having lots of experience with stage shows, he was able to write and produce a number of entertaining presentations. Sometimes these shows would be performed for the Roosevelts, too. The shots here are of a show titled "Oh, My Guard!" Chick and two other guardsmen wrote the show and performed it for the president. It went over so well that they repeated it at two schools and for the Local Nursing Council of the War Service. (Note that the players are all men — Chick was well-versed in showgirl productions and had some fun teaching the guys the proper steps.)

PREPARING FOR FDR'S FINAL REST – As a member of the honor guard at Hyde Park, the home of Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt, Chick was closely involved in the sad task of FDR's burial in 1945. As is shown above, the flowers came by the truckload, and the grave was dug a few days before the arrival of the body. In the photo below, Chick and his fellow guardsmen stand at attention as FDR's caisson enters Hyde Park.

AN ART COLLECTION THAT GOES ON AND ON – Chick's house at Deep Creek, which he and his wife renovated from basically a run-down fishing cabin to a magnificent and spacious home, is full of artworks collected by the couple throughout their nearly 50-year marriage. They loved to travel, visiting all corners of the planet and collecting art along the way. Chick is pictured in his living room, where the display is extensive. The Boy on a Ribbon, a bronze sculpture by the famed Tom Merrifield, is shown at center. Chick's wife Fran spotted this work at a theatre in England and was so drawn to it that she sought out Merrifield. The artist, known internationally for his bronze sculptures, met with the couple and offered to sell them the sixth version of the work. After warming up to the friendly pair, however, Merrifield ended up selling them the No. 2 sculpture in that series, a coveted piece. The artist himself kept No. 1. The jade horse on the table below the sculpture was obtained by the Handsakers in China's Forbidden City. Much of the art work on the walls of the home is by the Jennewein artists — both C. Paul Jennewein and his daughter, Mimi. The Jenneweins were family friends first of the was recorded along with none other than Ella Fitzgerald. The Day Dreamers provided back-up for her on albums produced in 1949.

"We were on four sides," Chick said. The albums still exist, but are very rare. Chick's son-in-law was able to put the tunes on a CD, however, so the family can hear the music yet today.

The Day Dreamers continued on their show business trek. In June of 1950, The singers were invited to perform on the Columbia Broadcast Company (CBS) program titled The Show Goes On. Robert Q. Lewis, a famous early TV personality, was the host. After the Day Dreamers' appearance, Chick received a personal letter from Robert Q.

"We had wonderful reports on the show," wrote Lewis, "and I know you'll be happy to hear that lots of good things were said about you. Hope to be working with you soon again."

And indeed, the Day Dreamers did soon work again with Robert Q. In fact, they earned a fairly long gig on a CBS television show called Robert Q's Matinee, again hosted by Lewis.

"It was an hour-long show that was on five afternoons a week," Chick said. "It was held in one of the Broadway theatres. Rosemary Clooney was also on the show. We would sing one song with her and then one by ourselves.

"This was in the days before teleprompters or cue cards," Chick explained. "And it was live. So that meant we had to memorize both the words and our harmony for each day's show."

The Day Dreamers capitalized on their popularity, Chick said, mainly by bookings in night clubs across the United States and into Canada. They knew they had "made it" near the end of that year.

"Vaudevillians always thought that the ultimate date was to play the Palace Theater on Broadway," Chick said. "The Day Dreamers made it there in December of 1950."

A review of their Palace performance read as follows:

Day Dreamers Stand Out

The Day Dreamers, a four act (three boys, one fem) have possibilities of becoming one of the top singing groups of all the new ones that have recently been caught. Besides looking good (the gal is a sight for sore eyes), they work well, show listenable arrangements and project comparatively easily . . . The audience payed [sic] off with hefty mitts.

During this time of performing and traveling, Fran came along with her husband. They had a daughter during these years, named Julie. When she was about to start school, Fran discovered that another baby was on the way. Traveling was too hard on the family, now that Julie needed to enroll and another baby was about to be born. So Chick said goodbye to show business in the early 1950s. Their son Charles II was born around that time.

He and Fran went on to lead a full and fascinating life, even beyond show business. They owned and operated a shop, traveled the world over, collected antiques and works of art, and built homes in Texas, North Carolina, and Florida. Of course they reared their children as well, and watched them go on with their lives, marry, and have their own children. The came to Garrett County in the early 1990s.

Fran died of cancer in 1994, just four months shy of the couple's 50th anniversary. Chick has led a bachelor's life since then.

And still he sings. In the choir at St. Mark's, and on the CD player, his voice blending with Ella's and his co-Dreamers, at a time when entertainment was just branching out, just making it to the airwaves of television. He was part of it, and he is now part of Garrett County. And we're certainly glad to have him.

Danes, Chick's wife's family, and then of the Handsakers. Chick is shown above holding a book of C. Paul Jennewein's earlier works, which incidentally includes a drawing of Fran for which she posed when she was a young woman. (All present-day photos by John McEwen.)

THE DAY DREAMERS MAKE IT – It was common knowledge in the post-war age that any entertainer who could get a gig at the RKO Palace on Broadway, New York City, had made it to the big time. The Day Dreamers did indeed make it, appearing at the Palace in December 1950 and earning great reviews for their performance. By that time, these singers were old hands at the stage scene, having appeared on live television numerous times, and singing back-up for none other than Ella Fitzgerald. It wasn't long after this high mark in Chick's career that he said goodbye to the stage, though, turning his attention to his two children and his devoted wife.

State Tourism Office Launches New Web Site

The Maryland Office of Tourism Development (OTD), an agency within the Division of Tourism, Film and the Arts in the Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development (DBED), has launched a newly designed web site that makes it easier for visitors to plan a trip to Maryland.

When exploring www.visitmaryland.org, consumers will find an expanded outdoor section, convenient links to county tourism offices, a streaming video of the state's tourism commercials, Maryland merchandise, and a section for hot deals/special packages on the state's official tourism web site, noted a spokesperson.

"Maryland's diverse geography, outstanding natural resources, unique history, world-class attractions, and friendly people make our state a popular choice for visitors because we offer something for everyone," said Governor Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. "Tourism's new web site will help visitors and residents alike find the perfect outing and discover Maryland's unparalleled beauty. We encourage everyone to browse the site, then 'Seize the Day Off' in Maryland."

The site also contains travel itineraries that highlight the state's rich heritage, and multicultural and family-oriented activities. Three-day driving tours along Maryland's Civil War trails, sailing trips to view Chesapeake Bay lighthouses, and family-friendly outings to area farms are but a few suggested itineraries.

According to DBED, tourism continues to be one of Maryland's fastest growing industries. In calendar year 2003, the most recent year for which statistics are available, more than 20 million people visited Maryland and generated an estimated $9.3 billion in direct tourist expenditures. During that year, the Maryland tourism industry generated more than $787.9 million in state and local taxes and provided 112,570 jobs to Maryland residents.

To have events and travel information mailed, the public is invited to call 1-800-719-5900 or go to visit maryland.org and click on "order vacation guides."

Message from the Dean's Desk — Garrett College

by Dr. Virginia Broaddus
Dean of Academic Affairs

With six inches of snow having fallen in April's last full weekend, we in Garrett County can be counted on to handle any kind of surprise – or any kind of adventure. In fact, at Garrett College we're ready for surprises and adventures galore, especially those brought to us by our students.

Our Adventure Sport students are naturally adept at shepherding us through adventures, something I witnessed first hand on April 16 when I had the honor of being the official starter for the ASI Biathlon. Coordinated by students in Dr. Michael Swiderski's Program Planning and Management class, the third annual "run and ride" took 11 participants through an adventurous trek on bikes and on foot. This year's event was even more notable for having a kids' race, and all participants crossed the finish line to the glory of Jerry McGee's playing the bagpipes in his inimitable manner. When the event was over, we celebrated the runners/riders and applauded as they won prizes generously donated by several local businesses. Equally importantly, we celebrated GC's students, whose tireless work created a day marked by cheers, triumph, and the best sort of adventure.

Days of cheer and triumph, as well as some adventure, are also in store for several of GC's Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology students. I've recently learned from Kevin Dodge that several of our current or former students (Jesse Wise, Kellee Gomola, and Travis Buckel) have gotten temporary jobs with Maryland's DNR Wildlife and Heritage Division. The students won three of four highly coveted openings working on a black bear bait station project. Another of our students, Anna Galik, has gotten a super summer job with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service doing vegetation sampling in Canaan Valley National Wildlife Refuge, while Will Gallagher will be working for DNR's Lake Management program on Deep Creek Lake this summer. Will joins Sarah Crouse, a GC graduate who was president of the Student Government Association during her time with us, in this new venture. All of the students have our full support and admiration for landing positions that allow them to follow their hearts and do work that they love.

Our admiration also goes out this week to our nine newest members of Phi Theta Kappa, the honor society for two-year college students. We've welcomed Connie House, Andrea Wade, Jonathan Ziegler, Kerri Jurimae, Dan Tichinell, Leroy Friend, Renee Savage, Rachel Stanton, and Mary Vaughn to the ranks of students who have achieved academic excellence at Garrett College. Next week, we'll take that admiration one more step as Professor Beth Luers and I accompany Jodi McClintock and Glenda Sisler to the Phi Theta Kappa All American Nominees Awards Banquet at Turf Valley Resort. Jodi and Glenda, both education majors who plan on continuing their academic work at Frostburg, have distinguished themselves in applying for this national scholarship competition, and we're honored to accompany them on this phase of their academic adventures.

In a different way, adventures are in store for six South African educators who are visiting the county for the next several weeks. In conjunction with Prince George's Community College and the Garrett County Public Schools (GCPS), we're welcoming these teachers to our community so that they can learn from our own public school educators, as well as those at GC, and carry that knowledge back to their communities. As students throughout the county come to know our guests, they'll be occasionally surprised and always intrigued to learn of all the differences between education in South African and America – as well as of the similarities. Indeed, all of us here at GC and in the GCPS, as well as the educators visiting us, have a commitment to ensuring the best possible learning experiences for our students.

Awesome learning experiences and adventures clearly abound at Garrett College and in Garrett County. Whether our students plan events or whether they're planning their careers, they're steering toward success. While we at Garrett may be pleasantly surprised by the twists and turns that their paths sometimes take, we're never surprised but instead always delighted by their terrific success.

Ramp Cook-Off, Tasting Slated At Discovery Center

The Discovery Center at Deep Creek Lake State Park will host the annual Ramp Cook-Off this Saturday, April 30, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. (This event has been moved from its previous location at Swallow Falls and Herrington Manor state parks.)

A hand-picked judges' panel will taste and compare the ramp dish entries beginning at 11 a.m., and the public will have the opportunity to taste entries by noon, once the judging process is completed.

"The Ramp Cook-Off celebrates Garrett County's rich folk life heritage," said a state parks spokesperson. "Ramp gathering, preserving, and eating has long been an eagerly awaited sign of spring in Appalachia."

The family-oriented event will include live music and additional family-oriented activities.

Chefs may register in person at the park the morning of the contest. Electricity will be available at the site of the cooking contest. For further information, persons may call the Discovery Center at 301-387-7067.

CURVES BATTLES CANCER BY REACHING OUT – Curves For Women captured the American Cancer Society's "Tell a Friend" trophy recently by contacting 266 women to encourage them to get an annual mammogram. The cancer prevention effort is geared at encouraging women to get their yearly mammograms and educating women on the importance of getting a mammogram, sources where they can get mammograms, and information for women who may not have insurance. The program also trains women on how to talk with women they know to spread the word of proper breast health. Special Tell a Friend pens were awarded to Curves employees Becky Swartzentruber and Regina Sines, who were recognized for contacting five women each, and Suzanne Nicolas, who was the team leader for the project. Shown from the left are Curves employees Nova Stonesifer, Nicolas, and Amanda Jenkins. Other employees recognized but not pictured were Chloie Holtschneider, Kristin White, Christine Nichols, Daisy Murray, and Norma Byrd. Persons, businesses, or organizations interested in participating in the free Tell a Friend program may call Tenna Taylor of the local chapter of the American Cancer Society at 1-888-227-9979.

The crew of the No. 97 Ford celebrates as driver Kurt Busch heads to Victory Lane following the Subway Fresh 500 Saturday night at Phoenix International Raceway.

DOMINANT in the desert

Kurt Busch claims victory at Phoenix

Cox News Service

Defending Nextel Cup champion Kurt Busch found his way back to Victory Lane Saturday night in a dominating performance under the lights at Phoenix International Raceway.

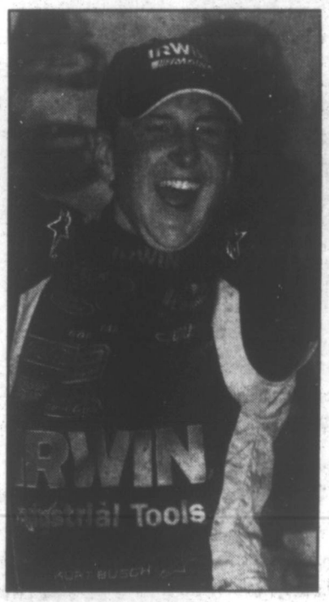
Busch's strong outing, in which he led 219 of the 312 laps, marked his 12th Cup victory and his first this season. Busch was able to hold off a challenge from Michael Waltrip in the closing laps of the race to secure a victory.

Busch's No. 97 Ford was one of the strongest cars in the field. On two occasions, Busch fell to the ninth spot but was able to make up the lost ground and take the lead.

Also driving a strong car was Roush Racing teammate Greg Biffle, who led laps 145 to 147. Biffle's chance for a victory came to end when he collided on pit road with the car driven by Mike Bliss. Biffle ended up with a 41st-place finish.

Waltrip finished second, just 2.315 seconds back, while Jeff Burton finished third. Dale Earnhardt Jr. had a good night, finishing fourth, while Brian Vickers finished fifth.

The victory Saturday lifted Busch from fourth to second in the Nextel Cup standings. The Roush Racing driver heads into Sunday's race at Talladega Superspeedway trailing Cup leader Jimmie Johnson by 173 points.



Defending Nextel Cup champion Kurt Busch rejoices after his first victory of the 2005 season, the 12th of his Cup career.

NOTEBOOK

No spoiler complaints from Jimmie Johnson

Cox News Service

While several top drivers, including Dale Earnhardt Jr. and Bobby Labonte, have complained about the new shorter spoiler that NASCAR mandated for this year, points leader Jimmie Johnson isn't among them.

He said he didn't really notice much difference in the way his No. 48 Chevrolet drives until the race at Texas, and he's not sure what changed there.

"Was it just that race track or was it because now [the weather] is warming up and the track was hot and slick?" he said. "We have a new tire. It's really hard to place the blame in any one area."

The inch-shorter spoiler takes away downforce, which NASCAR believes leads to better competition on the track because it puts more emphasis on the driver controlling the car. Johnson sees that as a challenge.

"The harder it is for the driver to drive it, the harder it is for the teams to set up the cars," he said. "It changes the game and makes it obviously more difficult. As hard as it was for me and as frustrated as I was throughout the race, I really like that it's harder for the teams and drivers, and I think it will help us."

Bowyer makes debut

Clint Bowyer, the Emporia, Kan., dirt-track racer who burst onto the racing scene with a second-place finish in his ARCA debut at Nashville Superspeedway two years ago, made his first run in NASCAR's elite division Saturday.

Bowyer, the regular driver of Richard Childress' No. 2 Chevrolet in the Busch Series, finished 22nd in the No. 33 Cup car in the Subway Fresh 500.

Bowyer had never raced at Phoenix, but it wasn't his first time at a new track this season.

"I have gone to a couple tracks for the first time or second and overcome the adversity that comes along with the unknown," he said. "I am feeling really confident as a driver right now and look forward to every track, whether it is for the first time or even if I haven't had good success there in the past."

Tough break for Rusty

A disappointing finish in Saturday's race dropped Rusty Wallace seven spots in the points standings.

Wallace had been enjoying a strong start to the 2005 season. Before Saturday's race, Wallace had four top-10s, six top-15s and was third in the standings, the highest he had been since April 2002.

But a 36th-place finish in the Subway Fresh 500 dropped him to 10th in the standings.

"Our goals are to win and be a part of 'The Chase,' " he said.

NASCAR's future on television up in the air

By JEFF GLUCK
Cox News Service

Television executives at NBC are celebrating the return of professional football to their network.

Good for them. All that does is open the door for NASCAR to get better coverage on another network.

If you missed it, the NFL announced last week that ABC's "Monday Night Football" will move to ESPN in 2006, and "Sunday Night Football" will switch from ESPN to NBC.

After losing popular shows like "Friends" and "Seinfeld," NBC has dropped to the bottom of the TV ratings race among the four major networks. Certainly, NBC execs now believe they can make a comeback, thanks to the return of professional football.

But lost in Monday's hoopla about the NFL was the fate of NASCAR. The peacock network's TV deal with NASCAR runs through the end of the 2006 season.

NBC will have "Sunday Night Football" in 2006. NBC's NASCAR races on the West Coast have been stretching into Sunday nights during football season.

You do the math. NBC is probably no longer interested in continuing its NASCAR coverage beyond next year.

Since NASCAR currently splits its TV contract into halves (Fox has the spring/summer portion, NBC has the late summer/fall), the sport could be looking for a new suitor.

Fox and CBS already have the NFL on fall Sundays, so those networks are out of the running for the new second-half contract.

That leaves the ABC/ESPN duo, conveniently with no programming during NFL games in 2006.

ESPN has already expressed interest in NASCAR. Of course, the cable network broadcast the sport for many years, before auto racing began to move toward the mainstream.

As big as NASCAR has gotten now, it's become impossible for ABC and ESPN (both owned by Disney) to ignore it. ESPN's SportsCenter has already upgraded its NASCAR coverage this season after pretending stock-car racing didn't exist the past few years.

Even more intriguing is Fox's current deal with the France family. NASCAR's contract with Fox reportedly runs through 2008, but the sport can opt out of the deal after 2006.

Should NASCAR negotiate a long-term, full-season deal with ABC/ESPN, it's a possibility that we could see stock-car racing on a different channel in 2007.

Does it matter what network NASCAR is on? If it's ESPN or ABC, it absolutely matters.

ESPN aggressively (and annoyingly) promotes all of its shows, and it doesn't matter whether it's a program people would actually watch, or whether it's a ridiculous, stupid idea like a fictional drama about poker players.

Many stick-and-ball sports fans are not interested in NASCAR. But when ESPN keeps shoving stock-car racing in their viewers' faces, it will grow the sport into the mainstream even more.

And that's a very, very good thing for NASCAR's future.

Of course, any deal with ABC/ESPN is far off for now. In the meantime, NASCAR fans should be concerned about what next season will bring.

Will all of the Chase for the Cup races be pushed over to TNT so that NBC can show football on Sunday nights?

The biggest conflict next year would be the season-ending race, which is currently held near Miami. NASCAR has already announced that this year's race will end under the lights, setting a new prime-time precedent for its Chase for the Cup finale.

It would be a shame to shift the championship race to TNT to accommodate a regular-season football game. Let's hope NASCAR and NBC figure something out before that happens.

NASCAR remains mum on details of infraction

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

The facts surrounding the big carburetor on Johnny Sauter's Busch Series car at Texas Motor Speedway continue to trickle in. NASCAR officials confirmed last week that Woody Neese, the inspector responsible for checking the team's carburetor, is no longer an employee of the sanctioning body.

NASCAR Vice President Jim Hunter declined to reveal the findings of an internal investigation, but he did say that the team's engine tuner, the person who usually would swap a carburetor, was not involved in this case.

The engines in Sauter's Dodge are prepared by Ernie Elliott, and one of Elliott's employees is assigned to the car. Hunter answered, "absolutely not," when queried about any involvement by Elliott's organization.

While there seems to have been some sort of sleight of hand during practice, Hunter said that isn't something Elliott or his employees would try.

"Ernie Elliott's reputation is solid with NASCAR," Hunter said.

Sauter's team plans to appeal its penalties, which include a four-week suspension of crew chief Joe Shear Jr., and the loss of all points and earnings from the Texas race.

Mmm, I can just sniff spring in the air! What a glorious time of the year to begin our new life of retirement. We can start with spring-cleaning. Let s call the kids and see if they want some of these items we have accumulated. If not, we will just donate them to the needy.

As the average age of the population of our country increases, the movement to downsize i ncreases as well. Less to maintain means more time for a relaxed life style and time to volunteer still vital energy for worthy causes in the community.

There is also more time to give to family& not only to children and grandchildren, but also to God s family. As earthly baggage is downsized, there is time and energy to increase participation in God s earthly kingdom& t o serve as spiritual mentors to those still caught up in the whirlwind of activities that comes with parenting and maintaining careers.

As the apostle Paul wrote in his letter to the Romans, that I may impart to you some spiritual gift to strengthen you, that is, that we may be mutually encouraged by each other s faith, both yours and mine. (1:11-12) Won t you worship this week as a member of God s family? Perhaps someone is waiting there for you to encourage.

Pray Unceasingly

In The First Letter of Paul to the Thessalonians, Paul tells us to "Rejoice always, pray constantly, give thanks in all circumstances for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you" (1 Thessalonians 5: 16-18). This is undoubtedly difficult advice to follow. How is it possible to always rejoice and to pray constantly? Sometimes things happen which hardly seem worthy of our rejoicing. And, is it really possible to pray constantly? Perhaps Paul, in telling us to rejoice always, is urging us to consider things in their heavenly context. That is, perhaps if we were to keep in mind that an all-knowing and all-merciful God is in control, we would be able to rejoice in all things, seeing them as part of His larger plan. And, as to the admonition to pray constantly, there are many simple prayers that can be kept constantly on our lips. A simple "Thank you Lord," is often a fitting prayer. While at other times, a simple prayer asking for mercy is appropriate: "Lord Jesus Christ, be merciful to me, a sinner." And of course, we are all sinners, so a simple prayer of forgiveness is always fitting: "I am sorry Lord." Perhaps the point of it all is that we should simplify our prayer life. It isn't possible or necessary to have long, complicated prayers running through our minds all day long, especially when a short simple prayer may be just as good.

I thank my God always when I remember you in my Prayers.

R.S.V. Philemon 1:4

Calcium Reduces Risk Of Colon Cancer

Calcium is the most abundant mineral in the human body. It is important in many bodily functions including bone development, muscle contraction, blood vessel contraction and expansion, hormone secretion, and nerve function. A recent study showed that calcium reduced the risk of colon cancer in women by 26 to 46%. The study was performed at the University of Minnesota Cancer Center and involved 45,354 women with no history of colon cancer. The women, whose average age was 61 years, reported their calcium consumption from diet and supplements. Women who consumed more than 412.4 mg per day of calcium in their diet along with more than 800mg per day from supplements had a 46% lower risk of developing colon cancer than women who consumed less calcium from diet and supplements.

It is unclear exactly how calcium protects against colon cancer. It may neutralize bile acids, which are produced during fat digestion and irritate colon cells. Calcium may also regualte biochemical pathways within colon cells that regulate growth and maturation of the cells.

Garrett County SKIES

By Dr. Bob Doyle
Frostburg State Planetarium

THE SUN–The sun spends the first 13 days of May in the star group Taurus. Late on May 13 the sun enters Taurus, where it stays until June 21. The amount of daily sunlight grows by nearly an hour in May. The month opens with about 13 hours, 54 minutes of sunlight, and ends with 14 hours, 48 minutes of sunlight. In early May the sun rises about 6:15 a.m., and sets around 8:15 p.m., while in late May sunrises are about 5:50 a.m., while sunsets are about 8:40 p.m. The sun's midday height during May grows from 65 to 72 degrees (45 degrees is halfway from the horizon to the top of the sky). In May the length of twilight is about 70 minutes, meaning that the fainter stars fade from view about 70 minutes before sunrise and the fainter stars reappear 70 minutes after sunset. In mid-May, we have about 8.3 hours each night for star gazing.

THE MOON–As May begins, the moon shines in the early morning sky. The crescent moon appears near the planet Mars on May 2-3, low in the southeastern dawn. On May 7-8 the moon hides in the sun's glare. On May 9 the moon may be seen as a very sharp crescent very low in the western dusk. On May 11-12, the moon appears near the bright planet Saturn. By May 15, the moon has grown to half-full, appearing as a letter "D," the best moon shape to view the craters with binoculars. On May 19, the nearly full moon appears near the very bright planet Jupiter. The moon grows to full on the evening of May 23, then appearing near the Scorpion's brightest star, Antares. Three days later, the moon will have shifted to the morning sky, rising after midnight. On May 31, the moon will appear near the planet Mars in the southern dawn sky.

THE SOLAR SYSTEM–Our five nearest planetary neighbors appear as points of light that shine steadily, unlike the bright night stars that twinkle. The innermost planet Mercury is too close to the sun to be seen in May. At the end of May, around 9 p.m., the brilliant planet Venus may be seen very low in the western dusk. The bright planet Saturn shines in the southwestern evening sky, appearing near the bright head stars of Gemini. The very bright planet Jupiter shines in the early evening sky in the east, cresting high in the south around midnight. The planet Mars is best seen in the southeast about 4 a.m.

THE STARS–The Big Dipper's handle points upward towards the golden star Arcturus, nearly overhead. The last winter evening stars appear as a large arch in the west. Atop the arch are Gemini's two brightest stars. Just below these stars is the bright planet Saturn. Low in the northeast in the late evening is the white-blue star Vega, the first bright summer evening star to appear.

MAY ASTRONOMY ACTIVITIES–The Frostburg State Planetarium program for May is "Galaxies: Star Kingdoms," presented at 4 and 7 p.m. on the Sundays of May 1, 8, and 15 in Tawes Hall, Room 302. The free public programs last about 50 minutes, and begin promptly (no latecomers admitted) with a brief tour of the current evening sky. Persons may call 301-687-4270 for directions and further information.

The Cumberland Astronomy Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, May 20, at the LaVale Public Library, just off the National Highway. Weather permitting, there will be outside telescope observing of the moon and planets. All interested sky gazers are invited.

Dr. Doyle writes this column for beginners who would like to identify the brightest stars, planets and sights in their backyards. To ask questions, or request a "Beginner's Guide to the Night Sky" or free spring sky charts, persons may call the FSU Planetarium at 301-687-4270 and press 4. Doyle hosts "SkyWatch," a brief program on days of the week and sky sights, that airs weekday evenings just before 9 p.m. on WFWM at 91.9 FM in western Garrett County and 96.3 FM in the Oakland area. Doyle's e-mail address is rdoyle@frostburg.edu.

SHS INDUCTS NEW HONOR SOCIETY MEMBERS – The 40th induction ceremony of the Foster D. Bittle Chapter of the National Honor Society was recently held at Southern Garrett High School. These students met the principles of the National Honor Society in the areas of scholarship, service, leadership, and character. Pictured above are the new inductees. In the front, from the left, are Chelsea Wassel, Elizabeth Thayer, Corey Lewis, Sarah Cosner, Hannah Logsdon, Katelynn Nichols, and Courtney DiSimone. In the back are Nick Gregg, Eric Blamble, Evan Lantz, Ivan Stutzman, James Naylor, and Principal Tom Woods. "The incoming National Honor Society members are a very motivated and academically competitive group, but they also take the principle of service to heart. I never had to ask them twice to help the society or to give to others," said advisor Heather Savage. The graduating National Honor Society members conducted the program for parents and members of the community in the cafeteria recently and are pictured below. "I will miss the seniors' sense of humor, they made every activity enjoyable. But more importantly, I admire their commitment to helping make our school and community a better place," said Savage. In the front are Stephanie Brenneman, Andrew Goad, secretary/treasurer Jadyn Swerbinsky, Allison Richter, president Emily Bowman, historian Emily Green, and Krista Friend. In the back are William Georg, Robert Bonser, Jamie White, and Daniel Frederick. Absent was Natasha Tasker.

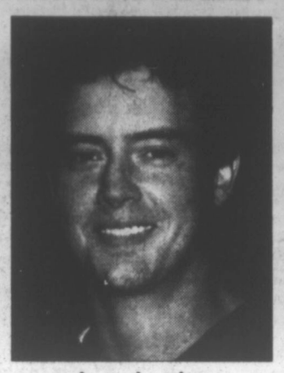
Londons calling: Twin actors who confuse

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it



Jason London

Q: In the 1991 movie "The Man in the Moon," the star was a young man named Jason London, and he looked very much like Jeremy London ("7th Heaven"). I was satisfied that it was the same person changing his name. Then came the recent Hallmark Channel movie "Out of the Woods," starring Jason London, and now I think he and Jeremy are not the same person. What is the answer? –Barbara Bartlett, Plant City, Fla.

A: In a word, "twins." The two actors are identical siblings. In fact, Jason stepped in for Jeremy in an "I'll Fly Away" sequel movie when Jeremy, who co-starred in the original series, was unavailable for the film.

Q: I'm wondering why news programs like "Dateline NBC," "60 Minutes" etc. do not print what their content will be each week in the TV section of the newspaper. They advertise it throughout the week, but I forget, then miss a lot of programs I would like to see. –Judy Sunderland, Wichita, Kan.

A: The shows you mentioned, and others like them, usually don't determine – or, at least, don't announce – their lineups until several days before the given episode airs. The producers like to be able to make last-minute revisions if news warrants, as with the passing of Pope John Paul II several weeks ago.

Weekend TV supplements usually go to press a week, or even earlier, before they are distributed to readers. That's why the specifics for newsmagazine programs usually aren't included; they just aren't available at press time. That said, some papers run late-breaking program information, such as talk show guest lineups and newsmagazine and Sunday panel show topics, in their weekend editions' news sections and/or their weekday TV pages closer to the given program's airdate.

Q: Could you tell me what ever happened to Gary Burghoff, who played Radar on "M*A*S*H"? I never hear anything about him anymore, and he was so good on that program. –Toni Jacobson, Battleground, Wash.

A: The Emmy-winning actor did a few television and film projects in the immediate years after that classic series ended in 1983. Even though he still dabbles in show business on occasion, he largely has dedicated himself to family life, painting and rehabilitating injured animals.

Send questions of general interest to TV Pipeline, Zap2it, 333 Glen St., Glens Falls, NY 12801, or e-mail to tvpipeline@tribune.com. Writers must include their name and city. Personal replies cannot be sent.

"Call Miss Utility Before Digging," Gas Co. Says

Columbia Gas of Maryland and Columbia Gas Transmission have issued a reminder for property owners to call Maryland's Miss Utility "Before You Dig, Every Dig." Maryland state law requires all homeowners and all contractors to contact Miss Utility at 1-800-257-7777 two working days (not including holidays or weekends) prior to beginning any landscaping, excavation, or construction project, or "altering the surface of the ground." The utility marking service is free to homeowners and non-profit organizations.

Maryland's Underground Utility Damage Prevention Act, commonly referred to as the Miss Utility Law, provides the standards and requirements for the protection of all underground utility lines throughout the state.

The gas company also issued the following tips to avoid damaging underground utility facilities:

•Allow required time for marking by notifying Miss Utility at least two business days before a project start date to allow the utilities to mark their facilities.

•Protect and preserve the line-location markings from the time the excavation or demolition begins until they are no longer required for the proper and safe excavation near the utility lines.

•Request remarking at any time the markings become illegible for any reason.

•Excavate carefully by conducting a site survey before beginning a project. Look for clear evidence of unmarked utilities. Clear evidence includes, but is not limited to: visual evidence of an unmarked utility line; knowledge of the presence of a utility line; or faded marks from previous markings.

•If clear evidence of an unmarked utility line is identified, contact Miss Utility again to provide notification. Wait three hours from the time you notified Miss Utility before proceeding.

•Expose the utility line to its extremities by hand digging. Do not use mechanized equipment within 18 inches of the exposed utility lines. Once the underground utility is located, Miss Utility Law requires that the excavator take all reasonable steps to properly protect, support, and backfill underground utility lines.

More information about Maryland's Miss Utility program can be found at www.missutility.net.

Walk For Life Slated By Crisis Pregnancy Ctr.

The 17th annual Walk for Life benefit for the Mountain Top Crisis Pregnancy Center (MTCPC) is slated to begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday, May 7. Registration will get under way at 9:30 a.m. that morning at the Mountain Fresh Pavilion, located next to the town parking lot in Oakland. The rain date, if necessary, has been set for Saturday, May 14, at the same place and time.

The approximately 2-mile walking circuit will begin and end at the town parking lot. A picnic will be held in the pavilion after the walk for all participants. T-shirts will be awarded at a later date for pledges collected of $150 or more, as will various trophies for highest pledges collected and most participants from a church.

The MTCPC's Walk for Life is each year's major fundraiser for the independent, non-political, non-sectarian volunteer service. "The center is staffed by trained volunteers, and operates solely on donations from individuals and organizations," walk coordinator Diane Rosecky said. "Our centers are located in Loch Lynn, and Kingwood and Keyser, West Virginia, and all services — which include self-administered pregnancy testing, maternity and baby clothes, baby furniture and items, parenting and abstinence programs, post-abortion counseling, and a 24-hour hotline — are free and strictly confidential."

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• In Shakespeare's day, any actor who was late for a performance would be fined 10 shillings.

• Do you wear glasses? If so, chances are you probably get annoyed by them at one time or another when they slide down your nose or the arms chafe your ears. Well, James Sooy, a Dallas-based artist, has come up with a solution. He pierced the bridge of his nose with a small barbell and attached the lenses to the barbell with magnets. He says that the piercing is relatively painless; he plans to market his "pierced glasses" for $100.

• On May 3, 1947, Japan's postwar constitution goes into effect. The progressive constitution granted universal suffrage, stripped Emperor Hirohito of all but symbolic power, stipulated a bill of rights, abolished peerage and outlawed Japan's right to make war. • On May 4, 1959, the winners of the first Grammy Awards are announced. Henry Mancini won the Best Album award for "The Music From Peter Gunn"; Perry Como was voted Best Male Vocalist, and Ella Fitzgerald Best Female Vocalist. "Volare," by Domenico Modugno, won Best Record.

Although the Soviets cited security concerns, the boycott was more likely the result of strained Cold War relations due to America's generous aid to Muslim rebels fighting in Afghanistan — and payback for the U.S. boycott of the 1980 Olympics in Moscow.

• On May 5, 1990, Jesse Tafero is executed in Florida after his electric chair malfunctions three times, causing flames to leap from his head. Disgusting Habit

Q: Our two Bichon Shih-tzu dogs will be 2 years old this summer. Ever since we got "Jackson" and "Maggie May" they have a habit of eliminating, then turning and eating their stools. We have tried everything we can think of to discourage this. Adding "Forbid" powder to their food didn't work. Tabasco sauce is effective, but we have to catch them each time they go. Right now, we are flying in and out the back door to pick up their stools as quickly as possible, but we are extremely frustrated with this. Please tell me a sure-fire way to break this disgusting habit! — Andrea & Kelly F., via e-mail

A: Copraphagia — a compulsion to eat feces — is a common problem for dog owners (it's not perceived as a problem by the dogs themselves, of course). Unfortunately it can be a difficult habit to break.

Rushing outside to pick up the dogs' stools or sprinkle Tabasco sauce on them is one method of reducing occurrences of poo-eating. There are a few other things you can try as well, but none are sure-fire cures for this compulsion.

While adding Forbid to their food didn't work (it has gotten mixed results among other pet owners as well), other dietary additives may have an effect. One recommendation is to mix pureed pumpkin into the dogs' food to make their stools unpalatable. Another pet expert says that grinding a Certs breath mint into the food will have the same effect! Changing their daily diet may also help: increasing the ratio of canned to dry food or adding fresh, steamed vegetables to their dish could result in softer stools that some dogs avoid.

The greatest effect on their habit is through regulation of their movements and consistent training, which can be done in tandem. Instead of letting the dogs out into the yard to "go," put them on leashes immediately after eating and take them for a walk. After they do their business, call them to you and give them a treat. If they go for the poo, use a clicker or other negative sound to distract them from it. You will have to do this daily, most likely for several months, to get the dogs to forget their compulsion.

Best of luck, and if I receive any additional suggestions from my readers, I'll pass them along to you!

Staying motivated is one of the biggest problems that arise from new and regular fitness members. Here are some tips to keep you going.

Set achievable goals: Start with a goal that you know that you can meet. Once you meet that goal you will feel good about yourself and then you can set another. Reward yourself each time you reach your goal with something you like.

Monitor your progress: Keep a diary or log of your activities and progress. This will not only show a record of your success, but also serve as a reminder of all your efforts so far. Don't let them go to waste.

Work out with a partner: There is nothing like having some peer pressure to keep you going. Find someone who is fun to be with and has his or her own fitness goals. Together you can help motivate each other to reach your goals.

Watch TV or a video: Watch your favorite program while you are doing cardiovascular exercise. This helps pass the time and can help you catch up on the latest news or your favorite program.

Listen to your favorite music: Listening to music while you work out can help keep it interesting. If you don't like the music at your gym, bring a CD player or personal headphones and play your music how you like it.

Get some focus reminders: Place a picture, note, or object somewhere where it will serve as a reminder of your commitment to get and stay fit.

Don't feel guilty: So you missed one workout; okay, maybe a week's worth. Stop feeling guilty and get back on the right track. Don't be so hard on yourself.

Create variety in your program: Add some spice to your workout. Varying your program will keep you from getting bored with it. It keeps things more interesting and gives the muscles a new challenge.

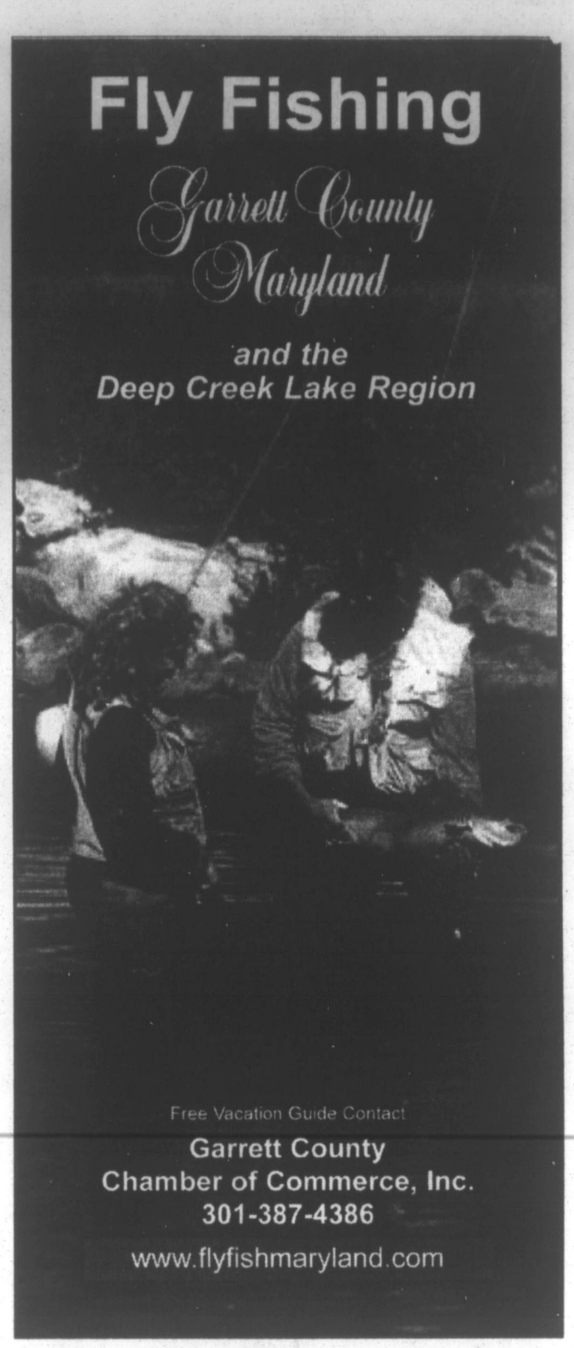
Pavol Hangs Up His Hooks; An Angler Fish Claim For Their Own

"BE ONE WITH THE FISH" is the mantra of Ken Pavol, who retired recently after a long career as director of Western Region Fisheries for the Department of Natural Resources after leading the effort to transform western Maryland into a nationally renowned fishing destination. Nearly 200 people from across the region and state attended a banquet held in his honor recently at the Will O' the Wisp. Recognized as one of the top fly-fishermen in the country, Pavol now operates his own guiding service, North Branch Angler. The cover photo of the Chamber of Commerce's "Fly Fishing" brochure, right, captures the culmination of a Maryland Public Television Outdoors Maryland segment that featured Pavol and his future wife Sherri as he introduced a novice to the world of fly-fishing. The huge trout Sherri hooked has his own tale to tell about that photo, and Pavol's career. See story.



by Wiley B. Trout

Hi there. I'm a trout...a pretty good-size trout. You don't get to be a big trout in a little river by being a dumb fish, so it takes a crafty angler to catch me.

Fishermen talk all the time, and you know about their stories. Us fish talk, too. Didn't know that, did you? Oh, we talk all right, and the word is always going up and down in the stream as to who the best anglers are. In our schools we study angling techniques and anglers themselves, so we can recognize the best on the banks. It's an embarrassment for a big fish to be caught by just anyone, you know. You want someone trying to catch you to have to work for it, to take the time to learn your thinking and habits.

Fish learn people, people should learn fish. It's a sign of respect.

One of the best fisherpeople out there for the past 2½ decades has been a fellow named Ken Pavol, who retired from the Western Maryland Fisheries Service of the Department of Natural Resources a couple of weeks ago. Ken was DNR's fisheries biologist for the region, and over his career his work changed the lives of a lot of people and a lot more of us fish.

When Ken first came to Garrett County, it wasn't too much fun to be a fish, especially a trout, which is something you should be proud of. We'll get to that in a minute.

My cousin, a bass over in Deep Creek Lake, says he can remember the first time he saw Ken back around 1980. "Long-haired hippie, out here all the time, wouldn't leave us alone," Billy told me. "Spent days, weeks, months, years counting us, and finally convinced other people what we fish knew all along – there were less of us around than there had been in the past, and our numbers were continuing to shrink.

"Based on his studies, Ken realized that the decline in our adult black bass population was directly attributable to angling pressure during the spring spawning season. Hey, we've got to lie down where we make our beds, which are easily spotted from above, and when people are annoying us when we're spawning and laying our eggs, we're gonna fight back. Therefore, we were losing a lot of our buddies to springtime fishing.

"Ken initiated an experimental spring catch and release season to take the pressure off us, and it worked like a charm. 'When the worm's away, the fish will play,' is an old saying of ours, and after just two years a great number of our kind had been given the opportunity to grow and become older, larger black bass. Deep Creek Lake became a top bass fishery, and by 1990 spring catch and release black bass season was implemented statewide.

"Not bad for a long-haired hippie," Billy said.

Billy and his bass buddies aren't the only Deep Creek residents who owe Ken a debt of thanks. Ken's innovative thinking paid off for the lake's walleye too; he boosted a tiny walleye population with some heavy stocking, knowing that walleye were predators of the yellow perch that had overpopulated Deep Creek, and voila! Before you knew it, there were lots of walleye about, and lots of fishermen going after the tasty (from what I hear) quarry.

Now on to the real fish – ahem – us trout.

The Savage River below the reservoir is heaven for a trout these days, but 15 years ago it was a different story. There weren't that many of us around then; oh sure, when the river got stocked in the spring there would be a ton of hatchery raised fish who didn't know their dorsal fin from a hole in the ground, flopping around not knowing what was going on. The folks lined up on the banks could practically reach in and grab them, and the keeper limit was five trout per day.

Not too challenging for people or trout, and before a month went by the neighborhood would be back down to just a few fish. Happened every spring.

In 1987 Ken proposed that stocking cease on the Savage below the dam, and moved stocking operations to other parts of that river and other rivers. He also changed the regulations to making the minimum keeper size 18 inches for brown and 12 inches for brook trout. Even down here under the water we could hear a lot of grumbling about those ideas, but the few of us who were left at the time thought to ourselves, "Hey, this could give us a chance to be real fish! Surf's up!"

Well, it took a while for us to get our act in gear (they don't make Viagra for fish), but as more boy trout and more girl trout began getting together and courting was undisturbed...well, you know the story. Back in the late 1980s the Savage supported only about 200 native brook trout and wild trout per mile. Today, with DNR's innovative Trophy Trout Management scheme, more than 1,000 native and wild trout per mile can be found throughout the Savage River. And believe me, some of us wild trout are really wild; any fish who's home alone on a Saturday night only has himself to blame.

And then there's the North Branch of the Potomac, which had been a "no-fish's land" for many, many years. Time was you couldn't sniff out a pound of limburger cheese if it landed on your nose. The Potomac suffered under the triple whammy of acid mine drainage (as did a lot of streams in western Maryland), pollution from big industrial plants along or near the river, and sewage from nearby homes and towns. Nasty stuff, fit not for fish or beast. We used to say "Swim the Potomac? Pack your own water!"

Well, Ken and his cohorts in DNR, the Maryland Department of the Environment, Trout Unlimited, a number of other organizations, and just plain citizens got stirred up and began to ask for and plan some big changes. We fish followed the issue with interest, as it's our home. Sure enough, after years of discussion and hard work, and some exciting innovations like limestone dozers to calm the tummies of the acid-filled mines, 70 miles of exciting North Branch fishing opportunities exist out there for those of you brave enough to come get us...nyah, nyah, na nyah nyah!

Yep, the lake, and the Savage, Potomac, Yough, Casselman, and many other streams and waters across Garrett, Allegany, and western Washington counties improved greatly for us fish under Ken's watch. He implemented new programs designed to boost the numbers of fish, and he spent many a day and evening making presentations around the region and state speaking up for us, cajoling and convincing citizens, corporations, politicians, and even college and public school students that what's good for the fish is good for the fisherman. It wasn't an easy task and he drew some flack, but he never gave up.

But that's not all; Ken knew that you can have fish in the water, but without the people there to chase after us it's kind of dull for everyone. So he also worked hard to spread the gospel of fishing in western Maryland far and wide, touting the sport's many recreational, environmental, and economic benefits, giving speeches, writing articles, appearing in major newspapers and outdoor television programs across the county.

Yep, Ken combined the unique talents of a scientist, lobbyist, public relations specialist, and...television star?

That's right, and that's where I come in. I made Ken a star back on Maryland Public Television's Outdoors Maryland about 10 years ago. I was hanging around in my favorite hole in the Yough one day when I heard a familiar voice from onshore. I immediately recognized it as Ken, and I swam on over to see what he was up to. I could see he was surrounded by a TV camera crew, and then I heard another, unfamiliar, voice; one obviously not of an experienced angler. I could see a woman pulling on a grossly oversized pair of waders over her jeans. It bagged in every possible place. "When women get into this sport we'll design something more elegant," she said. "It's not about looks, Sherri," Ken said. "Oh yes it is," she answered.

"Sherri?," I thought to myself. 'So, Mr. Spawn himself has brought a lady friend fishing, on camera, obviously for the first time. This should be interesting...."

Little did I know how interesting things would get.

Ken opened the back hatch of the car where he began working on the rods and Sherri opened all the other car doors for easy access to the other equipment. Ken asked Sherri to get a certain bag out of the backseat. She reached in and grabbed it. She also slammed the door shut. Almost immediately a low moaning sound came from the rear of the car.

The cameraman pointed his camera at Ken to see why he was making that sound, picking him up just as his hands covered his face. I could hear Ken say, "Oh no, oh no," followed by some words we fish hear all the time from anglers, but aren't suitable for a family newspaper.

Suddenly Sherri also realized what had happened: She had slammed the door on a very expensive fly rod, and some six inches had been snapped off.

Sherri also started moaning, "'Oh no, oh no," and the camera swung in her direction as she covered her face, and began slowly backing away from the scene as if to escape. Then I heard Ken mumble something about taking a novice fly-fishing.

Lordy, we trout were lined up fin-to-fin up and down the river to see the famous fisherman tutor his hapless student – and we were laughing our scales off.

Fortunately Ken was prepared with an extra rod, and once in the river he was able to provide Sherri with some of the finer points of casting; so fine, in fact, that before she hooked Ken in the head! If you never saw a fish cry you would have seen it then, I was laughing so hard. Turns out Sherri is a registered nurse, and after a little riverside surgery, the filming of the lesson continued.

Both of them began pulling in small fish, and I started feeling sorry for them. So I thought I'd have some fun with my old buddy Ken, so on one of Sherri's casts, I hit her lure like a freight train! Wouldn't you know it, her initial reaction was to say that she couldn't reel her line in, and that she was "stuck on something." Something? – I had that rod bent over like a pretzel! Ken's practiced eye surveyed the situation, and he immediately retorted, "Yeah, you're stuck on a big fish."

The battle began. Sherri pulled and tugged and reeled in when she could. "I can't do it, I'm not strong enough. I'm getting tired," she'd say as I played with her. Natural-born teacher that he is, Ken encouraged her: "Keep going. You can do it. Keep going."

Suddenly another voice was heard. It was from the bank, where the TV crew's audio man began repeating "You can do it Sherri, you can do it," much to the consternation of producer Glenn Tolbert, who yelled at his crew member to "Shut up, we don't want your voice in the show." I nearly gagged on the lure, I was laughing so hard.

When Sherri finally landed me, Ken took the hook out and cradled me in the river. "You...you... you...just caught one of the biggest trout ever caught in Garrett County," he babbled to his girlfriend, "and this was your first time. I go all over the world to catch big fish and you pull this huge thing in right here in our backyard. I can't believe it."

He couldn't see that I was winking up at him, but then no one ever does.

I heard later that on the way home, Sherri announced that she didn't have to go fly-fishing ever again, because she had just had the ultimate experience. Ken just groaned and shook his head.

Ken and Sherri later got married.

I like to think I had something to do with that...

THE 10TH ANNUAL WALK FOR HOSPICE will be held this Saturday, April 30, at the Garrett 8 Cinemas, Deep Creek Lake. Registration will begin at 9 a.m., and the walk will start at 10. The Mtn. Top Cruisers Car Club will hold a cruise-in during the event. "We are looking forward to a large turnout," said Brenda Butscher, Hospice executive director. "We have appreciated the support we have received in the past. The monies raised will be used to buy medications for our terminally ill patients in Garrett County." Prizes will be awarded to the top three teams and the top three individuals who turn in the most money the day of the walk. A team is two or four members. Top team prizes are a limo trip (donated by Markwood Limo) to Uno's for dinner (donated by the restaurant) for the team members, a trip to Disney World – including flight, room, and park "hopper" tickets – and a Las Vegas package – including flight and room. The individual prizes are a $1,000 Wal-Mart gift certificate, Canaan Valley package – including two nights' lodging and a two-day ski or golf pacage, and a DVD payer with DVDs. The top team and individual walker get the first pick of the team and individual prizes, those in second place get to choose second, and the third place winners get the remaining prizes. Many door prizes will be given to all walk participants. Everyone will also receive a lighted key chain, a Taco Bell coupon, a bag of Cheetos, and a bottle of water. Pictured are some of the volunteers who will be working at the event to make sure everyone who has given his or her Saturday morning to "walk for those who are unable to walk for themselves" has a good time. Left to right, they are Betty Trickett, Beverly Beard, Junior Ferguson, Amy Welch, Janet Sisler, and Butscher. For more information, persons may call Hospice at 301-334-5151.

Students collected about 30 large bags of trash and several large items such as tires. This activity was funded by the Chesapeake Bay Trust. The group of participants is pictured above. They are Slagle, Darryl Glotfelty, Adam Hannibal, Michael Resh, Lucas McMillan, Zach Beitzel, Taylor Jones, Justin Beitzel, Andrew Frazee, Taleena Sines, Elliot Glotfelty, Scott Bass, Angel Giron, Zach Cupler, Mike McKewen, Anna Checkes, Kayla Kipp, Mariel Vallano, Heidi Hare, Sam Sherrard, Erik Wood, Caity Sussman, April Kyle, Khris Brenneman, Nina Loos, Tyler Minnick, Mike Moyer, Billy Woods, Dustin Klotz, Andrea Maust, Tara Brenneman, and Victoria Moser. Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

The Bittinger 4-H Club will sponsor a buckwheat cake supper this Friday, April 29, at the Bittinger fire hall. Homemade buckwheat cakes will be featured, along with pancakes, sausage, sausage gravy, and drinks. The meal is all-you-can-eat and will be served from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. Cost is $5 for adults, $3 for children 12 and under, and free for those 5 years and under. Proceeds benefit the club's 2005 activities.

This will be the last buckwheat cake supper that the 4-H will have this spring, so come and enjoy. If you have never attended a 4-H buckwheat and pancake dinner at the Bittinger fire hall, you have not really experienced the good life, as they are just the best.

Right now Bittinger resembles the Dismal Swamp. We got so much water the past few days that my poor container gardens are just a few pots with little soil and a couple of inches of water on top of the seeds I planted last week. I was happy to know some spinach, lettuce, and carrots started to grow; that is, if they do not drown before they can burst through the soil. That is the big problem that they will face in the next few days.

Garrett County's service trees are in bloom; however, not here in Bittinger as yet, but around other parts of the county. I have no doubt we are in for some more snow here, or maybe we can count the last weekend's snow as our service snow. The old timers' wisdom is the last snow of the season was not until our service blooms. I had to cover my beautiful pansy plants, and I hope I don't have to do it daily for a couple more weeks. I also hope that the snow does not kill the tulip buds developing.

The heavy Saturday morning rain that we got did not deter a big crowd for the auction at Donna Glotfelty's house. The parked cars almost blocked Rock Lodge Road. I assume it was a howling success, if the crowd attending had anything to do with it. I was sad that I was not able to stop and see what Glotfelty treasures were on sale.

Emma Bass and Meredith were among the Middle Schools junior honor chorus in a performance at Garrett College on Friday evening.

I will be displaying several mother-oriented paintings in an exhibition of mother pictures by various Garrett County artists at the Gallery in Oakland. My contribution consists of my mother as a busy young mother with my older brother Rodney as a baby in a high chair. Another painting is of Caitlin and Mere on a beach trip which I had to miss. I don't think it is unusual as a mother that my children are never out of my mind. Somewhat different is a painting of a Belgian work mare with her foal under an apple tree which is in full bloom. After all, it is not only people who depend on a good mother. The quality of a horse more reflects character of its mother than its training by people.

After the Mother's show closes around Memorial Day the summer show will open. My two new works are of a soft winter scene and one of my favorite places, the beaver dam at the base of Meadow Mountain.

I sold a few paintings last week to avert a crash of my financial life. The bad news for me is that I will have to face a bitter wind to deliver one of them and then visit the bank. If the little birds can walk across my snow-swept lane, then I can face the wind too. I must quote Lesa Whittemore, "Oh, the wind, oh, the wind." Very few places have the kind of wind we get here on the tableland between Meadow Mountain and Negro Mountain. I hope this wind is blowing spring back to us. I know for sure we will fully appreciate spring when it gets here for good. It was cruel when that spell of 60- and 70-degree weather retreated and we were suddenly back to regular winter weather.

Kim Collins hosted a "meet the baby shower" for the new arrival at the Diehlman home. I am sure the female portion of Bittinger's population attending were fighting through the crowd around darling Rebecca. I doubt that I was missed since I already met her and showered her with a gift. I just could not face the wintry weather on Sunday.

I am expecting the best possible Mother's Day present, which is Claire returning home for summer break from West Virginia University. Then I will have my three wonderful daughters with me. Still, I have to worry about finding as good a Mother's Day present for my mother, which is something that I can afford.

My mother, Ruth DiPaolo, recently underwent preventive laser surgery on her right eye. Her best friend, Betty Sacra from Winchester, came up to take care of her. While here they visited Lucille Patton Ritter, Cumberland, and the Jacobs family in Barton. She will undergo laser surgery on her left eye in a couple weeks. She is also facing heart catheterization in Morgantown next month.

I heard from at least a half dozen people last week who are totally disgusted with American values and where our country is heading. Of utmost importance is the almighty dollar. It is strange that a little country store has lower gas prices than the national average. But storekeeper Gary Buckel does not want to reap the windfall profits from the blood of young soldiers. However, that is not the concern of the big-oil establishment. In my traveled life I knew many wealthy people, but only one seemed not to worry about money if his net worth dropped lower than a couple million dollars. Most of them were greedy, and no amount of money was enough.

I guess I have pretty much given up the hope that I could find a way to get back to a decent standard of living as a disabled person. I doubt that most people in two-income families with good benefits can imagine how it would be without them. Believe me, free-lance writing and art do not replace a professor's salary, and without medical/dental insurance, just staying alive gets pretty expensive. Most of my life I believed that anything was possible if you try hard enough. The last 10 years have proved that that is a very false belief. However, that does not mean that I will give up, but I will have to rely on help from good friends. A few people still remember me as always a giver. I am not mainly talking about money or things, but about a giving heart and able to see things others can't see and willing to reach out with a helping hand when someone needed it.

I can only see a few patches of service snow in the valley of my field. I wonder whether my lilac buds survived it. It would be a major tragedy for me if my beautiful old lilac bush is not covered with sweet purple blossoms. It is the favorite roosting place for my hummingbirds and dense enough to provide decent shelter for them from heavy rain and the wind and with little purple snacks everywhere around them.

If my deck container garden does not suffer enough from snow, then it is in for a period of thunderstorms. The containers cannot absorb any more water. The only hope is that I cover them with a tarp. Spinach is my favorite vegetable, both raw and cooked, which is why I rush the season. Spinach doesn't last very long in the summer heat.

I believe Pastor Pat has at last returned from a trip to Pennsylvania. I am glad she is back, as she is able to lift my sagging spirit better than anyone.

Today, at last, we have a real spring day, which is at least partly sunny with bright green grass and enough breeze to dry my plants covers, and maybe even evaporate some soggy planters. Yes, that late winter blast makes the sign of spring returning even more sweet.

SHS Graduate Returns To Give Tolerance Lecture

Kelly Marie Norman, a 2003 graduate of Southern High School and a sophomore in college at University of Richmond, Va., held tolerance workshops at SHS recently.

She is majoring in women, gender, and sexuality studies and international studies, with a concentration in Latin America and a minor in Spanish. At Southern, she was senior class president, Best Buddies vice president, Acorn editor in chief, and a 2003 Danforth recipient.

A good friend of Kelly's and an employee of the Va. Chapter of the NCCJ (National Conference for Community and Justice) helped her arranged the workshops. The NCCJ is an organization that promotes understanding and respect among all races, religions and cultures through advocacy, conflict resolution, and education. The mission encompasses all people.

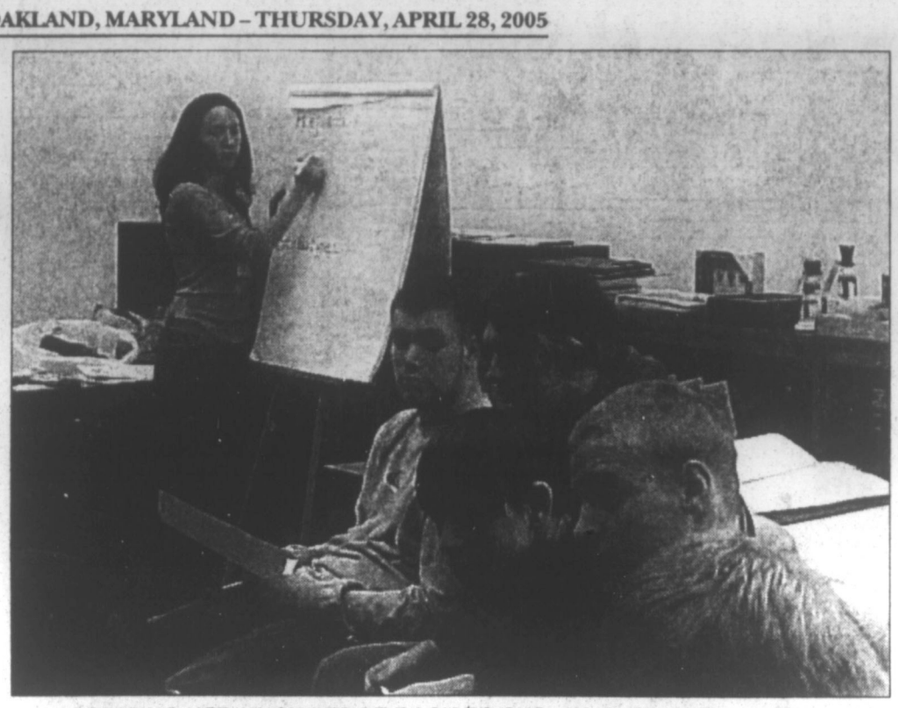
Norman became involved with this organization as a college freshman when she attended Collegetown, which is an NCCJ sponsored program meant to focus on and promote diversity.

She received a grant for supplies for the program from the Bonner Foundation, which provides financial support for students involved in community service. She is the Bonner Scholar at the University of Richmond.

Norman was involved with a program that worked with urban young adults/teenagers in Richmond concerning the issue of tolerance. Their issues were race related, but she said she felt there was probably "labeling" going on at the high school level, as she remembered from her high school experiences. She said felt she could take skills she had learned through the NCCJ training and apply them back in her hometown.

She contacted Southern High School. "I agreed that there was a need for that," said Heather Savage, teacher. "I whole heartedly agreed that this type of activity could only help the student body."

Norman conducted four workshops a day over a two-day period, reaching approximately 250 students, with the additional help of peer counselors (student counselors).



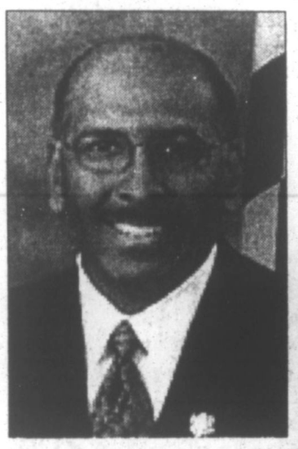
BRINGING HER KNOWLEDGE BACK TO SHS – Kelly Marie Norman, a sophomore at the University of Richmond, recently returned to Southern High School, her alma mater, to teach tolerance workshops. She discussed "labeling" that occurs at the high school level. She said she felt she could take the skills she had learned through her National Conference for Community and Justice training and apply them back in her hometown. Pictured above, from left to right, are Norman, Jeremy Wilson, Randall Lewis, Larry Coddington, and Bryan Sisler. See story.

"By Kelly coming back and sharing her expertise and experiences with students, she created a unique learning opportunity for our students to explore a topic across curricula," said Savage. "Student learning was impacted beyond the actual workshop. Many teachers had curricular ties to the workshop, and incorporated the theme of tolerance conjured by the workshop in art projects, writing projects, and discussions."

Lt. Gov. Steele To Speak At GOP's Lincoln Day Dinner

The Garrett County Republican Central Committee will host its 33d annual Lincoln Day Dinner on Friday, May 20, at Pleasant Valley Community Center. The doors will open at 6 p.m. and dinner will be served at 7 p.m.

The keynote speaker will be Lt. Governor Michael S. Steele. In January 2003, Steele became the first African-American elected to statewide office, and the first-ever Republican lieutenant governor in Maryland.



As lieutenant governor, Steele serves as a partner, advisor, and principal representative for Governor Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. Steele works with the state's congressional delegation, and state and local elected officials, to promote and implement the administration's policies and initiatives.

During the past legislative session he worked closely with Gov. Ehrlich to address the state's fiscal situation. For the second consecutive year the operating budget includes a record increase in K-12 education funding and $250 million in school construction funds to help alleviate the backlog of school construction projects across Maryland.

Steele's top priority is improving the quality of Maryland's public education system. Since his election he has been visiting schools throughout Maryland.

Steele is one of the highest ranking African American Catholic elected officials in the country. He spent three years as a seminarian in the Order of St. Augustine in preparation for the priesthood. President George W. Bush selected Steele to represent the United States as a member of the presidential delegation to Pope Benedict XVI's inaugural Mass at the Vatican.

Lincoln Day Dinner tickets are available for $25 each from Republican elected officials, and other party members and supporters. Tickets and further information may also be obtained by calling 301-334-4500 or 301-334-5700.

Local Students Compete, Place In Math Contest

Several Garrett County high school students recently participated in Allegany College of Maryland's Tri-State Mathematics Scholarship Contest in Cumberland. In its 20th year, the annual event is held to encourage and reward math achievements. Nearly 90 students from 10 schools in three states competed for top honors and scholarships this year.

The Southern High School team placed third, with Allegany High placing first and Bedford High (Pa.) placing second.

Individually, Chen-Yin Lin of Southern came in 11th; Brain Schlosnagle of Northern High School came in 13th; Eric Bramble of Southern tied for 15th; and Lacie Bittinger of Northern came in 20th.

Scholarships of $1,000, $500, and $250 were awarded to the first-, second-, and third-place finishers, respectively, for their achievements. Each of the seven remaining students in the top 10 places was awarded a $100 ACM scholarship.

The scholarship awards are sponsored by the LaVale Lions, which underwrites the competition through various fundraising efforts. The scholarships are administered by the ACM Foundation.

Mu Alpha Theta, ACM's math honorary, conducts the contest.

TIME FOR SOME "Q&A!"

What's the first step toward selling your home? Call a realty professional! This might take several steps if you talk to a number of potential listing agents. Regardless of your selection, they should all ask questions to determine your particular needs.

Of course, you'll supply personal information like name, address, phone, and email. It's helpful to have answers to questions like, "Why do you want to sell?" and "When?" Any idea what sale price you're seeking? The agent will provide detailed facts to make the best pricing decision, but that decision is ultimately yours.

Have a sheet in front of you to easily answer questions about your home such as square footage, number of bedrooms and bathrooms, and amenities (Wood floors? Fireplace? New appliances?).

Any agent worth their salt will inquire about where you're moving, and whether you know any realty professionals there. The agent you select will be a valuable resource for your move, connecting you with a qualified agent to assist with locating and purchasing your next home.

And don't forget to mention how you heard about your agent! Did you see an ad in the local homes magazine, receive a postcard in the mail, or read an editorial in the newspaper? The more answers you have ready, the more the agent will understand your needs, guaranteeing excellent tailored service and a successful sale!

If you'd like to buy a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call today!

Noted Birder To Detail Bird Atlas Project At Park

The Deep Creek Lake State Park Discovery Center will host a presentation by Dr. Walter Ellison, coordinator of the continuing Maryland Breeding Bird Atlas Project, slated for 7 p.m. on Thursday, May 5. The five-year effort, which is in the fourth year, is a project of the Maryland Ornithological Society (MOS), and information will be available at the program for any persons interested in volunteering to assist by documenting breeding birds of Garrett County.

Ellison's program, which is open to the public at no charge, will include a PowerPoint presentation with basic background information on breeding bird atlas projects in general and the current Maryland project in particular. He will also discuss progress of the current atlas including coverage stats, a "mini-route" progress map, links to the mapping page and the Breeding Bird Atlas Explorer, a list of the most commonly reported birds by block total, and an array of maps and a table showing several important trends in the atlas data.

Ellison has extensive experience in carrying out bird atlas projects, having worked on the atlas project of the Vermont Institute of Natural Science of Woodstock, Vermont, as well as projects in Maine, Connecticut, and both editions of the New York state atlas. He and his wife Nancy Martin have been regional editors for New England (covering the autumn season) for the American Birding Association's bird distribution journal North American Birds since 1995.

Ellison holds a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Vermont, a master of science degree from the University of Connecticut, and a doctorate from the State University of New York at Albany, where he focused on the population genetics of Bicknell's thrush and veery.

The Ellison-Martin family lives in Chestertown.

For more information, about the program or the Maryland Breeding Bird Atlas project, persons may call Fran Pope at 301-334-4908. Additional information about the project is also available on the atlas we site at www.mdbirds.org/atlas.-html. Results of this atlas project, which will be published, will serve to update and replace the previous edition of the Atlas of the Breeding Birds of Maryland and the District of Columbia, which was compiled from 1983 to 1987.

Reports Shows More Maryland Children Prepared For Kindergarten

by Deitrich Curry
Capital News Service

BALTIMORE — More Maryland children are better prepared for kindergarten than in previous years, according to a report released last week by the Maryland State Department of Education.

The report, presented at the state board of education meeting, showed that 58 percent of children entering kindergarten are fully ready to learn, which is an increase of 3 percentage points from the 2003-2004 school year and a 9 percentage point increase from when the school readiness surveys first began in the 2001-2002 school year.

"The glass is definitely half full," said J. Michael Riley, vice president of M&T Bank and chairman of the Ready-at-Five Partnership.

His partnership is one of many groups that reach out to parents to inform them of the importance of educating children before they reach kindergarten.

The National Research Council has shown that 90 percent of brain growth occurs between ages 0 and 5, yet 90 percent of public spending on education occurs after age 5.

The partnership encourages parents and child care providers to include learning activities in daily routines.

Students are measured on seven skills: social and personal development, language and literacy, mathematical thinking, scientific thinking, social studies, the arts, and physical development and health.

Kindergarten teachers observe their students in 30 performance indicators and take note of their learning rate and level of competency. The information from the assessments is used by schools and districts to help design programs, materials, and teacher training.

The results are divided into subgroups, such as race, children from economically disadvantaged backgrounds, and children with disabilities. While most of these subgroups showed improvement, there is gap between the percentage of prepared children in these groups and the overall school readiness percentage. Black children improved their readiness by 6 percentage points from 44 percent to 50 percent, while children with disabilities improved by 2 percentage points overall to 37 percent.

The composite results for children speaking languages other than English dropped by 3 percentage points from 40 percent to 37 percent. Hispanics had the lowest composite score of the racial groups with only 43 percent entering kindergarten ready to learn.

The survey also gauged the effectiveness of early learning situations, including Head Start, prekindergarten, family child care, non-public nurseries, or informal care.

The survey found 60 percent of students in prekindergarten, 54 percent of family care children, and 73 percent of children at nonpublic nursery schools came to kindergarten prepared.

Board members discussed closing readiness gaps, especially by informing more Hispanics about learning opportunities for children under age 5.

State Superintendent of Schools Nancy Grasmick said cultural differences could be at work in Hispanic children's lower percentage of readiness. Many Hispanics, she said, prefer child care by relatives and do not have as much contact with early education.

"We're going to try to work with the Hispanic population," Grasmick said.

She said many blacks benefit from the Head Start Program, with 47 percent of those children coming to school ready to learn, an increase of 2 percentage points from last year.

In 2001, the Maryland State Board of Education incorporated a school readiness goal in its strategic plan and began issuing the school readiness reports in the 2001-2002 school year.

The goal of the board is to annually improve on the number of students ready for school, said Bill Reinhard, board spokesman.

Community Action Salutes Efforts Of Volunteers With Annual Banquet

The Garrett County Community Action Committee hosted its 12th annual volunteer recognition awards banquet recently at the Pleasant Valley Community Center, with 180 persons in attendance.

James Ford was honored as the GCCAC Volunteer of the Year. Ford donates numerous hours each week assisting the agency in raising funds to maintain a five-day delivery in its home-delivered meal program.

"Because of Jim's dedication to the senior meal program, the agency estimates the revenue derived from his hard work and dedication will be approximately $7,500 annually," stated Area Agency on Aging program director Adina Brode. "This results in approximately 1,650 meals for the home-bound elderly."

Ford also volunteers his time as an Oakland Little League coach and as statistician for the Southern High School football program.

Other exceptional volunteers recognized were Gary Duff of GCCAC's Food Resources Department; members of the HallStars Partners After School program at Grantsville Elementary; Loraine Savage of the Partners After School program at Loch Lynn Elementary; Steve Pagenhardt of Garrett County Head Start; and Deane Foy of GCCAC's Housing Department.

Nick DeWitt was recognized for volunteering over 300 service learning hours with the agency's Housing Department, and received certificates from the Garrett County Board of Education and the Governor's Office on Volunteerism.

The banquet's guest speaker was Matthew Stegle, who has served under two governors as a member of the Maryland Governor's Commission on Service and Volunteerism. He has been involved in a wide range of volunteer activities since the 1980s, and currently serves as an advisor to NHS of Baltimore and Volunteer Frederick. Stegle is president of the Frederick Orchestra, chairperson of his congregation's church council, and assists with various projects at his son's high school in Frederick County.

Farming On The Mountaintop

In The General Assembly, The Cabbage Farmer Stands Alone

by Sarah Abruzzese
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS — In a state where a farmer is embodied on the Great Seal and license plates are sold to support agriculture education, only one full-time farmer remains in the General Assembly.

Cabbage farmer and Senate Minority Leader J. Lowell Stoltzfus, R-Somerset, is the powerful remnant of the state's waning agricultural heritage.

"I feel agriculture is sometimes given short shrift," Stoltzfus said, but added that this administration and General Assembly works hard to understand the issues.

In 1985, the Maryland Assembly contained eight people in agriculture. By 1990 the number had fallen to four, according to data from the Department of Legislative Services. Today, Stoltzfus stands as the lone man of the soil.

While Stoltzfus does point to several other legislators who are part-time or retired farmers, he said he thinks he is the only one whose income comes from farming. And, like farming, working in the Legislature is sometimes a lonely life.

"They work hard to understand agriculture, but really don't," Stoltzfus said. The General Assembly has a "much more urban-suburban atmosphere."

"It is tragic," said Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert, of the loss of farmers, a group of people he called no-nonsense individuals.

"Having a farmer in the General Assembly helps promote good bills dealing with agriculture," Miller said. Maryland's loss of farmer-legislators is consistent with national trends.

"There was time when really the legislature was dominated by agriculture interests and attorneys," said Tim Storey, a senior fellow with the National Conference of State Legislatures. "The time involved in being a legislator has increased substantially and that makes it tough to balance with certain professions. That makes it tough to be a farmer. The nature of that occupation does not lend itself to taking big chunks of time and going to the legislature."

"Go back to the early days and people were in agriculture," said Mark Zuzik, Maryland Farm Bureau administrator. "But now far fewer people are needed to run farms. Today, agriculture is the No. 1 industry in Maryland and within that economy there is a tremendous amount of diversification."

But the shift is indicative of what is happening throughout the state.

"We no longer have the family physician in the community. We no longer have the country lawyer," Miller said.

According to 1990 U.S. Census information for Maryland, there are only 6,886 people who list their profession as farming, fishing, and/or forestry. That accounts for just .3 percent of the employed civilian population over age 16.

By comparison, there are seven delegates or senators who list their profession as real estate, which is far more than three in 2000.

Sen. Larry E. Haines, D-Carroll, is a dairy farmer turned real-estate agent.

"My wife and I were working seven days a week, possibly 14 hours a day. The last year on the dairy farm, I made $3,200. It is not much incentive to continue when you work that hard and there is very little fruit for your labor," Haines said. "It was an excellent decision for me. I have had a very successful business."

But Haines said he retains "this strong sense and feeling for agriculture and farming." In fact, he said, early in his Senate career he ensured that more money was put aside to save farmland.

"Unless we save Maryland's farms from development, we are going to have fewer farmers in the General Assembly and much bigger problems," said Dru Schmidt-Perkins, the executive director of 1,000 Friends of Maryland, which is an organization that opposes urban sprawl.

"Whether you are a farmer or not," Schmidt-Perkins said, "I would hope you would understand the importance of agriculture issues to the state on any number of levels."

"I was a farmer. I was in the House and Senate," said Lewis R. Riley, the state's secretary of agriculture. "I'm sitting on my tractor while I talk to you."

Riley said he is aware of how difficult it is for the few farmers to convince other legislators of their arguments.

"I think, on the other hand," he said, "we are fortunate we do still have a lot of people in the General Assembly who are urban dwellers who still have a lot of respect for the open space and what farmers do . . . both open space and food production."

Maryland and the General Assembly owe a great deal to the state's agricultural heritage.

"That is why those farmers were so smart they made the session in January and February when it was so cold" and not conducive to farm work, said Delegate Joseph F. Vallario Jr., D-Prince George's. "When the sun comes out and the trees start to bloom, we are out of here."

Maryland's 2005 90-day legislative session ended April 11.

"The vast majority of folks who serve in the Legislature were, in fact, farmers," said Sen. George W. Della Jr., D-Baltimore, who inherited his family's farm. "When my dad was in the Senate I used to go to Annapolis. I remember quite a few of them, farmers from around the state."

There are a few new Assembly members with strong agricultural backgrounds, including Delegate J. B. Jennings, R-Baltimore County. The part-time beef cattle farmer and part-time feed store owner knows the importance of farms.

"The best way to preserve land is to have a successful farming operation," said Jennings. "If you protect the farmer, you are then protecting the land, which is protecting the state."

Recordkeeping Important For Conservation

Farm recordkeeping has long been an important tool in managing farm production, but it is becoming increasingly important for conservation as well. One upcoming Farm Bill conservation program, the Conservation Security Program (CSP), will require producers to keep multiple years of detailed farm records to be eligible.

Farm records serve as a reference for producers to evaluate the performance of livestock, crops, and nutrient management activities. Records also serve as a way to document land stewardship and conservation practices. Producers who keep detailed written farm records of land management such as crop yields, fertilizer and manure use, pesticide use, soil tests, animal feeding, and grazing days will be better prepared to meet the guidelines of CSP.

Currently, producers are required to have at least two years of detailed written records to be considered eligible for CSP enrollment. Although CSP is currently available to Maryland producers in the Chester-Sassafras and Monacacy river watersheds for 2005, small watersheds throughout Maryland will be eligible in coming years. About one-eighth of the nation's eligible farmers will be given the chance to apply each year over an eight-year period until all eligible watersheds have participated in CSP. Producers are encouraged to begin keeping detailed farm records now to be better prepared for the opportunity to enroll in CSP in future years.

"As an agency and as a nation, we have helped farmers correct conservation problems such as soil erosion or water conservation since the Dust Bowl days of the 1930s," said Virginia Murphy, acting Maryland state conservationist for the Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS). NRCS is USDA's lead conservation agency and has management responsibility for CSP.

"CSP represents a whole new direction in conservation and agricultural policy and programs," Murphy said. "These payments for demonstrable, long-term stewardship will reward many of those who undertook conservation on their own initiative and who care for the resources we all share."

The Conservation Security Program is different from most other USDA Farm Bill programs because it provides payments and incentives to producers to maintain conservation practices that have been implemented prior to enrollment in CSP, regardless of whether or not cost-share funds were received for the practice installation.

CSP is a voluntary program that provides financial and technical assistance to promote the conservation and improvement of soil, water, air, energy, plant and animal life, and other conservation purposes on private working lands. Working lands include cropland, hay, and pasture, as well as forested land that is an incidental part of an agriculture operation. The program provides equitable access to benefits to all producers, regardless of size of operation, crops produced, or geographic location.

Murphy said that while prior installation and planning of conservation practices serve eligibility criteria for CSP, "farmers will also have opportunities to improve wildlife habitat, undertake on-farm energy conservation, participate in watershed-wide stewardship programs, and improve nutrient and pest management activities."

The Conservation Security Program will not be offered to Garrett County producers until 2006 at the earliest, but producers should evaluate the record-keeping of their operations to be prepared for the opportunity that CSP might present to them.

For more information on CSP and other Farm Bill programs, persons may visit the Maryland NRCS web page at http://www.md.nrcs.usda.gov/programs, or contact NRCS district conservationist Chad Bucklew at 301-334-6957.

CONSERVATION RESERVE ENHANCEMENT PROGRAM SIGN-UP CONTINUES

Eric McCartney, executive director of the Preston County Farm Service Agency, reminds farmers that sign-up in the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP) to protect water quality and wildlife habitat continues. This is an enhancement of Farm Service Agency's Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) which uses federal and state resources to safeguard environmentally sensitive land through special CRP enrollments.

The West Virginia CREP offers rental payments to farmers who voluntarily convert highly erodible cropland and other environmentally sensitive acreage to vegetative cover, such as riparian buffers, filter strips, and/or wetlands. Additionally, CREP helps reduce runoff from entering the Cheat River.

The goals of the West Virginia CREP are to: enroll up to 9,160 acres of eligible cropland and/or marginal pastureland located within the project area; reduce agricultural runoff and sediment, and keep nutrients from entering designated watersheds; promote improved water quality and enhance wildlife habitat in recognized drainage areas; and protect soil, water, and wildlife habitat in the project area.

The following conservation practices may be eligible for land enrolled in a West Virginia CREP contract: establishment of permanent introduced grasses and legumes; establishment of permanent native grasses; hardwood tree planting; filter strips; riparian buffers; and wetland restoration.

Eligible producers will be able to enroll in 10- to 15-year contracts. Cropland must have been cropped two out of the past five years, and be physically and legally capable of being cropped in a normal manner. Marginal pastureland is also eligible for enrollment provided it is suitable for use as a riparian buffer planted to trees.

In addition, producers must generally have owned or operated the land for at least the last 12 months prior to enrollment. Persons who have an existing CRP contract or an approved offer with a contract pending are not eligible for CREP until that contract expires.

West Virginia CREP participants are eligible for five types of payments: signing incentive; practice incentive payment; annual rental payment for the life of the contract; up to 50 percent cost-share assistance for the installation of eligible conservation practices; and one-time state of West Virginia lump-sum incentive payment.

Haying and grazing are not allowed during the contract period unless USDA permits it for emergency purposes under normal CRP rules.

For further information on the West Virginia Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program, persons may contact the Preston County Farm Service Agency located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza, telephone 304-329-1923. Information is also available on FSA's web site at www.usda.gov.

GOING TO HEAVEN IS AS SIMPLE AS A.B.C.

A ADMIT THAT YOU ARE A SINNER AND THAT YOU DESERVE TO GO TO HELL.

The Bible says in Romans 3:23 "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God"

The Bible says in Romans 6:23 "For the wages of sin is death..." All of us are sinners. That means we have all broken God's Law and have done things that are wrong. Because we all have done things wrong, we cannot go to Heaven.

B BELIEVE THAT JESUS DIED FOR YOUR SINS.

The Bible says in Romans 5:8 "But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us." The Bible says in John 3:16 "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

God loves you and wants you to go to Heaven when you die. Jesus died on the Cross and rose again to pay for your sins.

C CALL UPON JESUS TO FORGIVE YOU OF YOUR SINS AND SAVE YOU.

The Bible says in Romans 10:9-10 "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." In John 1:12 the Bible says "But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name."

To be saved and go to Heaven, you must ask Jesus to forgive you of your sin and to save you. If you would like to ask Jesus to save you and take you to Heaven when you die, pray this simple prayer:

Dear Jesus, I know that I am a sinner. I know that you died on the cross to pay for my sins. Please forgive me and cleanse me from all my sin and save me. Thank you, Jesus, for saving me. In Jesus name, Amen.

If you asked Jesus to save you and come into your heart, you are a child of God. The Bible says in Romans 10:13, "For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." If you have done that, write to the address below and let us know. We have a Booklet on the Christian Life we will send you to help you in your new life for Christ.

Local 4-H Youth Recognized For Achievements

Editor's note: Not once, but twice the following story has appeared in this newspaper incorrectly and incompletely, for various reasons we see no point in sharing. Suffice to say, we apologize to the many persons who are recognized in the story, and we hope this third attempt is the proverbial charm.

Garrett County 4-H recently held its annual recognition program and reception at Northern High School.

Over 300 youth were recognized for their project completion during the 2004 year. In addition, volunteers were honored for years of service, and several community awards were presented.

Buffet coordination for the evening was handled by Red House 4-H, and beverage donation coordinators were Bittinger and Oak Hill clubs. Door prizes were donated by all clubs and coordinated by North Star 4-H. Finzel and Avilton clubs led the pledges.

KES STUDENTS PARTICIPATE IN MOCK ELECTION – The mayor and town council of Kitzmiller have declared April to be Maryland Municipal League Month. As part of that celebration, Kitzmiller Elementary School held a mock election on April 11. Voting on town officials who were actually running for office, 58 students cast their ballots. Being "re-elected" with 51 votes was Mayor Jim Browning. In a close election for council, incumbent Mike Brady received 41 votes, while incumbent Robert Reckart and Carol Matthews were tied with 30 votes apiece. On April 12, 44 of the 100 registered voters in Kitzmiller came to the town hall and voted in the municipal election. Elected to his second term was Browning, who ran unopposed. He received 41 votes and will serve a two-year term. Browning retired from the U.S. Navy and is presently employed by the Garrett County Health Department. He is married to the former Sandi Armstrong. Two slots of the four-member council were open for election, with three locals contesting for the positions. Elected were Brady, with 33 votes, and Reckart, with 31 votes. The third vote-getter was Matthews with 19. Remaining on the council until the next election in April 2006 will be Melissa Nesselrodt and Judy Paugh. Taste of Garrett Benefit To Dish Up Local Talents

The skills of the area's top cooks and chefs will be on display for the upcoming "A Taste of Garrett County," a fundraiser for the Garrett County Recreational Trails Project. Slated for 6-9 p.m. Monday, May 23, at the Lodge at Wisp, the event will feature a variety of distinctive entrees, desserts, specialty items, and beverages prepared, produced, and served by local businesses, along with musical entertainment, door prizes, and a cash bar.

"This is our primary fundraiser," said Steve Green, chair of the Recreation Trails Task Force, who will be among the committee members assisting at the dinner.

A trail from Deep Creek Lake State Park to Grantsville is a viable prospect, according to a just-released Chamber of Commerce study. Also proposed are several hiking/biking trails in the Deep Creek Lake, Oakland, Kitzmiller, Grantsville, and Friendsville areas, as well as a connection to the Allegheny Highlands Trail System.

"Economic benefits and more outdoor opportunities for Garrett County residents should result from the development of a countywide recreational trail system," said Green. "Health benefits also should be considered. With problems of obesity and juvenile diabetes, it is important to keep people walking."

The cost of advance tickets is $20 for adults and $10 for children age 12 and under. Tickets at the door will be $22 for adults and $11 for children. Advance tickets are available at several local businesses, including Smiley's, Traders Coffee House, Brenda's Pizzeria, Wisp Mountain Resort, the Garrett County Arts Council Gallery in Oakland, Arrowhead Market, High Mountain Sports, the Visitors Center in McHenry, and the Oakland Train Station. Tickets can also be obtained from chamber tourism specialist Connie Margison.

For further information, persons may call the Chamber of Commerce at 301-387-4386 or 301-245-4400.

A VFW Loyalty Day event will be held Sunday, May 1, at the VFW. Lunch will be served.

A total of $2,000 was raised at the elimination dinner for the Veterans Memorial Park. Winner of the $1,000 prize was Charlie Lewis.

TABI members hope to begin clearing up the site on May 7 at 9 a.m. All are invited to help with this project.

FUNDS "TIED UP"

Senator Jon Hunter has been approached by TABI for the $20,000 of Budget Digest funds promised last year for the park playground equipment. He says it is "tied up" in the state Supreme Court, and all allocations are on hold. Concerned parents and all citizens are encouraged by TABI members to write to the governor and express opinions about this situation.

SPRING CLEANUP

The town of Terra Alta will have its spring cleanup May 9-13.

The Terra Alta City Park architect will have the final plans for the park by next week. They will be on display at City Hall.

CONSERVATION CAMP

The 64th annual West Virginia State Conservation Camp will be held June 13-18 at Camp Caesar in Webster County.

This camp provides a program of natural resources education and outdoor activities for the youths of West Virginia and surrounding states. Classes are presented by professionals from federal and state agencies. Sessions include forest management, Wildlife management, soil conservation, water conservation, watershed management, nature awareness, fish management, forest protection, and others. Afternoon activities include outdoor cooking, rappelling, shooting sports, mountain biking, water safety (boating), and others.

Evening Council fires and group activities provide campers an opportunity to contribute to the overall camp program. The cost is $125 for the week. Scholarships are available through local conservation agencies, sportsman's clubs, service clubs, and individuals. Persons may contact Webster County Extension agent Mike Hall by e-mail at MIhall@mail.wvu.edu for more information.

This camp is for youths age 14 as of January 1, 2005, and no older than 18 on June 1, 2005. Sponsors are available if the cost is a problem.

MEMORIAL BRICKS

Persons may purchase memorial bricks for the park entrance, or for City Hall if this is a donor's preference. Also, Terra Alta note-cards are on sale at City Hall and Gregg's Pharmacy.

TABI MEETING

The next TABI meeting will be Monday, May 2, at 7 p.m. All are invited to attend and provide ideas on improving the town. Information on current projects is available in the meeting room at City Hall.

While browsing, some students read their own books, played with toys, put puzzles together, drew themselves on the chalkboard, and arranged the daily calendar. These students were supervised by the teacher and several parents.

A Terra Alta Head Start class also visited the library. Instructor Judy Wiles and assistant Charlotte Layman had their class read a story read to them. They also checked out books and read some on their own.

Memorial books received recently in memory of Andrea Lipscomb Lockwood are White Hot by Sandra Brown and, in memory of Bill Harriman, Conviction by Richard North Patterson, given by Jean Yester. A copy of Instinctive Fly Fishing by Taylor Streit was given by Tom and Brenda Teets, also in memory of Bill Harriman.

4-H Club News

AURORA PIONEERS
by Michael O'Connor

Josh Mullenax called to order the April meeting of the Aurora Pioneers 4-H Club. Hunter Radford led the Pledge of Allegiance. Amber Grimm led the 4-H pledge.

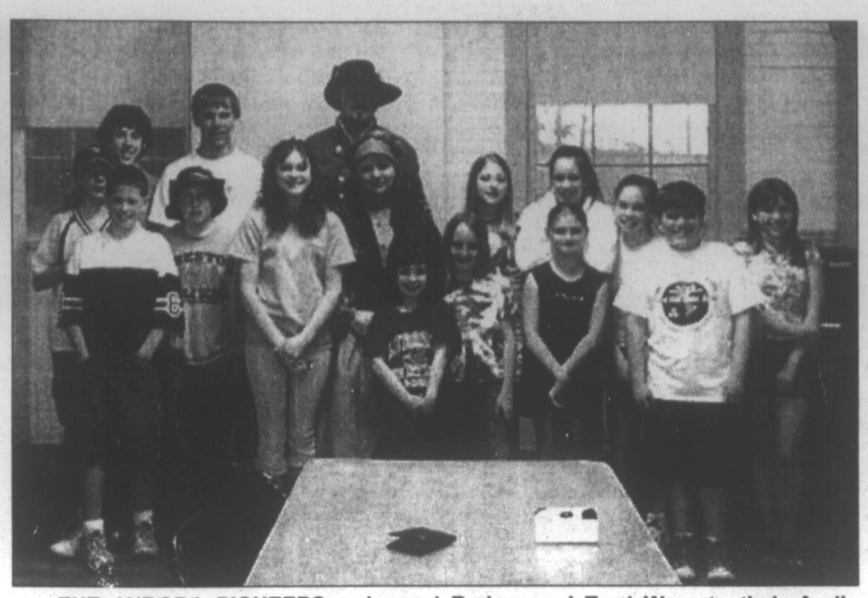
Under old business, Michael O'Connor gave a talk on dance camp. Our club also talked about visual presentations and 4-H Days. We also talked about Relay For Life and putting a team together for the Preston County relay.

Under new business, we talked about weekend camp that will be held May 7 and 8 for first-year 4-H members. Our club talked about Farm Safety Day, what members do there, and how much fun it is. We also discussed judging teams for certain subjects.

The program for the meeting was performed by Rodger and Terri Ware. They talked about the Civil War and showed us what the soldiers wore. They also showed the club what kind of weapons the solders had and what they had to carry around all day. The Wares also showed us what the uniforms were made of and talked about how the soldiers had to wear them all year long. The Wares dressed our president as a soldier.

Daniel O'Connor gave a demonstration about scrapbooking titled "Scrapbooking and Your Photographs."

The devotions were read by Josh Mullenax, "Miracle Spring," and Marissa Bachtel, "Friendship Road."



THE AURORA PIONEERS welcomed Rodger and Terri Ware to their April meeting last week. The Wares gave a presentation on the Civil War. Club members were able to see a Civil War uniform and learn about the soldiers who fought in the war. The couple also talked about their participation in Civil War re-enactments. Pictured, left to right, in the front row are Wyatt Sndyer, Dylan Radford, Marissa Bachtel, Lenea Mersing, Lena Cole, Jessica Shillingburg, Daniel O'Connor, and Samantha Ford. In the back row are Michael O'Connor, Travis Mersing, Josh Mullenaux, the Wares, Amber Grimm, Katelyn Radford, and Hunter Radford.

AFRICAN CHILDREN'S CHOIR TO PERFORM – The Church Women United of Tri-Towns will host the African Children's Choir on Saturday, May 7, in the sanctuary of Trinity United Methodist Church, located along Jones Street in Piedmont, at 7 p.m. The choir has been performing since 1984 as a way to bring attention to the conditions that many African children suffer such as starvation, war, and the AIDS epidemic. Funds raised during the touring are used to help the children in the choir and other African orphans through education and social welfare work. The choir began with all Ugandan children, but since 1999 its members come from all over Africa, including Sudan, Rwanda, Tanzania, and Kenya. Each year a new group of children is selected, and former members go back home to continue their education at the choir academy. This year's choir members represent eight different countries. There is no admission charge to the Piedmont concert, but a free-will offering will be taken to help support the ministry of the choir. For more information about the group, persons may visit africanchildrenschoir.com.

Elimination Of Medicare Subsidy Worries Local Health Care Providers

by Elizabeth A. Weiss
Capital News Service
WASHINGTON

When Dorothy Leuba, 83, left her life as a Baltimore City school teacher and moved out to the country in Garrett County, she left behind theater outings and board meetings but not access to health care.

Thanks to home visits by health care workers, Leuba does not need to finagle a ride to town for physical therapy on her broken leg or go without therapy after her doctor ordered her homebound.

But that type of service could be endangered, after a Medicare subsidy that helped pay for health workers' travel expired April 1. A bill in Congress would reinstate the add-on through March 31, 2007, but in the meantime officials say they will have to pull resources from other areas in order to keep the program going.

"It has a significant impact on our bottom line," said Rodney Glotfelty, health officer for the Garrett County Health Department.

The home-care visits that people like Leuba depend on are especially costly in rural areas because of the time and expense for workers to travel from place to place. Rural home care providers have received a Medicare subsidy in the form of a 5 percent add-on for years.

Glotfelty said that without the Medicare add-on, his department's expected deficit will increase as much as $40,000 this year. That, on top of state-mandated pay raises, could push last year's $135,000 deficit to $206,000 this year.

Bill Dombi, vice president for law for the National Association for Homecare and Hospice, said that rural home care providers lose an average of 5 cents on every dollar they spend. In Maryland, the loss is more than 12 cents.

Garrett County has the only public health department in the state that still maintains a Medicare-certified home care health agency. It also has lowest population density in the state, said Glotfelty, adding that home health workers logged over 70,418 miles taking care of patients in the county.

"We're in the far western region of the state, isolated, and have anywhere from 400 to 500 patients a year who depend on these services," Glotfelty said. "I have dozens of letters that tell me how invaluable these services are."

"A lot of times, we're the only people that they see on a weekly basis, " said Linda Moe, director of home health services for Garrett County. She said many have no close family or no family at all.

But it is not just the elderly who subscribe to this service: Homebound children also receive home care visits, Moe said.

Glotfelty said his department will have to start pulling resources from other, less-critical areas like health education programs, since the homecare service is not self-sufficient.

"We have never denied them that service," he said. "If you can't get more local money into the budget then we have to divert money from elsewhere in the department."

He said the rural add-on has been invaluable in the past and he hopes Congress can work it out and restore it the subsidy.

"I personally think it should be 10 percent" as it was in 2001, Glotfelty said. "We're going to continue to try to make ends meet."

Rep. Wayne Gilchrest, R-Kennedyville, agreed there is a need for the rural home care visit service, and sees that need in his own district on the Eastern Shore. But he also said that the responsibility extends beyond the government.

"There really is a need for it, there's no question," Gilchrest said. "But the other thing that there's a need for is family, neighbors, and friends to come by and help out."

But for people like Leuba, who was widowed 20 years ago and likes her independence on Deep Creek Lake, rural home care is vital.

"This is an excellent service, it really is," said Leuba, who plans to continue her therapy so she can go on a planned cruise in June. "I might have to take a cane," she said, but "I'm a determined old lady."

SHS TEACHERS HONORED BY NSHSS – The National Society of High School Scholars chairman and founder, Claes Nobel of the famous Nobel Prize family, sponsors the National "Educator of Distinction" awards to outstanding teachers nationwide. Each year student members of NSHSS have an opportunity to select the teacher who has made the most significant contribution to their academic career. The teacher must be an outstanding role model and positive influence – someone who has made a lasting difference in their lives by encouraging them to strive for excellence. Honored this year were Doug Oxford, Rodger Bowman, Diana Marks, Sarah Steyer, and Dave Mayfield. Oxford will attend a recognition program hosted by the National Society of High School Scholars in the Cannon House Office Building of the U.S. House of Representatives in Washington, D.C., on Saturday, May 7. Bowman teaches math and physics, Marks teaches biology, Oxford teaches social studies including psychology, and Steyer teaches chemistry. Pictured above, from the left, are Bowman, Marks, Oxford, and Steyer. Not pictured is Mayfield, who retired in June 2004.

For every adult who drives a new Dodge at the event and completes a short questionnaire, Dodge will donate $5 to the school. Tickets Now Available For Highland Fest

As preparation enters its final weeks for the McHenry Highland Festival, tickets are now available throughout the area.

The festival weekend will begin with the St. Andrews at Wisp Golf Tournament, Friday, June 3, at 1 p.m. at the Wisp. A concert featuring the internationally known fiddler Bonnie Rideout and the rollicking Celtic band Coyote Run begins with a social event at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Lodge at Wisp. The concert starts at 8 p.m.

On Saturday, June 4, the festival will feature a new group, bagpipe rock band Enter the Haggis, as well as many favorites from previous years. The festival gates will be open Saturday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. at the Garrett County Fairgrounds. The day will continue with a Ceilidh, Saturday night, to be held at the German Village. This Celtic party will feature Scottish music, food, and drink.

Now in its 18th year, the McHenry Highland Festival is held in any weather. Most activities can be moved inside if necessary, said Jerry McGee, festival coordinator. "This is a time to have fun and relax after a long Garrett County winter," he said.

Tickets for the festival and for the Friday night concert are available at Humberson Homes, McHenry; Arrowhead Market, Deep Creek Lake; Gregg's Pharmacy and The Gallery, Oakland; Beachy's Pharmacy, Grantsville; Kauffman Music, Cumberland; and Kleebs Music Center, Morgantown, W.Va. Tickets are also available on-line via PayPal through the festival web site.

Persons wanting more information about providing tickets may contact Gary Lambert at Humberson Homes or at glambert@highlandfest.info.

"There is something for everyone in Mountain Maryland's highlands," said McGee.

OVFD BIDS FAREWELL TO ONE OF ITS OWN – A ceremony accorded only for a fallen firefighter was conducted this morning at the Oakland fire hall. Donald Butler, 69, at one time the president of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, died Saturday. His funeral was held in the fire hall, a first for the department, at least according to long-time members. Butler put in many years of service with the organization. He was a retired miner, and was also a member of the Masons and the Elks, as well as a veteran of the U.S. Army. His casket can be seen above, surrounded by fellow firemen, being transported by "Old Number One," the OVFD's American LaFrance antique pumper, to Garrett County Memorial Gardens. The obituary for Mr. Butler can be found in this section of today's issue. Photo by John McEwen.

Friendsville Man Sentenced For Sexual Offenses

A Friendsville man was handed a jail sentence during a Garrett County District Court sentencing hearing yesterday afternoon for crimes related to sexual offenses against two children that occurred last year.

Bradley Allen Stover, 32, appeared before visiting Judge Edward Malloy, who handed down a total six-year sentence, all but 27 months of which was suspended; in addition, two-nine-month jail terms specified within that sentence were ordered to be served concurrently. The sentence stemmed from Stover's guilty pleas to two charges of second degree assault and one fourth degree sex offense.

By law Malloy also credited Stover's time already served since his July arrest by the Garrett Bureau of

MLP Resident Sentenced For 2003 Assault

A Mountain Lake Park man pleaded guilty to a second-degree assault charge in Garrett County Circuit Court last Wednesday. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Donald Ray Ashby Jr. to 90 days in the Garrett County Jail, which was suspended. Ashby was placed on supervised probation, with conditions that include having no contact with the victim.

Ashby, 32, and others were charged by Garrett County sheriff's deputies after an altercation that occurred in September 2003. The victim reported that he and his assailants had been in an argument at a location in West Virginia. The victim had left and returned to a friend's home in the Crellin area, where Ashby and others appeared.

According to State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch, Donald Ashby pulled the victim from his vehicle, and Brian James Ashby assaulted him. Brian James Ashby was previously convicted of assault in Garrett County District Court.

In other Circuit Court news, Robert Allen Sanders, 19, Tunnelton, W.Va., entered an Alford plea of guilty to misdemeanor theft.

"Under this plea, Sanders did not admit his guilt, but acknowledged the state could produce evidence that would lead to a conviction," said Thayer Welch.

Sherbin sentenced Sanders to 60 days in the Garrett County Jail, and then suspended 50 of those days. After his release, Sanders will be on probation, with conditions that include performing community service.

He was charged by Maryland State Police last September when a vendor at the Garrett County fairgrounds in McHenry reported that Sanders was seen stealing items from a booth, taking them to the parking lot, and placing them in the vehicle of a friend.

In an unrelated case, Mark Anthony Newman, 41, Ransom, W.Va., pleaded guilty to driving while his license was suspended in another jurisdiction. The judge sentenced him to 30 days in the Garrett County

Attorney General Orders Local Home Builder To Pay More Than $130,000

Attorney General J. Joseph Curran Jr. announced on Tuesday that his Consumer Protection Division had issued a final order requiring a local builder to refund payments of $28,603.70 he collected to build a home in Garrett County and pay penalties of $100,000.

The division found that Donald Corby, doing business as D&M Corby Construction, violated Maryland's Custom Home Protection Act by failing to place monies paid by a consumer into an escrow account or having a surety bond to cover the deposits; violated the Home Builder Registration Act by acting as a home builder without being registered with the division's Home Builder Registration Unit; and violated the Consumer Protection Act by failing to build the home as promised.

The order bars Corby from acting as a home builder in the state of Maryland until he is registered as a home builder under Maryland's Home Builder Registration Act; requires payment of restitution for all monies that he has received from consumers for new homes that he never built or completed; requires payment of a civil penalty in the amount of $100,000; and requires payment of costs in the amount of $1,778.19.

"Before paying any money, consumers need to protect the biggest investment of their lifetime by ensuring that their home is being built by a registered home builder and that any deposits they make are protected by an escrow account, bond or letter of credit," said Curran.

Consumers can check whether their builder is registered and how the builder protects deposit money by contacting the Home Builder Registration Unit at 410-576-6573 in Baltimore or toll free at 877-259-4525, or by checking on the attorney general's web site: oag.state.md.us/homebuilder.

Consumers who have paid money to Donald Corby/D&M Corby Construction in connection with a new home should also contact the Home Builder Registration Unit.

MLP Woman Sentenced For Assault Charge

A 20-year-old Mountain Lake Park woman was sentenced in Garrett County Circuit Court last week for a second-degree assault charge. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Nikki Marie Donley to one year in the Garrett County Jail, which was then suspended, and she was placed on supervised probation.

Donley was charged by Maryland State Police last August after she admitted to grabbing a crying child and causing a fracture to his arm. She pleaded guilty to the charge in February, but sentencing was delayed until a presentence investigation was completed.

In other Circuit Court news, charges of assault and reckless endangerment against Charlene Renee Brun, 35, Swanton, were placed on the stet docket last Wednesday. Brun is required to have no contact with the victim during the term of the stet

The charges were brought by a Swanton man who alleged Brun shot him with a BB gun while he was riding on a lawn tractor along Black Hawk School Road.

IN HONOR OF MOM – The Garrett County Arts Council is honoring mothers this month, having asked the public for any and all pieces of art or photography celebrating the maternal ones among us. The public responded in a big way, according to Steve Schiosnagle, executive director of the arts council, as the Gallery, located along Alder Street in Oakland, now houses an eclectic and extensive exhibit all for moms. This quilt, by Kathryn F. Vitek, is included in the display. She said this work was inspired by a photo of her mother, Jennie Rose Megna Maltese, and her grandmother, Dorothea Buttita Megna. "My grandmother died before I was born and my mother was probably approximately 20 years old when the photo was taken," Vitek said. "The quilt is made entirely of recycled ties and is one of a series of family photo interpretations in necktie fabric." The exhibit will be on display throughout the month. See story on the arts page.

Mikulski Visits FSU, Listens To Local Officials

Senator Barbara Mikulski (D-Md.) met with commissioners from Garrett and Allegany counties on Tuesday at Frostburg State University. The meeting was part of a series the senator is conducting throughout the state to "celebrate legislative victories" and to hear local concerns. She also discussed her tuition tax credit amendment.

"I know western Maryland; I fight for western Maryland; and I deliver for western Maryland," Mikulski told the county commissioners during the one-hour lunch meeting. "It's day-to-day needs, like C&O Canal rewatering, and water sewer infrastructure. It's also long-term needs, like economic development, job creation, and education. Western Marylanders can count on me in the U.S. Senate."

In addition to giving the commissioners an update on Congressional activities, Mikulski also listened to their concerns. The officials discussed the need for a north/south highway corridor along U.S. Route 219 and U.S. Route 220, wireless broadband service, and jobs.

Tom Cooley, Allegany County director of economic development, told the senator that American Woodmark had hired 140 people at its new Rawlings plant and expects to eventually employ a total of 500 to 600.

Garrett County commissioner Fred Holliday said another 250 would be hired when the company builds its lumber drying and milling plant in the Keyser's Ridge Industrial Park. He noted that the Garrett County plant would produce about 50 tons of sawdust a day.

"We'd like to find something to move in next door to use that sawdust," he said.

Earlier in the day, Mikulski visited with students from Frostburg State University to discuss her efforts to help make college tuition more affordable for families. Mikulski has introduced legislation to provide families who send a child to college or adults going to school with a $4,000 tax credit to help them afford the cost of higher education.

"College is part of the American dream. It shouldn't be part of a financial nightmare for families," Mikulski said. "College tuition is on the rise. Our students are graduating with so much debt it's like their first mortgage. Families are looking for help. That's why I'm offering a solution that would give every family sending a child to college a tuition tax credit of up to $4,000. I want to make sure every student has access to a

Hafer Will Not Seek Fifth Term; Edwards To Pursue Senate Seat

District 1 Senator John Hafer announced Tuesday afternoon at his Frostburg office that he would not seek a fifth term. The 73-year-old Republican cited political and personal reasons for not running for re-election in 2006.

He noted that the political climate between Republican governor Robert Ehrlich and the Democratic-controlled Senate and House had gotten progressively worse with each General Assembly session.

Hafer said he was actually able to get more accomplished for his district when there was a Democratic governor and a Democratic majority in the General Assembly. The senator added, however, that if he thought Ehrlich had a chance of getting re-elected, he would have considered running for office again.

But Hafer also cited personal reasons for not seeking a fifth term – two of his four children are experiencing health problems. Hafer's wife Lorene was at his side as he announced his decision not to run.

The senator called his public service "a privilege." Though his political career has had many highlights, he is particularly proud of two child-related bills that he sponsored in the General Assembly and which later became law. Maryland now requires that children be assigned a representative to look after their interests during divorce cases. Other recent legislation initiated by Hafer resulted in increased penalties for drivers who pass school buses with activated red stop lights.

Hafer also announced that House minority leader George Edwards would run for the vacant Senate seat and that he supported the District 1A delegate's bid for the office. Edwards, 57, is expected to make a formal announcement about his campaign plans in the near future.

Edwards, also a Republican, is in his sixth term representing all of Garrett and a portion of Allegany counties.

Wanted Subject Turns Self In Without Incident

A weeklong search for a Deer Park man concluded Sunday after he called the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police to turn himself in to state troopers.

Brian Keith DeBerry Jr., 24, was sought on charges stemming from allegations that he assaulted his girlfriend and pointed a .22 caliber rifle at her head during an April 24 domestic altercation at a Swanton residence.

Investigators said DeBerry phoned police and announced that he intended to turn himself in. State troopers apprehended him without incident at a friend's residence, where he had reportedly been hiding out over recent days.

DeBerry faces charges of first- and second-degree assault and use of a deadly weapon with intent to injure filed by state troopers following the incident at a Sweitzertown Road residence. He is being held in the Garrett County Detention Center on two separate bonds set by a District Court commissioner totaling $80,000.

DeBerry is also wanted on outstanding warrants from the Shinnston (W.Va.) Police Department on charges of attempted robbery and battery.

GC Chamber To Observe National Tourism Week

In recognition of travel and tourism's "tremendous economic, social, and cultural impact on Garrett County," Chamber of Commerce president Charlie Ross, has announced plans to observe National Tourism Week, May 7–15. Dubbed this year as "See America Week," this annual celebration is sponsored nationally by the Travel Industry Association of America.

A proclamation for Tourism Week issued this morning by the county commissioners reads, "The Board of Garrett County Commissioners joins together with the Chamber of Commerce to say welcome to the friends we have made and the friends we have not yet met; and from nature's bounty to the friendly embrace of all Garrett countians, we exclaim our pride in everything we have to 'CROW about.'"

CROW stands for Community, Recreation, Outreach, Winners.

"Certainly tourism is a great boon to Garrett County," said Ernie Gregg, chairman of the Board of Garrett County Commissioners. "It has helped us generate an income that allows us to do many things countywide."

Special programs will be held at the 1884 B&O Train Station this Saturday, May 7, to recognize the first anniversary of the opening of the Shoppe at Heritage Square. A wooden chair and bench making workshop will start at 9 a.m. Buggy rides will be offered by Pleasant Valley Dream Rides (weather permitting), starting at 10 a.m.

At a Mother's Day workshop, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., children can make gifts for their mothers. The cost for this event will be $4 per child for the supplies provided.

"We will have sheep on the lawn in front of the station Saturday and Sunday," said tourism specialist Stephanie Shay. "Visit with the animals and see handmade items from the sheep's wool. Refreshments and

THE GARRETT COUNTY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE will observe "See America Week," May 7-15. In recognition of the local impact of tourism, the chamber has planned a number of events during the week. See story for details. Pictured is chamber president Charlie Ross, left, and tourism specialist Billie Durham reviewing the spring-summer issue of the chamber's "Calendar of Events." The publication is distributed free to keep visitors and local residents aware of the many events happening in Garrett County. The rooster between Ross and Durham is a symbol of "Something to CROW About," which appears in The Republican and is heard on WKHJ, WMSG, and The Train. "People pay thousands of dollars to come here and enjoy the types of things we can enjoy all the time," said Ross about the numerous events listed in the calendar.

Countywide Yard Sale Slated By Chamber, Towns

The municipalities of Garrett County and the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce Inc. are uniting to promote a countywide two-day event to serve as an opportunity for individuals to earn some extra cash while aiding in recycling. The event will also provide fundraising opportunities for local civic organizations.

Area residents are encouraged to take part in a Countywide Yard Sale to be held Friday, May 20, and Saturday, May 21. Participation is open to anyone wishing to take part. There are no fees involved.

In addition to individual sales, local organizations are encouraged to take part in the weekend activities by setting up sale tables or having roadside food and bake sales or even car washes. Most municipalities are making public space available for organizations to utilize. Organizations who do not have access to an available space may reserve a spot within a town by contacting the event coordinator Karen Reckner at 301-334-5093.

"Be aware that some towns have ordinances regarding signage. Without exception, all usual regulations should be followed. In addition, vendors should remove any unsold items and signage at the end of the sale," said Reckner.

Parking and safety issues are also a concern, she added. All sellers should consider providing off-road parking and not use state rights of ways.

"As many of our communities encourage spring clean-up and fix-up, this is an opportunity to make a little profit from the items you no longer need," said Reckner. "Your cast-off items can be recycled for a new life with a different owner."

Promotion of the yard sale will be done regionally in an effort to attract visitors from throughout the region to make the drive to Garrett County. A flyer will be produced to designate areas that are participating.

To have locations included on the flyer, persons should submit information to Reckner at 301-334-5093, fax 301-334-5095, or e-mail karen@garrettchamber.com.

SHS STUDENTS WIN FIRST FOR THE REPUBLICAN PROJECT – Two students from Southern High School accepted a first-place award in the Special Projects category of the Maryland History Day state competition, held Saturday at Montgomery College in Rockville. An exhibit by local students Natalie Rohrbaugh and Ashley Walters titled "Closing the Communication Gap: The Role of the Local Newspaper" was granted the first place honor. The exhibit focused on the long history of The Republican newspaper, the only paper published in Garrett County and one that has been in operation since 1877. David Bender was the sponsoring teacher for these students, as well as two other groups attending the state contest. Pictured from left are Walters, Rorhbaugh, and Bea Hardy, the deputy director of the Maryland Historical Society library. Hardy presented the award to the competitors. The girls said they were "thrilled" to accept the recognition and monetary prize, especially in light of the high quality entries. "We offer heartfelt thanks to the staff and the editor of The Republican, whose cooperation and tireless assistance in providing research materials made the creation of this project possible," the girls said. In return, the staff at the newspaper extended thanks to the girls for selecting the paper for their project. Natalie is the daughter of Allen and Diane Rohrbaugh, and Ashley is the daughter of Daryl and Liz Walters, all of Mtn. Lake Park.

Baltimore Men Charged With Stealing Sign

Two Baltimore men were charged with stealing a sign and destroying property in a Saturday evening incident along Mayhew Inn Road, according to the McHenry barrack of the Maryland State Police.

Radoslaw Czarnecki, 22, and Grzegorz Chojnowski, 36, were apprehended at approximately 5:30 p.m. as they were walking in the middle of the roadway after a sign had been stolen, a mailbox containing mail had been opened, and mail had been strewn along the road. Police said both men were highly intoxicated, and were charged with theft, destruction of property, and disorderly conduct.

The stolen sign was recovered by the investigating trooper. Both suspects were later released from the Garrett County Detention Center on a $1,000 bond each, set by a District Court commissioner.

Public Invited To Attend Parent Advisory Forum

The public is encouraged to attend the Garrett County Forum on Proposals of the Maryland Parent Advisory Council (M-PAC) tonight, May 5, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at Garrett College.

State Superintendent of Schools Nancy S. Grasmick appointed M-PAC in 2003 to generate a series of recommendations to increase parent involvement. More than 120 parents, educators, and advocates from across the state have been meeting for more than a year to explore the issues.

Preliminary recommendations are being presented in a series of 24 public forums in each of Maryland's jurisdictions to gather direct input before final recommendations are delivered to Dr. Grasmick and the State Board of Education in August.

The forum provides the public with the opportunity to learn about the recommendations and to give verbal and/or written com-

Military Welcome Home Slated At Oakland Legion

The local Military Family Support Group has scheduled a "Welcome Home" open house celebration for all service men or women who have returned home from a military deployment stemming from the United States' efforts in combating terrorism at home and abroad. The event is slated from 4 to 7 p.m. on Sunday, May 22, at Proctor Kildow American Legion Post #71 in Oakland.

Introductions and presentations will take place at 5 p.m., when the 10 local members of the 253rd Engineering Detachment who completed a 15-month deployment, most of which was in Uzbekistan, will be honored. Other individual presentations will follow.

"If you know of someone locally who has returned from active duty since the beginning of the global war on terrorism, the Military Family Support Group would like to know about them and include them in this special day of 'welcome' for a job well done," said Rev. Mel Menker, a spokesperson for the group that provides family support for all branches of the military. (See contact information below.)

"The support group has identified a large number of persons from our area affected by the war on terrorism," Menker continued. "There are a significant number of local soldiers who have served in the Iraq and Afghanistan combat theaters, or who are currently serving or will be deployed in the near future. In addition to Iraq and Afghanistan, local soldiers have served in various support locations such as Germany, Kuwait, Uzbekistan, Qatar, Kyrgyzstan, and South Korea, to name but a few. Still others have served at various locations stateside.

"Because many of our local soldiers have returned one or two at a time, there has been no organized recognition of their service to maintain our freedom. We encourage the entire community to join us for the Welcome Home open house, further details of which will be published in the near future in The Republican."

To submit the name of a service member, or for additional information, persons may call Judy Fazenbaker at 301-746-4019, Debbie Workman at 301-746-8717, or Cathy or Mel Menker at 301-334-5906.

MILITARY SERVICE RECOGNIZED – The Garrett County Board of Commissioners has issued a proclamation declaring May as Military Service Support Month. Every soldier who returns to this area from a military deployment will received a copy of the proclamation from the local Military Family Support Group. Pictured seated, from the left, are Commissioners Ernie Gregg, Dave Beard, and Fred Holliday. Standing are: Bill Dulling, whose son Michael is currently serving in the Marine Corps in Iraq; Deb Rounds, whose son Andy is currently serving the Air Force in Iraq; Judy Fazenbaker, whose husband recently returned from Maryland Army National Guard service in Uzbekistan; Cathy and Mel Menker, whose son recently returned from MANG service in Uzbekistan; Phil Workman, whose son recently returned from MANG service in Uzbekistan; Scott Winters, who recently returned from West Virginia Air National Guard service overseas; Brian Schlossnagle, whose father is departing for service with the MANG in Iraq; and Paul Mullan, whose son Adam recently returned from Army Reserve service in Iraq. See story for details on a 'Welcome Home' open house slated for Sunday, May 22, at American Legion Post #71 in Oakland.

Area Farmers' Markets To Open Three Wks. Early

The Mountain Fresh Producers Association has announced that members have voted to open the tailgate market season over three weeks earlier than in previous years. This and other issues were decided at the association's recent meeting.

The official opening date for Garrett County farmers' markets for this year will be Wednesday, June 15, in Oakland, and Thursday, June 16, in McHenry.

"We are very pleased that the markets will open earlier this year," said Willie Lantz, extension educator for agriculture. "Cooperative Extension has been working with produce farmers to help extend the fresh produce season with the use of high tunnels, row covers, and mulch. More and more producers will have vegetables and berries in June."

Other business conducted at the meeting included the election of board members Paul Perrine, Max Dubansky, Karen Teets, Betty Bolyard, and John Slawter. The board also includes Cathi Harsh, Cathy Sanders, Charles DeBerry, and Dayton Bolyard.

The board recruited members to serve on three working committees: advertising, internal auditing, and constitution/bylaws update.

Current and potential members were reminded to pay the annual membership dues by June 1 to be eligible for the discount, and that all membership dues for 2005 must be paid by August 1. Members will be able to prepay the season's daily set-up fees for both the Oakland and McHenry markets this year.

The next membership meeting of the Mountain Fresh Producers Association will be held on Tuesday, June 7, at 7 p.m. at the extension office along Route 135 in Mtn. Lake Park. The recommendations from the constitution/bylaws update committee will be considered at that time.

The Mountain Fresh Producers Association tailgate markets are held from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Wednesdays and Saturdays at the Mtn. Fresh pavilion by the town parking lot in Oakland and on Thursdays at the fairgrounds in McHenry. At these Mountain Fresh tailgate markets, customers will be able to purchase a wide variety of fresh vegetables, fruits and berries, jams and jellies, fresh baked goods, plants, flowers, herbs, honey, and crafts.

For more information, persons may visit the Mountain Fresh Producers Association website at www.MountainFresh.org, or contact Cathy Sanders, market master, at 301-334-4580 or the extension office at 301-334-6960.

Who is "Right"?...

A Texas legislator has sponsored a bill in his state that, if passed, is likely to have all kinds of ramifications, mostly negative. While there are surely scores of other — and much larger — fish to fry, the focus of Rep. Al Edwards' attack is high school cheerleading.

It seems that he and a number of his constituents are highly offended at what they deem as vulgar, suggestive, erotic routines by some high school cheerleading squads, and to fix that problem he has introduced legislation that will withhold state money from the high schools that allow their cheerleaders to perform in this manner. There is one school in Texas, most likely in Rep. Edwards' district, at which four of 15 members of the cheerleading squad have become pregnant.

First of all, it's a huge, and likely unfounded, leap to conclude that these pregnancies were a direct result of their erotic dance routines on the sidelines. None of them, as far as we know, were a result of a rape by a crazed fan who just couldn't control himself after watching the cheerleaders at the Friday night game. Granted, teen pregnancy is a serious problem (has been for centuries) that should not be taken lightly, but there are many other, far more complicated, reasons for its occurrence, and far more effective ways of curtailing it, none of which have anything to do with cheerleading.

The real danger, though, in Edwards' proposal is that it is another example of trying to legislate morality, which does not work, plus the meting out of judgment in such cases is so highly subjective. While the great majority of citizens would agree that outright public nudity displayed by cheerleaders would be extremely inappropriate, the finer issues are way more difficult to settle.

Let's take length of skirt on a cheerleader, for example. Some feel strongly that anything above the knee is inappropriate. Others believe just as strongly that there is nothing wrong with having the hem just above the knee. Still others would see nothing wrong with a mid-thigh length, as long as there is appropriate covering underneath. Who is "right"? Who, for heaven's sake, in the Texas state government is going to decide what's appropriate, and be "right"?

It should also be noted that there are already enforceable laws on the books against indecent exposure which would "cover" the aforementioned acts of public nudity.

When there is a situation in which the majority of "the crowd" believes there is inappropriate and suggestive behavior exhibited in cheerleading routines, handling it should be kept within the school, or at least within the local board of education. A warning from a principal to a cheerleading advisor, with a second offense being that advisor's dismissal, would be one relatively easy option. Failure of a principal to intervene could be addressed by concerned citizens taking their complaint to the county supervisor of high school education, and if necessary, to the local board of education, which could take action.

Such matters should not automatically be placed in the hands of the state government at the get-go, as 99.9% of them can be appropriately addressed at the local level.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

8.8 billion dollars!

That's billion, with a capital B. This is the amount of money that our government cannot account for with our aid to Iraq.

That's money that could be used for uninsured citizens, schools, highways, alternative energy development...but no! Instead, this administration cuts funding for veterans, our elderly, and basic social programs that could "Feed my sheep," as Jesus said. Now we can fund tax cuts for oil and pharmaceutical corporations as well as the richest 3%. These "tax breaks" are often being used to invest in "off-shore development." Don't you think the least they could do would be to put money back into the country that made their success possible?

These out-of-control, self-centered, corporate-bought, "roach chasers" do not represent the true Republican party. Look what these ya-hoos have done with fiscal responsibility! You can't give money back that you don't have! The All-American Republican knows you must work with a balanced budget. Our children, and theirs as well, will be paying for this stroll in economic LaLa Land. The real Republicans must seize their party back from the neo-conservatives who think they speak for all of us. They do not speak for me.

To the Editor:

I did some research following my most recent GCSD bill and the inclusion of the CBRF.

It appears that the two members of the Maryland Legislature, Senator Hafer and Delegate Edwards, according to the official Maryland Legislature web site, voted for the above fee as part of SB 320 of the 2004 legislative session. Senator Hafer's vote was recorded 4/10/2004 on SB 320.

It appears that on this issue Garrett County property owners were not effectively represented. I wonder if these two members were even aware that they were levying a fee on property not contributing to the bay's demise.

As a Montgomery County property owner, I have no objection in assisting the clean-up of the Bay. Owning property at Deep Creek Lake, I do have an objection of supporting the restoration when, in fact, my GC property fails to impact the bay.

Will the entire state contribute to the Mississippi River Restoration Fund – I doubt it!

To the Editor:

For young people in Garrett County, alcohol is the number one drug of choice. In fact, teens use alcohol more frequently and heavily than all other illegal drugs combined. Although most children ages 10 to 14 have not yet begun to drink, early adolescence is a time of special risk for beginning to experiment with alcohol.

While some parents may feel relieved that their teen is "only" drinking, it is important to remember that alcohol is a powerful, mood altering drug, as surely as cocaine and marijuana are. It is illegal for anyone under the age of 21 to drink alcohol, and it is dangerous.

Kids who drink are more likely to be victims of violent crime, have serious problems in school, and be involved in drinking related traffic crashes. The message is clear; alcohol use is very risky business for young people. That's why it is so important to help your child avoid any alcohol use.

Here are some tips that might help:

• Monitor alcohol use in your home. If you keep alcohol in your home, keep track of the supply. Make clear to your child that you do not allow unchaperoned parties or other teen gatherings in your home.

• Connect with other parents. Getting to know other parents can help you keep closer tabs on your child.

• Keep track of your child's activities. Be aware of your teen's plans and whereabouts.

• Develop family rules about teen drinking. When parents establish clear no alcohol rules and expectations, their children are less likely to begin drinking.

• Set a good example. Parents are important role models for their children, even children who are fast becoming teenagers.

• Encourage healthy alternatives to alcohol. One reason kids drink is to beat boredom. Encourage your kids to participate in supervised after school and weekend activities that are challenging and fun.

April was Alcohol Awareness Month and this year's theme was "Together We Can Stop Underage Drinking." Awareness brings forth knowledge, action solves problems. Not one, but 12 months of the year, underage drinking requires a cooperative effort between parents, schools, community leaders, interested organizations, individuals, and the youth. To find out more about how you can get involved in preventing underage drinking or to find out about alcohol-free activities in your community, call the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-7730 or 301-895-3111.

Sincerely,
Nancy Brady, CPP
Alcohol and Drug
Prevention Supervisor

Editor's note: The following letter written by county attorney Gorman Getty has been submitted for publication in response to a letter by Charles Thorn published earlier. This letter was sent to county administrator Monty Pagenhardt.

Dear Mr. Pagenhardt:

At your request, I have looked at the provisions of Maryland law relating to the connection of abutting property to new or existing sewer facilities that are owned and operated by the Garrett County Sanitary District. As you know, I have repeated frequently my understanding of the provisions of sanitary district law relating to mandatory connections as requiring the connection of abutting property owner upon completion of the construction of facilities and the disconnecting of existing facilities on the property. The issue apparently has come up in the context of proposed water and sewer systems at Sandy Beach, Penelacres, and Stockslager Road. Further, it is my understanding that some type of a deferral arrangement has been either suggested or agreed to with respect to projects in these areas.

The connection of a water line or sewer line from an existing house or facility to the public facilities of the Sanitary District is generally controlled by the provisions of Section 9-661, et seq., of the Environment Article of the Annotated Code of Maryland (the "Code"). This provision of the Code details that, during construction of a water or sewer line, it is the obligation of the sanitary commission to construct a connector to the property line of each parcel that abuts the way in which the water line or sewer line is laid. Upon completion of the water or sewer line, the sanitary commission or district is then required to notify abutting property owners of the completion of the facilities. Finally, upon notification, the existing provisions of the Code (Section 9-661 (e)), provides as follows:

When the plumbing system of the property has been connected to the connector constructed by the sanitary commission, the owner of the property shall disconnect, as appropriate, each cesspool, sink drain, and privy on the property so that the disconnected component is (1) Closed; (2) Abandoned; and (3) In a sanitary condition so that no odor or nuisance can arise from it.

The disconnection follows the provisions of the Code (Section 9-661 (c)) that requires that the owner of abutting property, upon notice of completion, pay the connection charges determined and make appropriate connections to the

POPE FOR ALL CHRISTIANS

Americans just don't understand that France is one inch thick atheist and 100 miles deep Catholic. Numerous friends have sent e-messages asking what France thinks about Pope Benedict XVI, apparently expecting a report of opposition and disdain.

Today, the Christian Feast of the Ascension – a public holiday here in secular, atheistic France, seems a symbolic occasion for a reply.

The French press has pointed out that Benedict XVI agrees with the teaching of the Catholic Church. Catholic Europe, perhaps all of Europe, is not surprised.

It is a little embarrassing to state the obvious fact that the pope believes what his church teaches, but it seems that in the United States even many Catholics expected the cardinals to elect a Protestant pope.

The European opponents of the Church and its teaching seem appreciative or, at least, resigned to the idea that the pope should believe and teach Catholic doctrine. Rebellious teenagers are often comforted by Daddy's constancy.

Sure, there's been some sniping, but it is mostly eighteenth century, Voltairian sniping. That's an argument among rationalists: Cartesians versus Thomists. It is a challenge which begins to look a little old-fashioned in the new frontiers of French Leftism. (There is also a swath of French Catholicism conservative enough to wonder if Benedict XVI might be a bit too liberal.)

Then there is the fact that Josef Ratzinger is German.

Germans spent most of 75 years giving themselves a bad name in France, Europe and the world. If the Germans have been somewhat restrained in expressions of national pride that one of their countrymen has been named to the most pre-eminent position in the world today (the first German to hold a position of international rank since World War II), it is a reticence born of a proper shame.

For the past 60 years, however, Germans and French together have been forging a new vision of Europe, based upon mutual cultural respect and intense economic cooperation. If (that's "if!") French criticism has been muted, it is because no one would want to give an impression that there is prejudice against the selection of a German.

Whatever else the election of Benedict XVI means, it signals the end of World War II, just in time for the sixtieth anniversary, on May 8, of its formal end in the European theatre. In this respect Cardinal Ratzinger's choice of name has special import.

Benedict XV, an Italian nobleman, served as pope from 1914 until his death in 1922. He was a peacenik during World War I, earning him the accusation by the French of being "the German pope" and that by the Germans of being "the French pope."

In fact, "Benedictine" has been almost a synonym for "peace" in Europe for 1,500 years. St. Benedict's Rule provided, and provides, a constitution for a microeconomy of peace in a world at war. More specifically, during the tenth century, Benedictine monks organized the first peace movement in the history of the world.

After World War I Benedict XV canonized Joan of Arc who, while a soldier and a constant inspiration for French military valor (and French patriotism), was martyred, in no small part, because she was abandoned by the king whom she had so faithfully served.

Benedict XV's efforts for peace and his canonization of St. Joan have both been reported in the papers here. Neither point is lost upon the French public, nor – at the same time – would play well to the American audience.

Ratzinger the German has sent a clear message that for him, as for every German chancellor from Adenauer to Kohl, "A good German is a good European."

Pope Benedict XVI seeks to use a limitation – being German – as a bridge to others. That is as true of his relationship to non-Catholic Christians as to non-German Europeans.

Since the Edict of Toleration by the Roman Emperor Constantine in A.D. 313, Benedict XVI is the first pope to come from a country not predominately Catholic. His home state, the former kingdom of Bavaria is Catholic, certainly, but Germany as a whole is a country where there are sufficient Lutheran, Reformed and Catholic Christians that each group must take notice of the other two.

I fully expect Benedict XVI to continue John Paul II's intense and loving effort at reconciliation with Christians of the Orthodox East. I also fully expect him to add an intense and loving effort at reconciliation with non-Catholic Christians of the West.

Benedict XVI, as a German, as one of the finest theological minds of the past fifty years, as a bishop, as John Paul II's right hand for a quarter century, has the capacity to reach out to all Christians as no pope has done or could have done since the Reformation.

The Ascension is about faithful and fearful people losing sight of one promise while waiting for another.

A profusion of signs witness to Pope Benedict's humility and goodwill in which he is as skillful as genuine. Those signs awaken hope that certain twentieth century evils are truly over, though never forgotten, a hope for which France and all of Europe longs.

Grantsville Man Receives One-Year Sentence

A Grantsville area man pleaded guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court on Tuesday to second-degree assault. Judge Fred Thayer sentenced Vonn Aaron Snyder, 22, to one year in the Garrett County Jail, with all of that sentence suspended. Snyder is on two years of supervised probation.

He was charged by Maryland State Police last July after they responded to Snyder's residence for a domestic dispute. After speaking with the victim and observing marks on her person, the officers arrested Snyder for assault.

Alcohol was noted by the officers to have played a role in this event, said the state's attorney.

In other Circuit Court news, Jesse Franklin Liller, 22, Oakland, pleaded guilty on Wednesday to leaving the scene of an accident involving personal injury. Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced him to six months in the Garrett County Jail, with all of the sentence suspended. Liller will be on probation. A $500 fine was also imposed.

He was charged with this and related violations following the investigation of an accident that occurred on Mosser Road in McHenry in April 2004. Troopers responded to a reported suspicious vehicle in the area and found that, prior to their arrival, the vehicle had been wrecked and the driver had fled. The passenger, who was slightly injured, reported that Liller was the driver.

The related charges against Liller were dismissed by the state upon his plea.

In another case, drug possession charges against Donald David Wood III were placed on the stet docket on Tuesday. Wood, 22, of Olney, was arrested by Maryland State Police in November 2003.

Wood was stopped along I-68 for a speeding violation when the troopers smelled the odor of burnt marijuana. A small quantity of marijuana and various items of drug paraphernalia were located following a search of Wood and his vehicle.

Conditions of the stet disposition require Wood to complete a drug-treatment program and to perform 30 hours of community service.

OAKLAND NOTED ITS OWN ARBOR DAY recently with a tree-planting ceremony at the former Armory building on South Eighth Street, which is in the process of being transformed into a community center for youth and senior citizens. The McHenry Highland Festival board sponsored the ceremony, and intends to start a grove of trees significant to Celtic history and culture by adding a tree each year. This European mountain ash, also known as a "Rowan" tree, has deep roots in Scottish mythology as a protector against witchcraft and will grow to a height of 30 feet. Pictured from the left are Chuck Blamble and Rick Carvell of the town's Tree Committee, Barbara Cosner, Rick Kutchman, and Chris McCann of the Garrett College Pipes and Drums, Deb Clatterbuck of the Chamber of Commerce, student Holly Hershman, Charlie Ross of the Chamber, commissioners Dave Beard and Fred Holliday, Cherie Ross of the Oakland Main Street Program, Oakland mayor Asa McCain, Jeff Nelson of the McHenry Highland Festival board, Becky Wilson of the Department of Natural Resources Forest Service, and Dr. Charles Hoffeditz, chairman of the GC Forest Conservancy Board. The tree was donated by Hoffman's Nursery of Salisbury, Pa.

Drug Charges Stem From I-68 Traffic Stop

A Martinsburg, W.Va., man who reportedly attempted to flee a Maryland State Police trooper was charged with drug possession when suspected marijuana was found in his pocket.

At approximately 10 a.m. Sunday morning Samuel Clayton Bentley, 20, was traveling eastbound on Interstate 68 when a westbound trooper noticed his vehicle traveling at a high rate of speed. When the trooper turned around to follow the BMW sedan using his lights and siren, the car left the interstate at the Finzel exit in an apparent attempt to elude a traffic stop. The trooper lost the vehicle for approximately five minutes before locating it on northbound Beall School Road attempting to take the entrance ramp to eastbound I-68.

Upon stopping the vehicle and speaking to the driver, the trooper learned that Bentley's West Virginia driver's license had been suspended. A search subsequent to Bentley's arrest turned up a glass bowl bearing suspected burnt marijuana residue in his pocket.

Bentley was charged with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. He was released from the Garrett County Detention Center upon posting a $1,500 bond set by a District Court commissioner.

Jail. The sentence was suspended in favor of probation. Newman was also fined $500.

Maryland State Police stopped Newman along I-68 for a speeding violation last July. A check of his license status revealed the suspension.

To the Editor:

I feel that I have egg on my face; it's undeserved egg, but it's still there. This Sunday will make the second anniversary since the wall in the Garden in the Corner was dedicated to all of the citizens of Garrett County who died too young. Several people have asked me why the names of these children haven not yet been etched onto the bricks; I can only ask them to be patient. In order for the names to be inscribed, we must have a succession of several dry, warm days, and if you think about our Garrett County weather during the last two years…well, it's been warm, but not dry; or it has been dry, but not warm. We've had days that were warm and dry, but not in a succession that could be labeled "several."

Many people have called and asked me to add names to the list, and I promised them that I would open up the list of young people to be recognized each Mother's Day, which, of course, is upon us. If you'd like to add a young person's name to the wall, please do the following: Each brick can contain two lines of print – the child's name forms the first line and his or her years form the second. Print the child's name neatly on a piece of paper along with his or her birth year and death year. (Please note: the engravers can only put 14 letters and spaces on a line, so you may have to use first initials if the last name is several letters long.) Before May 25th send the name to Jane B. Avery, c/o Our Town Theatre, 121 Center Street, Oakland, MD 21550.

While it is not mandatory to donate to the wall project for the prospective bricks, I gratefully accept all monetary contributions to this cause. Each brick costs $20 to engrave; right now, there's enough money in the bank account to cover the names on the list that we've already submitted, plus one or two more. If you'd like to contribute to the wall project, please make your check out to Our Town Theatre Special Projects and send it to the address included above. If you have any questions, please call me at 301-334-5640, option #3. Thank you for your interest and for your patience.

Sincerely,
Jane B. Avery

Habitat Director Riley Reaches Out For "Faith Works" Support

by Glenn Tolbert

Doug Riley is a man who can tell you some things about Garrett County that often leave people stunned.

Here are two of them: 1) 62 families in the county have no running water in their homes; 2) 257 families are living in two rooms or fewer.

But Riley isn't a man who just talks about problems — he's working hard to correct them.

As executive director of Garrett County Habitat for Humanity, Riley's organization is busy building homes for those who need them most. He is quick to point out that no government funds are used to build Habitat-sponsored houses and that the structures are not given away free. The families involved are required to work 500 hours of "sweat equity" and to pay their own mortgage, insurance, taxes, and utilities.

Forty-eight homes have been built under this system in Garrett County, and through tithing, more than 26 homes have been built in El Salvador.

At a prayer breakfast held Saturday at the Pleasant Valley Community Center, Riley reached out to local churches to expand his organization's efforts. The breakfast was held to thank those churches who are already helping and to pull more congregations into an effort called "Faith Works."

"Area churches have been one of the many important partners in our ministry," Riley said. "With the rising demand for affordable housing in front of us, we want to reach out to more of the faith community for support through the 'Faith Works' program. Habitat for Humanity is a servant of the church, providing a concrete opportunity for people to put faith into action."

Andy Damon of St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Oakland, said since participating in the program, he and the rest of the congregation have been "recharged in their faith" by giving a tangible mission toward which they can direct their Christian principles.

Rev. Don Matthews, pastor of Pine Grove Church of the Brethren, said being involved with Habitat ministries has "added a real blessing" to his life and also to his congregation. "It is a wonderful way to show the love of Christ in a practical way," he said.

Riley said that, so far, the "Faith Works" effort is working well. In the spring of 2006, a house will be constructed using only local help rather than relying heavily on labor imported from other counties and states.

"But we need to keep expanding," Riley said. "Instead of building two houses at a time, we need to build three. That's why we need support from additional churches."

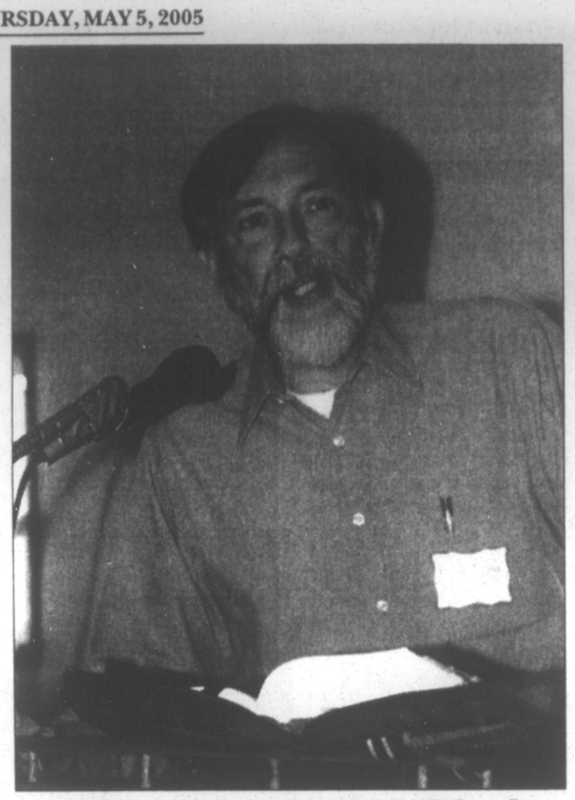
The way the program works is that each church will be responsible for a portion of the cost of the home and part of the tasks to build the home. The projects involve money-raising, recruitment of volunteers, and the providing of a liaison who will work alongside a project manager.

Habitat will provide the building site, house plans, and a carefully screened "partner" family to work with the church and who will buy the house. All the materials will be ordered by the project manager, and he will also schedule all subcontractors and inspectors.

That's the wood and nails part. The philosophy that helps turn those items into a house, said Riley, comes from the spirit of the Christian Bible, specifically from Matthew 25:35-40: "For I was hungry and you gave me something to eat. I was thirsty and you gave me something to drink. I was a stranger and you invited me in."

Local churches who either have worked or are working with Habitat for Humanity include: Oak Grove Church of the Brethren, Oak Park Church of the Brethren, St. Paul's Methodist Church, St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church, Deep Creek Baptist Church, Deep Creek United Methodist Church, Faith Evangelical Free Church, and the Amish Community Church.

More information on Garrett County Habitat for Humanity is available by calling 301-533-0600 or by checking the following web site: driley@garrettcac.org.



URGING LOCAL CHURCHES TO HELP — Doug Riley, executive director of Garrett County Habitat for Humanity, spoke at a prayer breakfast Saturday, urging local churches to get involved in the ministry, which builds homes for underprivileged families. See story.

Student Arts Night Slated At Garrett College Art Gallery

The Garrett College Art Gallery will host its Student Arts Night from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesday, May 10, at the college's McHenry campus. The evening's activities will include a reception for visual arts students in the gallery and music performances in the auditorium. The event, which is free and open to the public, celebrates the current Student Art Exhibition at the gallery, which continues through Friday, May 13.

The Arts Night program will begin in the auditorium with performances by music students and faculty, along with students from the community music school of Garrett College under the direction of Jerry McGee. Performers will include Caroline Stahl, Kylie and Alexi Marrucci, Jeff Reitz, and Terah Sines, and the announcer will be Valerie Stemac.

The selection of college student artworks includes drawings in various media, oil paintings, watercolors, sculptures, and ceramic pottery. Each work was created in professor Ron Skidmore's classes in Basic Design I, Painting I, Printmaking I and II in the fall 2004 semester, and Drawing I, Basic Design II, and Ceramics I and II in the current spring 2005 semester.

The show features artworks by art and education majors James Michaels and Megan Brenneman, prints and pottery by advanced student Joshua Gambetta, and oil paintings by Mary Vaughan, Stephanie Stoner, and Jonathan Okon.

Several works by Christen Coddington, Cathy Calhoun, and Kerri Jurimae are included from the current Drawing class, along with watercolors by Fallon Farley, Tara Talbot, and Dan Tichinel from Basic Design I.

Other students participating in the exhibition include Tyler Boshart, Doyle Brown, Tracy Browning, Jeanine Cummings, Rebecca Dornburg, Roy DeVore, Clifford Everett, Abraham Folmsbee, Krystle Housley, Krystle James, Nora Nichols, Evan Thayer, and Roman Yoder.

The Arts Night and Student Exhibition are made possible in part by a grant from the Garrett County and Maryland State arts councils. For more information persons may contact the Garrett College art department at 301-387-3024.

Frostburg State Slates Mother's Day Concert

Frostburg State University's Department of Music will present its annual Mother's Day Wind Ensemble concert at 3 p.m. on Sunday, May 8, in the Performing Arts Center Pealer Recital Hall. The ensemble performs under the direction of Noel T. Kunkle.

The featured musical presentation of the concert will be the complete work of Modest Moussorgsky's Pictures at an Exhibition. "Upon hearing of the death of his good friend and painter Victor Hartman, Mussorsky was moved by the impression of what he had seen at the exhibition to feverishly compose 10 little masterpieces based on Hartman's quirky collection of character pieces," Kunkle said.

The band will also perform "Variants on a Moravian Hymn" ("Morning Star, O Cheering Sight"); "Crown Imperial"; and "To Keep Thine Honor Bright," a piece that honors the men and women of the United States Military Academy.

Gallery Exhibit Honors Mothers

"A Tribute to Our Mothers" is the theme of a new community exhibit opening today, May 5, at the Gallery in Oakland.

The exhibit, which features art work, photography, and memorabilia contributed by the public for Mother's Day, will be open throughout the month of May.

"We're exhilarated by the public response to our call for exhibit items," said Steve Schlosnagle, executive director of the Garrett County Arts Council. "This special exhibit portrays many different facets of motherhood."

Exhibit items reflect the eclectic experience of motherhood throughout the 20th century, Schlosnagle said. On display are hand-made quilts, wedding photographs, needlework, paintings, shoes, a miniature Valentine box, a World War II Red Cross uniform, a 1920s yearbook, prints, wood work, jewelry, and other memorabilia.

Each display item is accompanied by brief a commentary along with the name of the person lending the item for exhibit.

The Arts Council is displaying the tribute to mothers in conjunction with a fundraising drive for its endowment fund for Community Arts Development.

"Tax-deductible contributions to this fund for cultural enrichment are always appreciated," said Schlosnagle. "We're currently inviting people to consider making contributions in honor of their mothers. Fund donors will be our guests for afternoon tea at the Gallery on May 22."

Exhibit hours are Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., with special hours on Mother's Day, May 8: 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Additional information is available by phone at 301-334-6580.

Kempton Duo Nominated For Gospel Award

The Gaithers, a local gospel music duo, have been nominated for an International Country Gospel Music Award. Kempton residents Isolena and Chester Gaither are in the running with two other acts also nominated for Favorite Duet honors.

The voting is taking place on-line at the Music City Gospel Showcase web site, located at www.musiccitygospelshowcase.com. Any interested persons may cast a vote in the Favorite Duet and a number of other gospel music categories by clicking on the "Vote" link. The winners will be announced at the third annual Music City Gospel Showcase Convention and Awards ceremony, set for later this summer in Tennessee.

The Gaithers returned recently from a concert tour in the Phillippines that included a benefit concert that raised funds to rebuild an Indonesian island church swept away by the December tsunamis. Over 7,000 persons attended that performance, and all proceeds went to the church building project in Nais, where all but 112 of the island's 4,000 residents were killed.

The Gaithers' song list includes "I'm Changing Houses," and the autobiographical "From the Streets to the Cross." They can be heard on the local Gospel Music Time radio show, which broadcasts from 9 to 10 a.m. daily on WMSG-AM.

Jimmy Stewart, Bomber Pilot
by Starr Smith
Review by Terri Schlichenmeyer

Sixty-some years ago, when President Franklin Roosevelt declared war on Germany and Japan, almost every American who was able became involved. Some left their children at home in the effort to make planes and ships in factories. Some left their families and traveled across the country and across the world.

One left an Academy Award-winning career to do something that he felt he needed to do, and in Jimmy Stewart, Bomber Pilot by Starr Smith (c. 2005, Zenith Press), you'll read about that man and his heroism.

James Maitland Stewart was born on May 20, 1908, in Indiana, Pennsylvania, his parents' eldest child and only son. Young Jimmy's father had served in the Spanish-American War and in World War I, and, as the owner of the town's hardware store, he hoped that his son would go into the family business. Instead, Jimmy went to college and found that he loved acting. In 1935, Stewart followed his friend and roommate Henry Fonda to Hollywood.

Airplanes had always been one of Jimmy's big fascinations, and he spent hours studying them, building models, and taking flying lessons. Because of his family's patriotic background, when it became obvious that war was imminent, Stewart decided to enlist in the Army. His Hollywood studio boss, Louis B. Mayer, tried to talk Stewart out of his plans, but fate took matters out of Mayer's hands: Jimmy was drafted.

When the Army turned him down, Stewart was undeterred. He decided to volunteer, and in March of 1941, Private James Stewart reported to duty at Fort MacArthur, California. Because of his interest in flying and his pilot experience, he was assigned to the Army Air Corps (later, the U.S. Air Force).

Although the Army apparently would have been happy to have a big-name celebrity to make public appearances on its behalf, Stewart asked repeatedly for combat assignments. Finally, he was granted his wish, and in November of 1943, he took his squadron to the 445th Station at Tibenham, England, where he became a decorated war hero, a bomber pilot, and a trusted and admired leader.

In Jimmy Stewart, Bomber Pilot, author Starr Smith has seamlessly done something seemingly impossible: he gently melds together flashy Hollywood stories with reminisces of people who knew Jimmy Stewart as just a "regular" guy. I've seen dozens of movies that starred Jimmy Stewart, but I didn't know that he had flown missions in Vietnam. I wasn't aware that he eventually joined the Air Force Reserve, and I didn't know that when he died, he had attained the rank of Brigadier General and was buried with full military honors.

There are lots of hard facts in this book that may be difficult to follow if you're a casual reader, and if you're looking for a snazzy, gossipy Hollywood-type biography, this is not the book for you. If you're a World War II veteran or a history buff, though, Jimmy Stewart, Bomber Pilot" is going to show you how a reel hero became a real hero.

The course is designed to help senior citizens update their driving knowledge and skills. A review of basic driving principles and safety practices are included in this course, as well as instruction in the physical changes in older drivers.

This course also provides drivers with impaired vision different ways to compensate for a slower response time. The effects of alcohol and medication on the older driver, accident prevention, guidelines for driving under adverse weather conditions, and basic automobile maintenance will also be emphasized in this course.

A fee of $10 will be charged for the textbook, and a brown bag lunch is suggested.

For more information or to register, persons may contact Leona Lavin, senior center operations director, at 301-895-5818 or 888-877-8403, ext. 133, or llavin-@garrettcac.org or Terry Beachy, coordinator of the Grantsville Outreach Center at 301-895-3368 or tbeachy-@garrettcollege.edu.

Mikulski Visits

college education."

Mikulski was joined at the podium by Frostburg State University president Dr. Catherine Gira, Provost Steven Simpson, and two Frostburg students: Jesse Strong and Shavonne Shorter. The students shared their personal stories of the difficulties of affording higher education.

During debate of the Fiscal Year 2006 federal budget, the Senate unanimously passed Mikulski's tuition tax credit amendment. Now that it is part of the FY 2006 budget, Mikulski said she would fight to make sure funding for this tuition tax credit is included in the federal "checkbook."

Tuition at colleges across the country has been steadily increasing in recent years. According to Mikulski, tuition at the University System of Maryland has gone up nearly 40 percent since 2002, making it one of the 10 most expensive public university systems in the country. Tuition at some of Maryland's community colleges is up about 10 percent since last year.

During her FSU visit, Mikulski also talked about her work to double Pell grants from $4,050 to $8,000. President Bush's budget, she said, only includes a $100 per year increase. Currently, Pell grants cover only 40 percent of average costs at a four-year public college, compared to 80 percent 20 years ago. The average undergraduate student debt from college loans is $17,000, she said.

Mikulski also talked about the need to close a loophole in the federal law books that guarantees banks a 9.5 percent interest rate on some student loans. She said today's interest rate is 3.37 percent, which means the government is paying banks the difference – 6.13 percent. This cost the federal government $1 billion in overpayments in 2004. This money could have gone to doubling Pell grants or paying for a tuition tax credit for families, she said. Mikulski has co-sponsored a bill in the Senate to close this loophole.

While at FSU, Mikulski was presented the Congressional Partnership Award for her "Outstanding Leadership in Advancing Regional Economic Development" by the National Association of Development Organizations (NADO).

It is NADO's mission to advance America's rural and small metropolitan development organizations through effective federal advocacy, informative training and research programs, and opportunities for professional training and networking.

Mikulski was recognized for her staunch and consistent support of the Tri-County Council for Western Maryland and its programs during the 108th Congress, said the council's executive director, Leanne Mazer.

special discounts will help us celebrate the first anniversary."

"It is appropriate that Tourism Week includes Mother's Day. The chamber stresses the importance of family travel, and Garrett County is a wonderful place for people to bring their families," said Ross. "Many of our local restaurants and businesses have specials for Mother's Day gifts and dinners. Make Mom feel like she is on vacation by taking her to dinner at a special restaurant."

"Last year almost 50,000 visitors came through our Visitors Centers. They have a chance to enjoy for just a few days or weeks the beauty and wonderful lifestyle we can enjoy all year long," he added. "It means a lot when we just smile and let them know they are welcome during their brief stay here."

Travelers to Garrett County spent over $120 million, according to the state tourism office, supporting over 3,000 jobs and generating a payroll of $84 million. These travelers also generated state and local taxes.

"Dollars spent by travelers produce a ripple effect, which is felt through every aspect of our community and beyond," Ross said. "As a result, it's easy to see how 'Tourism Works' for Garrett County and why the industry's slogan is 'Tourism Works for America.' See America Week/National Tourism Week is a time when Maryland focuses on the impact of travel and tourism in our area. We thank our visitors for their patronage, honor the employees who serve them, and show our pride for our industry and our home."

Husky Girls Take WMIL As NHS Sweeps Past Alco, Preston SHS

It's a "three-peat" for the Northern High School girls' tennis team, which captured its third consecutive Western Maryland Interscholastic League tennis championship by downing Southern yesterday on the Grantsville courts in a hard-fought contest, 4-3.

The win capped a stellar week for the NHS netters' program, as the girls' and boys' squads both recorded victories over Allegany, Preston, and SHS. The Husky girls drove their season record to 9-1 with the action, while the boys improved to 6-4. Yesterday's loss by the Rams dropped Southern's girls' record to 4-3, while the boys fell to 2-5.

The Northern girls strode to a 5-1 win over host Allegany on Friday. Lakin Weimer, Amy Lander, Becca Stark (by an 8-1 tally), and Jessica Fratz won Nos. 2-5 singles matches, while Erin Brenneman/Keri Bachtel took the second-seed doubles match.

The Husky boys took a convincing 5-2 victory, paced by an 8-1 win in top singles by Gonzalo Velasquez. Lucas Mazer and Mike Moyer also took singles wins, and Velasquez/Eric Wood claimed No. 1 doubles play, while Darryl Glotfelty/Elliot Glotfelty recorded an 8-1 win at No. 2 doubles.

Northern's girls demolished visiting Preston Tuesday by a 7-0 margin. Singles players Weimer, Lander, Fratz, and the second-seed doubles duo of Nicole Espada/Erica Maust each recorded perfect 8-0 match sweeps, while Stark and No. 1 doubles combo Brenneman/Bachtel rolled up 8-1 wins.

The Northern boys won a 4-3 battle behind Velasquez, Mazer, and Wood in singles play, and a forfeit win credited to the second-seed doubles combo of Darryl Glotfelty/Elliot Glotfelty.

Justin Shaffer, Jeremy Shrout, and Steve Miller won singles matches for the Knights.

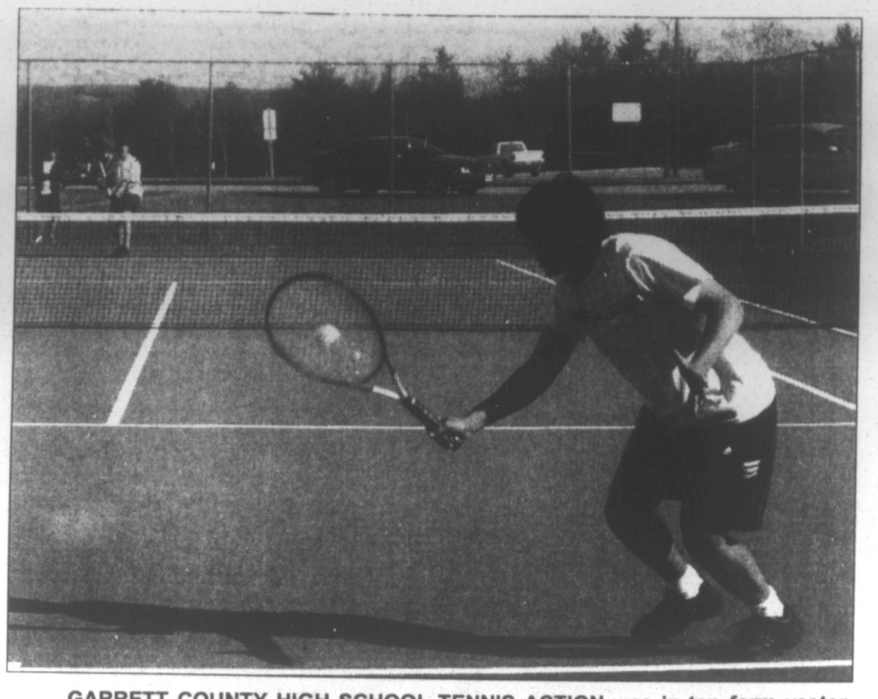
The Husky girls downed the Rams yesterday at Northern, beginning with No. 1 seed Amy Brenneman's 8-4 defeat of SHS's Jasmine Scheffel. The Rams bounded back when Southern's Sarah Stephens defeated Lakin Weimer, 8-3, in the second-seed match, then NHS's Amy Lander swept to an 8-0 win at No. 3. The Rams took the next two seedings in singles play as Brittney Scheffel defeated Becca Stark, 8-3, and Liz Thayer downed Jessica Fratz, 8-2.

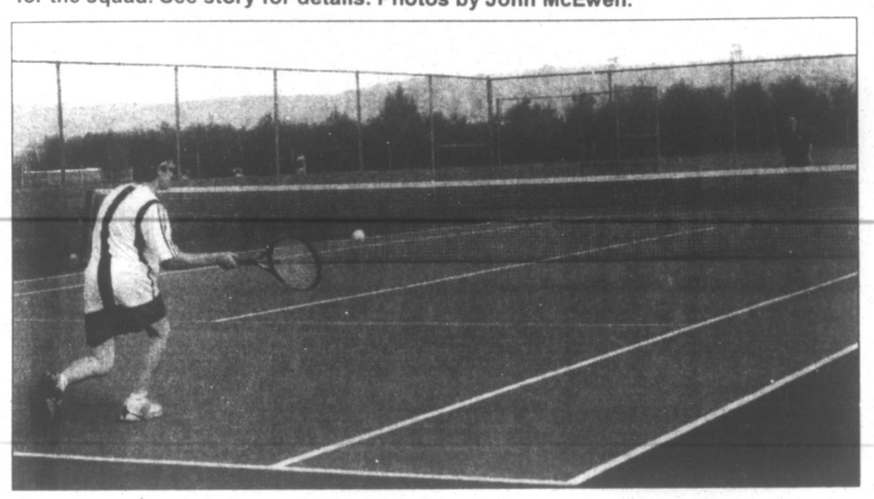
Down by a 3-2 margin heading into doubles play, Northern rallied to take the match with a No. 1 seed 8-2 victory by Amy Brenneman/Lander, and an 8-0 sweep by Erin Brenneman/Bachtel in second-seed play.

The Husky boys won their meeting by a 5-2 tally paced by a 5-0 run through singles play. Northern's Velasquez defeated Ethan Chorpenning, 8-1; Mazer downed Pat DiGioia, 8-2; Eric Wood topped Cody Brack, 8-6; Zach Trautwein beat Jed Crawford, 8-5; and Mike Moyer won over Ryan Domenick, 8-2.

Southern swept the doubles with Seth Fike/Dustin Hoffman defeating Tim Glotfelty/Abe Folmsbee, 8-6, while Ricky McCartney/Brad Lilly downed Darryl Glotfelty/Elliot Glotfelty, 8-6.

Northern will play Wednesday at Bishop Walsh, while Southern hosts Fort Hill today.





GARRETT COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL TENNIS ACTION was in top form yesterday as the Northern varsity squad hosted Southern. These photos from the boys' match-up at NHS capture the two top-seed singles battles, as No. 1 Husky seed Gonzalo Velasquez, foreground, is shown above connecting on a backhand during his win over Southern counterpart Ethan Chorpenning, visible on the far side of the net. Second-seed play appears below, as the Rams' Pat DiGioia, foreground, gets off a return against Northern's Lucas Mazer, who claimed the match. NHS's boys took a 5-2 win, while the Husky girls edged the Rams in a 4-3 match at Grantsville's Town Park. The NHS girls' win clinched a third straight WMIL crown for the squad. Osteoporosis Prevention and Treatment

While no cure exists for osteoporosis, there are steps to prevent it or to slow or stop its progress. An imbalance in the bone cycle causes bone loss that eventually leads to osteoporosis and fracture risk. Adequate calcium, vitamin D, appropriate exercise and, in some cases, medication are important for maintaining bone health. Currently, bisphosphonates, calcitonin, estrogens, parathyroid hormone, and raloxifene are approved by the FDA for the prevention and/or treatment of osteoporosis. The bisphosphonates (alendronate and risedronate), calcitonin, estrogens and raloxifene prevent bone tissue from dissolving, and bone density may increase over time. Forteo, a form of parathyroid hormone, is a newly approved osteoporosis medication. It is one of the first osteoporosis medications to increase the rate of bone formation, the other path to higher bone density.

People cannot feel their bones getting stronger or weaker, so it is important as we age to monitor our bone status. If you have questions about any of these preventative/treatment therapies, talk to your local pharmacist or physician on your next visit.

Gertrude Kitzmiller extends her thanks to all who sent cards, flowers, called, visited, kept her in their prayers or remembered her in any way, as she celebrated her 90th birthday on April 25.

STEALING SECOND is a runner for Potomac State College while Garrett College's David Rosario delivers a pitch during one of two games played Saturday afternoon in miserable weather conditions at McHenry. The Lakers fell to the Catamounts, 6-2, and were then crushed twice by them in a doubleheader on Sunday in Keyser. Rosario allowed only five hits, but PSC hurler Enrique Garcia gave up just two Laker hits. Below, GC leftfielder Matt Butler lays down a bunt. Photos by John McEwen.

Lakers Thrashed Thrice By PSC, Then Gain Four Wins

After taking it on the chin in three straight games against Potomac State College, the Garrett College baseball team recorded four consecutive wins this week, two on and two off the diamond.

The Lakers fell to the PSC Catamounts, 6-2, in McHenry on Saturday, and were whipped twice by the same team in Keyser on Sunday, 20-0 and 16-6.

Garrett was awarded a pair of forfeits over CCBC-Dundalk on Monday, and then took a pair from host CCAC-South, 23-8 and 6-0, in West Mifflin, Pa., on Tuesday.

The results left the Lakers with an overall record of 17-23.

The Lakers managed only two hits against the arm of Potomac State's Enrique Garcia on Saturday, one of which was a two-run homer by Bryan McGee in the second inning.

A two-run shot by PSC's J.T. Osburn knotted the score in the top of the third, and the Cats won the game with four runs in the top of the sixth, as the game was called because of rain.

Osburn also had a single.

Despite the loss, Dave Rosario pitched a strong game for the Lakers, going the distance and giving up just five hits and allowing three earned runs.

The Laker bats were even quieter in the first game against Potomac State on Sunday, with Brett McClain and Mike Armstrong combining on a one-hitter for the Catamounts.

Meanwhile, the home team ripped a pair of GC pitchers for 15 hits, including a two-run homer, a triple, and two singles by Brent Lockhart, who had four RBI.

Brett Sisler recorded a solo homer and two singles, while Bill Wooten and Eric Saffle each finished with a double and a single.

The Lakers finally connected with the ball and scored some runs in the first inning of the second game, taking a 4-0 lead. They added two more runs in the top of the second to extend their lead to 6-0, but the bottom dropped out for them in the second half of the second frame when the Cats erupted for nine runs to take the lead for good.

PSC recorded runs in each of the next three innings to get the win, as the contest was called because of the 10-run rule.

The Lakers finished with six hits, including two singles by Danny Flores and a two-run double by Burt Comerford.

Potomac State recorded 14 hits, with Osburn and Brennen Dayton each getting home runs. Osburn hit a three-run shot in the second, and Dayton had a solo homer, also in the second inning.

Dayton also hit two singles, Justin Dailey had a triple and two doubles for three RBI, and Sellers stroked a two-run triple for the winners.

Gaining the win in relief was Pat Adkins, who upped his personal record to 4-0.

The three victories over the Lakers improved PSC's overall record to 23-11.

The Garrett offense really came alive Tuesday against host CCAC-South, smacking 20 hits in the first game and 11 more in the nightcap.

McGee led the Laker hitting effort in the first game, driving in four runs with a solo homer, a double, and a single, Romberger hit a double and two singles for three RBI, and Taylor Billingsley provided three singles and five runs scored.

South recorded 11 hits, with Mike Mills rapping a homer.

The highlight of the second game for the Lakers and their fans was the pitching effort of David Rosario, who went the distance, allowed just three hits, and struck out 16 batters.

Flores hit a double and a single for Garrett, while Billingsley hit three more singles, giving him a half-dozen for the afternoon.

The Lakers will host Allegany College this Friday in a doubleheader, with the first game scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. That will conclude their regular season.

RIPPING A THREE-RUN HOMER for the Southern Rams in the photo directly above is Bret DeWitt, whose blast came in the Rams' five-run second inning against visiting Fort Hill on Tuesday. Southern handed the Sentinels a 7-1 defeat to remain perfect in Western Maryland Interscholastic League play (7-0) and up their overall record to 10-2. Ram pitcher Scott Wildesen, left, earned his fifth win in as many starts this season, striking out seven and walking just one batter in going the distance. Photos by John McEwen.

Rams Batter Sentinels, 7-1, To Stay Perfect In WMIL Games

Staying perfect in Western Maryland Interscholastic League play this week was the Southern High School varsity baseball team, which upped its WMIL mark to 7-0 with a 7-1 victory over visiting Fort Hill on Tuesday. The win improved the Rams' overall record to 10-2.

The Rams took a 1-0 lead with a run in the first, and then added five more runs in the second frame behind a three-run blast by Bret DeWitt to make it 6-0.

Aaron Louden and Cory Bosley each rapped a pair of singles in the Rams' eight-hit effort, and each had an RBI.

Scott Wildesen went the distance on the mound for the Rams, allowing only one run in the top of the sixth inning. He struck out seven batters and walked only one in raising his personal mark to 5-0.

Jordan Wills smacked a pair of doubles for the Sentinels, who dropped to 7-8 overall and 3-6 in the WMIL. Casey Merritt contributed a double and a single.

The Rams will entertain Bishop Walsh in a doubleheader today, with the first game slated to begin at 3:30. After hosting Preston on Saturday for a 1 p.m. single game, Southern will host Northern on Monday to conclude the first regular-season game and then play the second. The Rams will travel to Beall next Wednesday.

Huskies Run Away From FH, Elks, Turkeyfoot By 63-7 Tally

The scoreboard seemed to tick off the runs non-stop this week for the Northern High School varsity baseball team, which went on a combined 63-run tear over a four-game stretch against Fort Hill, Salisbury (in a doubleheader), and Turkeyfoot to improve to 14-2 for the year. The win mark breaks the school record of 13 victories, set in 2000 and last season.

The Huskies' offensive firepower this week was the only thing that could have outshone the squad's superb defense, especially on the mound, as five Northern pitchers combined to hold the opposition to combined totals of just 7 runs and a measly 15 hits. Just as NHS coach Phil Carr said would have to happen at the season's outset, someone has stepped up to fill the role of top pitcher as junior righthander Greg Beachy won twice this week to run his record up to a perfect 6-0.

The Northern flurry opened with a 14-0 home field victory over Fort Hill last Thursday, April 28. NHS opened with six runs in the first, added five in the second, and three in the fourth, while pelting out eight hits. The Sentinels didn't do any justice for their own cause by committing eight fielding errors, which helped hand the hosts seven unearned runs over the first two stanzas.

Sophomore Corey Carr swatted an RBI double and RBI single for the Huskies, senior Preston Sisler ripped a three-run double, and classmate Robert Fontaine stroked a two-run single. Darrick Lowdermilk, Jason Shapiro, and Trevor Butler each produced a run-scoring single.

Complete-game winning pitcher Greg Beachy gave up just four singles while whiffing seven batters and walking none.

Northern hammered Salisbury during the next day's doubleheader by rolling to 20-5, 15-0 victories. The Huskies tallied 27 hits over the two outings while holding the Elk hosts to just 8.

NHS fell behind in the leadoff stanza of the opener as Salisbury scored three runs in the top of the first. The Huskies responded with one run in the bottom half of the inning, then exploded for 11 in the second stanza to roar out to a 12-3 lead. Sisler was a one-man wrecking crew in the second inning, launching a grand slam and a three-run triple to drive home 7 of NHS's 11 runs. The Huskies went on to add three runs in the third and five in the fourth.

Carr slugged a two-run homer, a run-scoring double, and two singles, and Eric Johnson belted a two-run home run and a single. Shapiro ripped an RBI tripie, double, and single, Lowdermilk stroked a two-run double, and Dave Vagnetti doubled home a run.

Aaron Beiler hit a solo home run and double for Salisbury.

Lowdermilk claimed the win by tossing all four innings of the mercy-shortened contest, giving up just six hits along the way.

The Huskies kept the runs coming in the second contest, opening with a six-run first, adding two in the second, two in the fourth, and five in the fifth.

Lowdermilk accounted for five runs by cranking out a homer, double, and single, while Carr cut loose with two doubles and a single to send home two runs. Johnson doubled and singled to drive home two runs, and Shapiro and Matt Bass both punched out RBI singles. NHS had 14 hits in the five-inning contest.

Junior Mark Logsdon, Northern's sole southpaw pitcher, worked the first four stanzas and gave up just two hits while recording nine strikeouts among his twelve outs. Sisler gained the save after striking out the side in fifth-inning relief duty.

The Huskies stormed southwestern Pennsylvania again Monday by pulverizing host Turkeyfoot, 14-2.

After a scoreless first inning, NHS put two runs on the board in the second. The score remained 2-0 until the top of the fourth, when Northern scored three runs. The Rams responded with two in the bottom half of the stanza to cut the margin to 5-2, but the Huskies scored once in the fifth before exploding for eight in the sixth.

NHS pelted the two Turkeyfoot pitchers for 13 hits overall, including a solo homer and a single by Beachy, and a double and a single by Lowdermilk. Butler and Michael Wolf each cut loose a two-run single, and Bass and Fontaine both pelted one-run singles. Sisler and Shapiro doubled.

Donnie Gray and Nathan Glass had run-scoring singles for Turkeyfoot.

Beachy recorded 10 strikeouts in five innings, and Carr worked the last stanza as the pair combined to limit Turkeyfoot to three hits.

Looking ahead, the Huskies are slated to host Bishop Walsh tomorrow at 4:30 p.m., then travel to Fort Hill Monday for their season closer. The Maryland Class 1A West Region playoffs are slated to open Friday, May 13.

Ram Jayvees Whip Knights For Ninth Win

The junior varsity baseball team of Southern High School had no trouble disposing of host Preston last Thursday, as three Rams combined on a one-hitter and handed the Knights a 16-2 defeat. It was the ninth win in 10 starts for the Rams.

Tim Reams, Mark Bittinger, and Jordan Pacella handled the pitching chores, and were among the top hitters for the Rams.

Reams stroked a double and a single, scored three times, and had two RBI, while Pacella hit a triple and a single for one RBI. Michael Edwards also recorded a double and a single, scored twice, and finished with three RBI, while Tommy Reams provided two singles and two RBI, and also scored twice.

The SHS jayvees were scheduled to play at Hampshire last night, but no results of that contest were reported.

They will meet Preston again this afternoon at home, with game time set for 5 p.m.

The Rams were also slated to host Northern in a doubleheader last Saturday, but foul weather forced postponement of that encounter. They will play in the Keyser Tournament this Saturday and entertain Westmar next Monday in a 5 p.m. start.

Northern JVs Storm Fort Hill, Annihilate Alco

The Northern High School junior varsity baseball squad took no prisoners this week, as the Huskies downed Fort Hill 8-4 on Friday, then crushed Allegany yesterday by a 15-3 margin.

The NHS pitching duo of Matt Sisler and Brock Glotfelty smoked the Sentinels for 12 strikeouts while giving up just six hits. Sisler accounted for nine of the dozen Ks in his four innings of work.

Glotfelty further aided the Huskies' cause by ripping a double and two singles for two RBI, teammate Dustin Klotz added three RBI on three singles, Randy Wilhelm stroked two singles and one RBI, and Dom Dirienzo sent home one run on a single.

Sisler turned in another masterful mound performance yesterday at Allegany, where he tossed a five hitter while whiffing nine Campers for a convincing complete-game win.

Sisler and Tyler Southerly cranked out three singles apiece at the plate, while Glotfelty belted a pair of doubles, Dirienzo recorded a double, and Patrick Brady contributed two singles.

Northern (6-2) is scheduled to visit Meyersdale Saturday for an 11 a.m. doubleheader, then return home for a 4 p.m. twinbill Tuesday against Frankfort. The season finale is set for Wednesday, when Bishop Walsh visits the Cove for a single game starting at 4:30 p.m. No word was available on the status of a possible make-up date for this past Saturday's doubleheader against Southern, which was canceled because of inclement weather.

Rams Battered By Beall, Nip Petersburg, Downed By FH

The Southern High School varsity softball team sandwiched a Tuesday win over Petersburg between shutout losses to Beall last Thursday, April 28, and Fort Hill yesterday. The Rams' record stands at 4-7 (1-6 WMIL) heading into the closing week of their regular campaign.

SHS fell hard at Beall, 16-0, as Mountie ace Kate Rephann tossed a no-hitter while striking out nine and walking three. The hosts' 12-hit output was paced by Kacey Kahl, who belted a three-run home run and drove home another run on a single.

Southern pitcher Ashley Metcalfe recorded seven strikeouts in four innings of work.

The Rams got back on the winning track in Petersburg by downing the Vikings with a gritty late-game rally. The hosts had jumped out to an early 4-0 lead by scoring once in the first stanza, twice in the second, and once more in the third. Southern helped the Vikes roll up those runs by committing six fielding errors over the course of the contest.

The Rams finally got on the board with two runs in the fourth, then knotted the score in the sixth when Jaydn Swerbinsky sent a runner home on an RBI groundout. In the seventh inning, with the contest tied at 4-4, SHS loaded the bases with one out on an error, a walk, and a fielder's choice. Anna Lucas clinched the game with a heads-up play when she scampered home from third on a wild pitch.

Senior Southern pitcher Julia Bosley tossed a complete-game two-hitter with eight strikeouts for the win. Bosley also stroked a double and a single at the plate and drove in a run. Junior Cory Lewis swatted a pair of singles.

Yesterday's home game pitted the Rams against the top-ranked Sentinels, and a pitchers' duel between Bosley and FH's Cari Reed highlighted the afternoon. The score was knotted at zero-all through five full innings until the Sentinels scored once in the sixth on a Southern fielding error with the bases loaded. The costly miscue was one of six SHS errors in the contest. Fort Hill added three more runs in the seventh inning.

Bosley, who gave up eight hits on the mound, accounted for one of the Rams' two hits with a double.

Looking ahead, the Rams host Allegany tomorrow and Westmar Monday, with both contests beginning at 4:30 p.m. Southern's season final will take place at Bishop Walsh on Wednesday.

The festivities will begin at noon. A Fun Run, sponsored by the Southern High School Cross Country Team, is set to start at 12:30 p.m. The Southern Band Boosters will sell hamburgers, hot dogs, and drinks; and there will be Rotary french fries and Lakeside Creamery ice cream available as well.

The Southern stage band will perform during the afternoon.

The ducks will be dropped into the Little Yough at 2 p.m. The owner of the winning duck will be awarded $250 in cash. There will be prizes for the first 25 ducks that finish, as well as a prize for the one that finishes last.

The ducks are $5 and can be purchased from any SGAA officer or spring sport athlete. They can also be purchased on the day of the race. There is no admission charge for the day's activities.

The proceeds from the duck sales will go toward the SGAA awards and scholarship funds.

NHS Softball Squad Splits With Elks, FH

The Northern High School varsity softball team downed Salisbury Friday, 9-7, before dropping an 11-0 contest Tuesday to Fort Hill. The action gives the Huskies a 3-9 mark (1-7 WMIL) heading in to the final week of the regular season.

Northern wasted no time in mounting a lead on the Elks, as the Huskies jumped out quick for five first-inning runs and two second-inning scores. Salisbury answered with three runs in the bottom half of the second, but NHS reeled off two more runs in the fifth to go up 9-3. The hosts responded with one run in the bottom of the fifth and three in the sixth to cut the gap to two, where it remained for the rest of the game.

NHS senior Jayme Miller hurled a seven-inning complete-game win, giving up just seven hits along the way.

Catcher Kayla Kipp ripped a triple and two singles, while Carrie Harding also smacked a triple. Danielle Glotfelty, Casie Fratz, Amy Shaffer, and Miller each singled twice to round out Northern's 12-hit attack.

Tuesday's home contest against top-ranked Fort Hill was a different story, however, as the Huskies were held to just two hits while the Sentinels recorded a dozen. Kipp had NHS's offensive highlight with a double.

Looking ahead, the Huskies are scheduled to host Westmar at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow, visit Preston for a noon doubleheader Saturday, then play their final game of the season Monday at Bishop Walsh.

Meghan Price Golf Tourney Set At Wisp Resort

The sixth annual Meghan E. Price Golf Tournament and Dinner is slated for Friday, June 17, at the Wisp Golf Resort, with registration set to open at 11 a.m. and tee time at 12:30 p.m.

Sponsored by Uno Restaurant, the tournament benefits the Meghan E. Price Memorial Trust, which raises scholarship funds for students at Southern High School and the University of Maryland College Park. In addition to the scholarships, this year's tournament proceeds will be divided among the Southern and Northern athletic associations and Our Town Theatre.

Players (as individuals or members of four-person teams), hole sponsors, and non-golfing dinner guests are welcome to register for the event. The donation is $125 per individual golfer, $500 per a team, $100 per hole sponsor, and $20 per non-golfer diners. The deadline to register is Saturday, May 28.

The tournament has a scramble format with prizes for the longest drive and closest to the pins on the Par 3s. Accident Garage is sponsoring a prize of a new 2005 Chrysler for a hole-in-one on one of the Par 3s and other prizes for a hole in one on the other Par 3s. Prizes will also be awarded for the first three teams in the gross and net divisions.

A dinner will be served at the Wisp following the tournament.

Swanton native Meghan Price and her grandfather, Carl T. Johnson, were killed in an automobile accident on Dec. 29, 1998. At the time of her death Price was enrolled in the honors program at the University of Maryland, where she served as president of the Student Government Association and had received several awards for her academic and leadership accomplishments. She planned a career in public service upon graduation.

Price graduated from Southern High School, where she was an honor student and served as Student Government president and drum major of the SHS Marching Band.

The first four Meghan E. Price Golf tournaments were held in Montgomery County; however, the event was moved to the Oakland Golf Club last year with help from the sponsorship of Uno's, where Price had been employed during her summer breaks from college.

To register for the event or obtain further information, persons may call Jonathan Price at 301-387-5158, or Wisp Golf Resort pro Bill Cox at 301-387-4911.

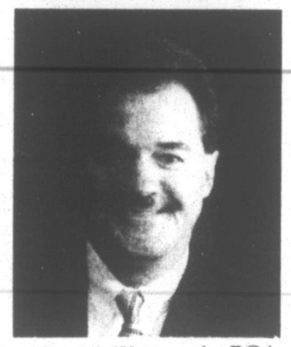
Oakland Pro Earns Jr. Golf Leader Award



Patrick Warren, the PGA golf professional at the Oakland Golf Club, has been honored as the PGA Junior Golf Leader for the tri-state section which covers western Pennsylvania, western Maryland, and all of West Virginia. He will be formally recognized at a PGA-sponsored Champions of Golf banquet later this year.

The Junior Golf Leader award is designed to recognize a PGA golf professional who is a leader in junior golf, reflects the qualities and ideals of those who work with our nation's youth, and provides opportunities and experiences for juniors to learn and play golf.

"This is a great honor to be recognized by the PGA Section for the work we have done here locally and on the section level," said Warren. "It could not have happened without the commitment and support of the board of directors and members of the Oakland Golf Club. It takes a lot of volunteers to make a junior program work."

Since arriving at the Oakland Club in 2001, Warren has developed a summer program for children ages 7 and up. Approximately 40 children enrolled the first year of the program, and by last year the enrollment had more than doubled.

In 2002, Oakland also began hosting the Top-Flite Junior Tour, which brings in top juniors from across the region to compete.

For more information about these and other programs and junior discounts offered by the Oakland Golf Club, persons may call the Pro Shop at 301-334-3883.

The benefit tournament will raise funds that will be used to help area young people attain goals in education or in skill development, as well as promote the arts for the youth of Garrett County, Johnson said. Casey Kamp Leads Nine County Grapplers Named To All-WMIL

The All-Western Maryland Interscholastic League wrestling team was named this past week, and dominating the roster of first-team selections were Garrett County standouts.

Leading the all-star squad is two-time Maryland state champion Casey Kamp, a junior at Northern High School, who not only won the title in the 112-pound division of the Maryland 1A/2A Championships, but also finished the 2004-05 season with a perfect 33-0 record.

Kamp won the 103-pound division title as a sophomore in 2004, and came into this year's state event as the #1 ranked wrestler in his weight class. He will attempt to become Garrett County's first-ever three-time state champion next season.

Kamp currently has a 91-5 career record and is riding a 58-match win streak. Assuming he remains healthy through next season, he will most certainly break Northern's win record of 114, currently held by Mark Wolf.

Northern's Wolf and Pete Stein were also two-time state champions.

The Southern Rams, who won the WMIL title as a team this season, placed five wrestlers on the All-WMIL first team, while the Huskies placed four, as did Beall.

Rams named to the squad were sophomore Daniel Carr at 125 pounds, Justin Ratliff at 135 pounds, Nathan Sines at 140 pounds, Jeremy Gregory at 160 pounds, and Scott Wildesen at 171 pounds.

Carr amassed a record of 27-6 this past season and qualified for the state meet. Ratliff, with a 27-7 record, and Sines, finishing with a 24-4 mark, also both qualified for the state championships. Gregory was 20-8, and Wildesen, who came into the season as a defending state champion, concluded the year with a 32-1 mark, placing third in the state.

Joining Kamp from Northern on the team are sophomore Randy Wilhelm at 103 pounds, Mike Wolf in the 152-pound division, and sophomore Brock Glotfelty at 189 pounds.

Wilhelm earned a record of 23-8 this past season, Wolf finished third in the state and recorded a personal mark of 29-6, and Glotfelty recorded a 32-3 record en route to a second-place finish in the state tournament.

Named to the All-WMIL second team were Husky freshman Andrew Ganoe and Southern's Justin Fitzwater. Ganoe, who wrestled in the 135-pound class, finished this past season with a 20-14 record, while Fitzwater qualified for the state tourney in the 215-pound division and finished with a record of 23-12.

SHS Girls Win Three-Team Track Meet; Boys Runners-Up

The girls' track and field team of Southern High School captured first place in a tri-meet hosted last Thursday by the Rams, while the Southern boys finished second.

Southern's girls edged Frankfort, 86-80, while Westmar finished a distant third with 15 points. The Frankfort boys won the team title with 110 points. The Rams were second with 56 and Westmar placed third with 3.

Getting a first place in all four of her events for the Southern girls was Sarah Cosner, who won the long jump with a distance of 13'10" and was a member of the winning 400, 800, and 1,600 relay teams, which recorded respective times of 55.87 seconds, 1:58, and 4:43.

Chanda Remley had three first places, winning the 200 and 400 dashes with times of 29.23 and 1:10, respectively. She was also a member of the 1,600 relay team.

Kendra McLaughlin was also a triple winner, all on relay teams, while Meghan Flinn and Kelly Taylor were double winners in relays.

Sarah Stephens won the high jump with a height of 4'8", Megan Swartzentruber took first in the discus with a heave of 90'6", and Melissa Ray won the pole vault with a height of 7'.

Top finishers for the Southern boys were Caiden Shaffer, who won the 400 dash in 54.32 seconds and was on the winning 1,600 relay team (3:45), and Nathan Harris, who won the triple jump with a distance of 36'4".

Joining Shaffer on the 1,600 relay team were Travis Nice, T.J. Ravenscroft, and David Reams.

Both Southern teams competed this week in the All-Area meets at Beall High School, but no results have yet been reported. They will participate in the Jerry Calhoun Invitational at Frostburg State University this Saturday, beginning at 10 a.m., and will travel back to Beall for a regular meet next Tuesday.

Investigation, meaning that he will be released from the Garrett County Detention Center in January, at which time he will begin a two-year probation term. He will also have to provide a DNA sample and register as a sexual offender with the Maryland Sex Offender Registry.

Stover initially faced numerous charges, including four counts of child abuse, three counts of second-degree sex offense, and five counts of second-degree assault, spawned by a GBI investigation of an alleged assault on a toddler in Stover's care. At the same time detectives arrested Stover on those charges, they also filed charges of two counts each of second-degree assault and fourth-degree sex offense stemming from allegations of unwanted sexual contact with a juvenile female.

All charges were eventually not prosecuted, with the exception of a second-degree assault in the case of the toddler, and a second-degree assault accusation and a fourth-degree sexual offense in the case of the juvenile.

All of the activities occurred in the area of the Guardian Apartments.

We Miss and Think of You Daily

Our family would like to thank everyone for the thoughts and prayers and continued expression of comfort and love that have been shown to us during our time of mourning for our lovely Dana. She went to spend Christmas with our Dad & Jesus this past December 16. We may never know until we see her again why she was called away from us here at such an early age, but God does and that is all that matters, he never makes mistakes. Those of us left here will go on with the memory of the good times of the past and the promise that God gave us that we will again be reunited in Eternal life, never to be separated again.

Her birthday would have been May 4 this week and Dad's was on April 3. We wanted to honor her life which was all about love and selflessness and Dad's life which was dedicated to his wife and children, to provide this information to those who have asked for it.

Concern Noted About Possible Cuts In Mental Health Services

by Glenn Tolbert

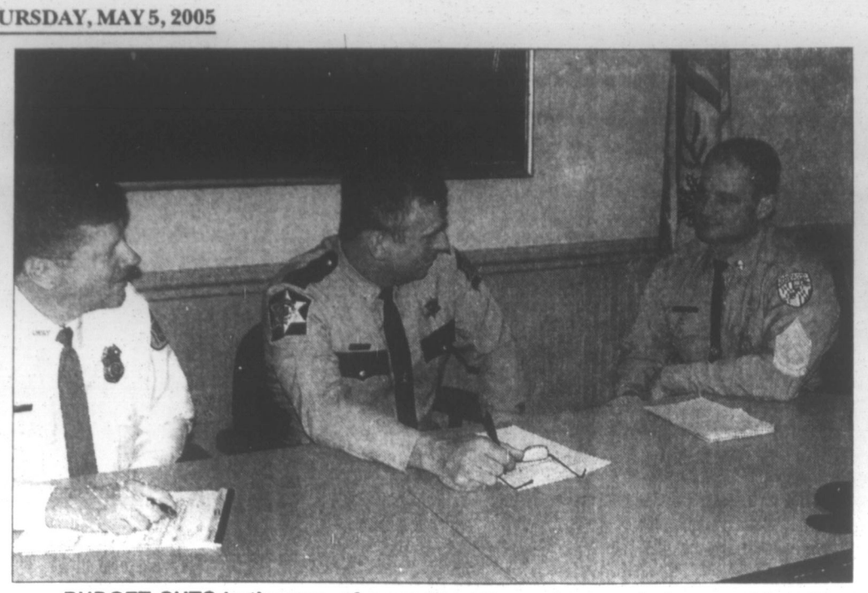
Three of Garrett County's top law enforcement officials were sitting next to each other shaking their heads at a reporter's question: "How does it affect your jobs when there are large cuts in the county's mental health services?"

The commander of the Maryland State Police barrack in McHenry, 1st Sgt S. M. Trice, was the first to answer. "It makes all of our jobs much, much more difficult," he said. "It would be tough to measure how much more difficult it would be, but a lack of good mental health facilities could prove dangerous, not just to the person being questioned, but also to the officer himself."

Dr. Stewart Callis, Garrett County's only full-time psychiatrist, says that a number of mental illnesses can make a person violent and therefore pose a possible danger to an officer. These include depression, schizophrenia, and anti-social personality disorder. A recent University of Maryland study found that the rate of depression in Garrett County is the highest in the state.

John K. Sines, Oakland's chief of police, had come to the gathering with some prepared statistics which reflected his fears that any draconian budget cuts in the mental health field could result in problems too big for his six-man force to handle.

While no one yet knows for sure what kind of cuts there will be and how they will affect the county's mental health system this coming budget year, law enforcement and mental health personnel must plan for the worst.



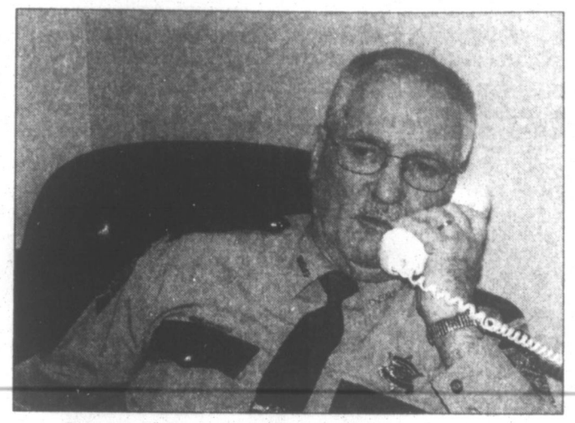
BUDGET CUTS in the area of mental health services are being considered by the state and federal government, and local law enforcement officials commented this past week on the possible ramifications of such cuts in their area of expertise. Pictured from left above are John Sines, Oakland chief of police; Gary Berkebile, chief deputy, Garrett County Sheriff's Office; and 1st Sgt. S.M. Trice, commander of the Maryland State Police barrack in McHenry.

Sines's first concern was for the future of the Lighthouse, a psychiatric rehabilitation program where people with all types of mental illnesses go for daily activities and classes. The facility has already been hit hard by budget cuts, reducing its days open to four per week and not replacing staff when they leave the facility. Its director, Debbie Jo Adams-Noroski, has said she is unsure what is going to happen in the upcoming fiscal year.

Attached to the Lighthouse is a facility known as Safe Harbor, which provides short-term room and board for people in crisis.

"If those places have to close down or even reduce their services more than they already have, there could be nearly 200 people with mental illness roaming the streets of Oakland," Sines said.

Appalachian Crossroads, a work program for people with disabilities but with functional skills, seems to be on reasonably stable ground financially, at least for the near future. It's director, Bill Aspinall, said that finances are tight now, and may get tighter, but the institution will continue to operate because it receives Medicaid funding and does not depend heavily upon grants.



Garrett County Sheriff P.R. "Dick" Sanders says access to good mental health care is vital to good law enforcement.

District court judge Ralph M. Burnett says that some people drink alcohol to "self medicate" in an attempt to drown out painful emotions. He added that counseling is a must for these people.

Aspinall also made the distinction that his organization serves people with developmental disabilities, not mental illness.

"The state recognizes that the agencies serving people with developmental disabilities are serving people who are among the most vulnerable of Maryland's citizens, and need long-term care and support services," he said.

As for those suffering with mental illnesses, Gary Berkebile, chief deputy of the Garrett County sheriff's office, pointed out that calling the police on someone who is having mental problems is always the last resort. "But I can see more of this happening if the budget cuts to mental health facilities and services continue," he said.

The relationship between law enforcement and the mentally ill has always been complex. According to the Psychiatric Times magazine, it is estimated that about 70,000 inmates in U.S. prisons are psychotic. Anywhere from 200,000 to 300,000 male and female prison inmates suffer from mental disorders such as schizophrenia, bipolar disorder, and major depression. Prisons hold three times more people with mental illness than do psychiatric hospitals. The majority of people with mental illness in the criminal justice system are usually there for misdemeanors and because they did not have adequate access to quality behavioral health care.

Garrett County jail administrator Capt. Larry Gnegy says that, of the current inmate population of 50, six are receiving mental health care services. He says that about 12% is average for the proportion of inmates receiving such attention, but at times it is higher.

"Dr. Daniel Miller comes in once a week to check on the inmates," Gnegy said. "If he thinks someone needs mental health attention, he prescribes medication and the health department is notified. They send someone over once a week. Without their services it would be a lot tougher for our inmates with psychological or psychiatric problems to get the help they need."

The Dove Center, Garrett County's domestic abuse shelter, also sends staff to visit inmates who may require counseling on domestic abuse and other issues.

One point on which all the police officials agreed was the importance of trying to reach children early in their developmental stages to try to keep them from later facing legal problems. One of the best programs to do this is called the Psychiatric Rehabilitation Program (PRP), which at one time was working with 300 students in the Garrett County school system. It includes teaching life skills, and helping with homework and social skills. It also involves a counselor working closely with children on a one-on-one basis after school. The program's budget has been cut so that now, instead of handling 300, it can accommodate only 50 to 60 students.

"I am extremely disturbed by these cutbacks," said Dr. Wendell Teets, superintendent of the Garrett County school system. "This program really reaches children both at school and at home. It is proven to work and yet it gets cut. It just doesn't make sense in these times."

Yet, despite the budget cuts, Dr. Teets says he can confidently claim that his school system provides the best possible mental health care for its students.

One of the many people on the front lines of mental health care for Garrett County's children is Cynthia Downtown. Her official title is pupil personnel worker at Northern Middle School, but her job takes her to all the schools in her area of the county. She works closely with the health department for addiction counseling and mental health problems. She works with people from ages 3 to 21.

"I've seen it all," she said, "almost every problem you can think of that a child may have. And I've also seen the work that the Garrett County Health Department does with these kids. It's the best service I've ever seen," she said.

When asked about budget cuts and the fear of even tighter money coming from the state next year, Downton said, "I'm just trying to maintain. That's all we can do."

What people like Downton and Garrett County health workers are trying to do is prevent children from becoming statistics later in life.

A rather alarming statistic is that in Garrett County there were 275 admissions to hospitals for alcohol and other drug use in 2004. That figure was 266 for 2003. These numbers were provided by University of Maryland's Automated Tracking System through the office of Patty Sines, acting director of the addictions unit at the Garrett County Health Department.

"TASTE OF GARRETT" GEARING UP – "A Taste of Garrett County," a fundraiser for the Garrett County Recreational Trails Project, is slated from 6 to 9 p.m. on Monday, May 23, at The Lodge at Wisp. The Junior Woman's Civic Club assisted with the non-profit, volunteer effort by donating $100 to the Trails Project recently. Pictured are Recreational Trails Task Force chairman Steve Green and JWCC representative Angela Flanigan astride a newly blazed roadside biking trail. For information about A Taste of Garrett County, persons may call 301-387-4386 or 301-245-4400.

Statistics also reveal that in Garrett County the most widely used drug is alcohol, followed by marijuana.

Ralph M. Burnett, local judge of the District Court of Maryland, says that every day he sees the problems that alcohol causes. He defines an alcoholic as a person whose life is negatively affected and is having trouble functioning in society because of drinking.

He also thinks that much of the drinking being done in the county is an attempt at self-medication, an attempt to literally drown out a mental illness.

"It's so important that alcoholics get counseling," he said. "Sometimes they need help dealing with their emotions and fears so that they stop relying on the bottle. And if there are severe cuts in the mental health programs here, things are just going to get a lot worse.

"Alcoholism is like having a huge, mad dog growling and barking at your back door. Eventually, it's going to get you," he said.

But some local officials not wishing to be quoted said they feared the drugs of choice in Garrett County could soon change rapidly because of the influx of heroin and amphetamines in nearby Cumberland. Some even said it would only be a matter of time before these more deadly drugs could be widely available in the county.

"We're doing everything we can to stop it from happening," said Sheriff Dick Sanders. "A few weeks ago we stopped a car on Route 68. It was coming from Baltimore and was full of drugs. The purpose of their trip was to set up a market for those drugs in Garrett County."

The Alcohol and Drug Information Administration in Baltimore has formulated that Garrett County is home to some 1,260 people right now who are addicted to either alcohol or drugs, but are not receiving treatment. Officials fear this number could climb rapidly if the drug culture found in some parts of Allegany County spreads west.

Should this occur, the demands on both law enforcement and mental health services could dramatically increase. Exactly how cuts would affect such a situation is not known. Also unknown is what programs may or will be slashed under next year's budget.

"In these times you just never know," said Brooke Schneider, director of the Garrett County Health Department's Mental Health unit. "Things are very uncertain, and both the state and the federal government are dealing with huge deficits. So we just don't know what's going to happen."

Bill Aspinall is more optimistic, despite the deficits at the state and federal levels. "Most elected officials are good people, and they know how vulnerable the mentally ill and the developmentally disabled are. I'm confident they'll keep that in mind," he said.

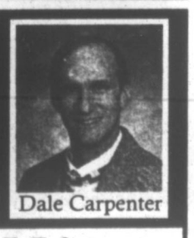
Real Estate Facts by...



Dale Carpenter

ONE AND ALL!

Beginning your home search? With so many houses advertised, and so many real estate companies from which to choose, will you need to call them all to gather information about each of the homes you like?

No. You only need one agent, no matter how many homes you want to see. Actually, you should choose an agent before you even begin your home search. Here's why.

Most agents are able to show not only their own listings, but those of all other agents too. Agents have a professional fee-splitting arrangement that encourages showings of all homes, so you can see as many as possible, without the inconvenience of moving from agent to agent.

Agents and companies provide each other with complete information on all homes for sale, so you can work with a single agent to obtain details about any property you choose. This reduces the tedium of explaining your objectives over and over with different agents.

The agent can then take the time to locate specific homes that fit your needs, and then preview them to eliminate those which are unsuitable.

Finally, the agent will set appointments to see a wide selection that fit your criteria. Taking time to select an agent first will save untold hours of searching and frustration. Soon, the right home will appear, and the decision will be easier than expected.

If you'd like to buy a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call at the office, or on my cell phone at 301-501-DALE.

"OVER THE RAINBOW" is the theme for Brenda's Body Shop's 25th dance and gymnastics recital, slated for Friday, May 6, and Saturday, May 7, at 7:30 p.m., at Westmar Middle School. The show will feature the characters from the Wizard of Oz story, but will "put a twist" on the traditional tale, according to Brenda Brosnihan, director. "The wicked witch has removed all the color from the rainbow, and Dorothy goes on a quest to return the color to her world," Brosnihan explained. "Act two of the show will begin with an older Dorothy hosting her own talk show, 'Dot, Color My World,' during which she will update the audience on the lives of her friends, the Scarecrow, Tin Man, and Lion, since they journeyed over the rainbow." Brosnihan said she was assisted by drama teacher Wendy Walker on the script, and that the story is "fun and original" and the routines are "high-energy and entertaining." Tickets will be available at the door. For more information, persons may visit www.brendasbodyshop.com or call 301-334-1275. Pictured above is one of the many groups of performers involved in the show. In the front row, from left, are Jessica Warnick, Abbigayle Smith, and Rachel Margroff. In the second row, same order, are Melissa Ray, Jessica Crosco, Allison Richter, Kelsey Jones, Jackie Rodeheaver, and Jordan Schwinabart.

FITNESS AFTER 55

by Christy Hoalcraft
Director, Flowery Vale Health and Fitness Center

May is going to be a busy month. May is Older Americans Month. We will be celebrating National Senior Health and Fitness Day on Wednesday, May 25, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Flowery Vale Health and Fitness Center. There will be free screenings, exercise demonstrations, entertainment, vendors, door prizes, and much more. For more information please call 301-746-8050 or 301-334-9431.

We will be having another potluck luncheon on Wednesday, May 11, at noon. This will be a send-off for Stephanie and Brian, our Frostburg State University interns, who will complete their internships that week. Members, please plan to join us for lunch and to thank them for all the time and energy that they have put forth in helping you and our senior center.

The week of May 8-14 is National Women's Health Week, and we will be providing fitness assessment and blood pressure screenings, and offering personal training sessions to encourage women to be healthy and active. We will also be giving out information on important health screenings as you age, as well as nutrition and exercise.

Four people enrolled at our facility this month, two new members and two members who have rejoined. We would like to welcome Carolyn Murray, Neil Jacobs, Laura Elder, and Joanne Durst to our facility, and we are glad to have them participating in our exercise program.

May is also High Blood Pressure Education Month. Here are some steps you can take to prevent and help control high blood pressure:

•Maintain a healthy weight – Check with your health care provider to see if you need to lose weight. If you do, lose weight slowly using a healthy eating plan and engaging in physical activity.

•Be physically active – Engage in physical activity for a total of 30 minutes on most days of the week. Combine everyday chores with moderate-level sporting activities such as walking to achieve your physical activity goals.

•Follow a healthy eating plan – Set up a healthy eating plan, such as the "DASH" plan, with foods low in saturated fat, total fat, and cholesterol, and high in fruits, vegetables, and low fat dairy foods. Write down everything that you eat and drink in a food diary. Note areas that are successful or need improvement.

•Reduce sodium in your diet – Choose foods that are low in salt and other forms of sodium. Use spices, garlic, and onions to add flavor to your meals without adding more sodium.

•Drink alcohol only in moderation – In addition to raising blood pressure, too much alcohol can add unneeded calories to your diet. If you drink alcoholic beverages, have only a moderate amount – one drink a day for women, and two drinks a day for men.

•Take prescribed medications as directed – If you take medications to help lower you blood pressure, you still must follow the lifestyle changes mentioned above. Use notes and other reminders to help you remember to take your medications. Ask your family to help you with reminder phone calls or messages.

The Flowery Vale Health and Fitness Center for the Mature Adult is operated by Garrett County Community Action's Area Agency on Aging. The center is open to county residents age 55 and over with member fees payable daily, monthly, and annually. To learn more about the Flowery Vale Health and Fitness Center, persons may call 301-746-8050.

AARON'S 499 REVIEW

Typical TALLADEGA

Gordon leads 139 laps, misses wrecks to defend race title

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Talladega, Ala.

Like an engineer at the controls of a powerful locomotive, Jeff Gordon pulled a train of cars around Talladega Superspeedway, keeping his No. 24 Chevrolet out front for a whopping 139 laps and surviving a couple of derailments behind him to win the Aaron's 499.

It was his second-straight win in the spring race at Talladega and his fourth in the past five restrictor-plate races, signalling that he and his Hendrick Motorsports team have placed a claim on the title of king of the restrictor-plate tracks. That designation has been bestowed in recent years on the Dale Earnhardt Inc. duo of Dale Earnhardt Jr. and Michael Waltrip, who came to Talladega having won 11 of the past 17 races at Daytona and Talladega, the two tracks where the plates are used to cut speeds.

Earnhardt, who crashed in the closing laps while running in the lead pack, conceded that his No. 8 Chevrolet is no longer the dominant car it once was on restrictor-plate tracks.

"It's good, but it ain't the best," he said. "We used to have the best."

He said that honor now goes to Gordon. "Jeff's car was awesome from what I could tell," he said. "When you get those kinds of cars, you need to get wins, which they did."

Waltrip wasn't ready to relinquish his team's claim to superspeedway dominance.

NASCAR

Jeff Gordon celebrates in Victory Lane after winning Sunday's Aaron's 499 at Talladega Superspeedway.

"It's not as lopsided as that four out of five [Gordon victories] sounds," he said, adding that he and Earnhardt have been in position to win several races in which Gordon prevailed. "Circumstantially it could have been quite different in a hurry."

Waltrip, who finished third, tried to push runner-up Tony Stewart past Gordon on the last lap, taking advantage of the aerodynamic forces that usually make two cars working together run faster than one by itself. But, he acknowledged, Gordon's car, at least for one day, was simply too powerful.

"I pushed [Stewart] all the way down the back straightaway . . . and I kept thinking that any minute we were going to make a move and pull out and pass [Gordon]," Waltrip said. "That tells you that Jeff's car was a little faster than everybody's.

"But my car was fast enough to win. I just couldn't overcome Jeff Gordon."

Gordon didn't dispute that and said his team has worked hard to regain its superiority at Talladega and Daytona. He's now won 10 of the 50 plate races he's run.

"It takes a lot of effort and almost a designated group of people to focus just on [restrictor-plate racing]," he said. "I feel like we've got one of the best groups to be able to do that."

Gordon dominated the race from start to finish, leading all but 55 of 194 laps while the next closest person on the laps-led chart was Kevin Harvick, who led 12. He was able to watch the race's two big wrecks through the rear-view mirror instead of the windshield.

The really big wreck occurred on Lap 133 when Jimmie Johnson, Mike Wallace and Earnhardt bumped, triggering a wreck that collected 25 drivers, including many of the frontrunners.

"It's ridiculous that professional drivers can't run three deep without hitting each other," said Sterling Marlin, who drove his wounded car to a 34th-place finish and dropped eight spots to 17th in points standings. "There's no safe place to race here any more. It's stupid to race like this."

Another incident on Lap 187 eliminated Earnhardt and five others from the lead pack and set up a green-white-checkered-flag dash to the finish.

TALLADEGA NOTEBOOK

Despite crash, Johnson keeps Cup points lead

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Talladega, Ala.

Nextel Cup points leader Jimmie Johnson crashed out of Sunday's Aaron's 499 at Talladega Superspeedway, a fate that ordinarily would be disastrous for his position in the standings. But with two big crashes affecting the fortunes of 30 other drivers, he remained solidly atop the standings. Though he lost 43 points to second-place Kurt Busch, Johnson still has a 130-point advantage.

Johnson said the late-race wreck on Lap 187 wasn't unexpected, considering the circumstances and the stakes involved with the checkered flag just two laps away. It wound up coming eight laps later, when the race was extended to accommodate a green-flag finish.

"I was in the outside lane, got squeezed into the outside wall, and everything took place from there," he said.

Dodges run strong

A surging Dodge camp, which had three drivers in the top five at Texas two weeks ago, placed three drivers in the top 10 at Talladega in a race dominated by Chevrolets.

Jeremy Mayfield was fourth, Jamie McMurray took fifth and Ken Schrader, who was 43rd on the grid Sunday after a poor qualifying effort, finished eighth. It was Schrader's best run since a sixth-place effort at Bristol last spring.

Mayfield said that while the good finish in Sunday's race was largely a matter of surviving wrecks, his No. 19 was better than it has been in previous restrictor-plate races.

"We ran with the best of the best at the speedways, so that's a good sign," he said. "Our Dodge was really good. We could go where we needed to."

Kvapil crashes late

Travis Kvapil, who was racing at Talladega for the first time, found himself in the lead pack in the closing laps and was as high as sixth before getting caught up in a wreck. He limped home 18th.

"We got up in pretty good position and got shuffled out," he said. "A couple of guys got together, and I was right behind it and there was nowhere to go. At least we crashed with two [laps] to go and not 50 to go."

Crewman injured

Josh Yost, the jackman for the No. 31 Chevrolet driven by Jeff Burton, was taken to a Birmingham, Ala., hospital after he was struck during a pit stop on Lap 116.

Track spokesperson Kristi King said Yost suffered a fracture in the lower part of his right leg.

COMMENTARY

Retirement not in Mark Martin's vocabulary

By JEFF GLUCK
Cox News Service

Memo to Dale Jarrett, Ricky Rudd and any other driver with an impending retirement from Nextel Cup racing: Don't do the farewell tour, the big goodbye.

Just look what Mark Martin is going through. Since Martin announced last year that the 2005 season will be his last on the Nextel Cup circuit, he's had to answer the same questions every day.

It doesn't matter how many press conferences he holds or how many appearances he makes. It's the same stuff, every day, every hour, every minute.

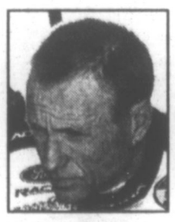
A recent media session at Richmond International Raceway was no different. Martin finished testing his No. 9 Busch Series car, then walked over to greet reporters.

The questions began immediately.

Why are you retiring now?

What made you want to retire?

What's it like to look back on your career?



MARTIN

It doesn't vary from city to city, track to track. When every question has the word "retire" in it, getting old means more than just age.

"I'm not thinking about that right now," Martin said. "I'm focused on going out at or near the top of my game. I haven't thought much about anything else."

At first, Martin patiently answered various forms of the same question, and tried to stay calm while the TV reporters queried him. But after awhile, he simply ran out of things to say about his "Salute to You" tour.

"Why do you want to get out now?" inquired a local TV cameraman, looking for a soundbite for the 6 o'clock news.

Martin, who just answered that same question 30 seconds before, stared into the camera, slightly shaking his head, searching for the same tired words. How many times can you talk about one thing over and over again?

Finally, after one of the more awkward silences in the history of awkward silences, Martin just shrugged his shoulders.

"I really don't know what you're after," he said.

Since Martin doesn't feel like reflecting on his career now, I asked him when that day might come.

Unfortunately, the 'r'-word slipped out during my question.

"Look, you've got to realize, I'm not retiring," he said, referring to his plans to continue racing in the Craftsman Truck Series. "That just doesn't exist in my world right now. I've never cared a lot about the past anyway."

Martin certainly agreed to a retirement tour, but it probably wasn't his idea. Business-savvy drivers are well aware of how sponsors need attention, and there's nothing like a 36-race farewell party to bring in some extra cash.

"Mark Martin Salute to You" T-shirts are the No. 1 featured item on NASCAR.com, costing $21.99 a pop. There are hats, die-cast cars and even souvenir buckets. Think anyone makes a profit off that stuff?

Martin and Rusty Wallace's "Last Call" might be nice for merchandisers, but it doesn't help the drivers and crews in their cause to make the Chase for the Nextel Cup.

We can do without a "Dale's UPS Send-off" or whatever gimmick the marketers come up with for Jarrett's retirement tour.

If fans really care about their drivers, they'll realize that winning is more important than a cheesy farewell tour.

But you get the feeling that after an entire summer of retirement questions, there might not be enough gas left in these veterans' tanks for what's most important: winning the Nextel Cup.

After favorites purged in wrecks, Truex wins

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Talladega, Ala.

An usually high number of wrecks by some of the best drivers in NASCAR left defending Busch Series champion Martin Truex Jr. and an unlikely cast of characters as stars of Saturday's Aaron's 312 at Talladega Superspeedway.

After Nextel Cup veterans Sterling Marlin, Kevin Harvick and Greg Biffle were wrapped up in wrecks, the race was decided by drivers who often are overlooked in Busch races where Cup drivers participate.

Truex defeated Jon Wood, David Stremme, Ashton Lewis Jr. and Kerry Earnhardt in a race in which the "Buschwhacking" Nextel Cup regulars and eight of the top 10 in Busch points were knocked out.

In the closing laps it looked as if Earnhardt, the often-overlooked son of the late Dale Earnhardt, was on the verge of giving the partisan Earnhardt crowd reason to cheer.

On the race's final restart, Earnhardt, running second, failed in a bid to wrest the lead from Truex and dropped to fifth at the finish.

"I had a fast race car; I just didn't have any friends out there," Earnhardt said.

The race included a rain delay of more than three hours.

Morgan Stark, a fourth grader from Friendsville Elementary School, was recently accepted into the Maryland Summer Center for Mathematics, to be held at Frostburg State University this summer. She was one of 25 gifted and talented students entering grades 5-7 from all over Maryland to be selected.

According to the description from the summer centers, she will "explore the mystery and beauty of mathematics to develop a powerful mastery of math concepts and themes...this will help her learn how to think more like a mathematician and hopefully increase her personal enjoyment of math."

Morgan said she would like to thank her teachers at Friendsville Elementary School for the support and effort they have put into teaching.

Morgan is the daughter of Frank Stark, Frostburg, and April Slagle, Friendsville.

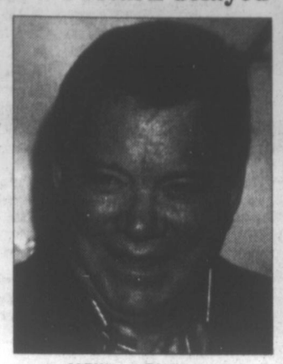
TV PIPELINE

'Legal' maneuvers: Show's return delayed

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it



William Shatner

Q: My husband and I really enjoyed watching "Boston Legal" Sunday evenings on ABC. Now "Grey's Anatomy" is on, with no mention of "Boston Legal." What happened? –Marlene Kirsch, Bel Air, Md.

A: Better-than-anticipated ratings for "Grey's Anatomy," that's what. As a result, ABC has decided to extend the medical drama's tryout run, thus delaying the return of William Shatner and the rest of the "Boston Legal" gang until next season. If it makes you feel any better, that will mean fewer repeats for the law show then, since more new episodes – the ones ABC originally intended to run now – will be ready to air.

Q: I am hearing that "JAG" will end this season. Is this true? Why? This has long been a favorite program of mine. What will happen to the cast members? –Pat Ready, Lawton, Okla.

A: Rest assured, we are receiving the anticipated deluge of mail from "JAG" devotees. CBS felt the series had run its course, although the network didn't quite phrase the exit announcement that way, and creator and executive producer Donald P. Bellisario graciously added that he appreciated the show's "amazing run, particularly for a series that was once cancelled (by NBC, after its first year)."

The "JAG" finale aired April 29, and it remains to be seen what most of the show's stars will do. However, David James Elliott has a deal for another series at ABC, and that network's imminent revelation of its programming plans for next season may provide more information.

Q: Is Peter Gallagher of "The O.C." related to David Gallagher of "7th Heaven"? They even have the same thick eyebrows. –Noelle Lex, New York.

A: Interesting point, but they aren't related. Peter and his wife have two children. David has four younger siblings, and his father's name is Vince.

Q: Is there any way to contact Hallmark Channel to ask to change the time for "Northern Exposure"? I would love to view it in prime time, instead of in the wee hours of the morning. –Joyce Scharf, Vallejo, Calif.

A: Here's the mailing address: Hallmark Channel, 12700 Ventura Blvd. Suite 200, Studio City, CA 91604. We'd suggest addressing your letter to the attention of the programming department.

Under and by virtue of the powers and authority vested in the Tax Collector of Garrett County, Maryland, by Tax Property Article 14-808 through 14-870 of the Annotated Code of Maryland, 1994 Edition and amendments thereto, the undersigned will on:

Friday, May 6, 2005
at the hour of 10 a.m. D.S.T.

in the Courthouse Building in the Town of Oakland, Maryland, offer and sell at public auction to the highest bidder all the following described land, coal situate, lying and being in Garrett County, aforesaid, for nonpayment of State, County, Municipal and/or an other taxing agency taxes as hereinafter set forth:

Terms of Sale:

Cash, cashier's check or certified funds (no personal checks) on the day of sale of the full amount of taxes due on the property sold, together with interest, penalties and expenses of sale. Residue of purchase price shall remain on credit.

Purchasers will be issued a certificate of sale, which may be recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County. The holder of any certificate of sale, his heirs or assigns may, at any time after the expiration of six months from the date of sale, file a bill of complaint to foreclose all rights of redemption of the property to which such certificate relates. Unless a proceeding to foreclose the right of redemption is filed within two years of the date of the certificate of sale, the certificate shall be void, and all rights to the holder of the certificate shall cease and all money received by the Tax Collector on account of said sale shall be deemed forfeited. Upon foreclosure and payment of the balance of the purchase price and all taxes, interest, penalties and costs, which have accrued, in the meantime, the Tax Collector will execute a deed which will vest in the purchaser an absolute and indefeasible title in fee simple in the property, free and clear of all alienations and descents.

The right of redemption continues until foreclosed as above, upon payment of the whole amount of money received by the Tax Collector from the sale of the property, together with interest at 10 percent (10%) per annum from the date of sale to the date of redemption together with all taxes, interest and penalties accrued which have been paid by the holders of the certificate of sale and the total disbursements of the holder of the certificate of sale made in accordance with law. All costs as to examination of title, preparation of deed, court costs and other expenses accruing after the sale must be assumed by the purchaser.

ALL BIDDERS MUST REGISTER AT THE TAX OFFICE PRIOR TO THE SALE. ALL SALES ARE FINAL!

Volunteers Sought For Annual May Bird Count Event

The annual countywide May Bird Count, sponsored by the Maryland Ornithological Society (MOS), will take place in Garrett County on Saturday, May 14, during the entire 24-hour period (midnight Friday to midnight Saturday).

The all-volunteer count is open to novice and experienced birders, and results of the count will appear in Maryland Birdlife, a publication of the Maryland Ornithological Society. Watchers may choose to count at a feeder or any other location in the county, according to event coordinator Fran Pope, although they must inform her by Wednesday, May 11, of where they will be counting in order to avoid duplication of effort and to assure the best coverage of the county.

"Some of the species observed at this time of year will have already begun their breeding season," Pope noted. "Once again, we are asking birders to note bird behavior they observe which might indicate breeding status. These observations will be used as data for the Breeding Bird Atlas project, a 5-year effort of the MOS, which seeks to determine the presence and distribution of birds breeding in Maryland. The project is in its fourth year and more information about it may be obtained at the MOS web site (www.mdbirds.org).

The May Count coordinator will furnish each participant with a May Count form and a list of breeding behaviors, including what they mean and how to code them. To request these materials, and provide a location where a volunteer will be counting, persons may call Pope at 301-334-4908.

A BIRD COUNT COUP? – The May Bird Count is slated for Saturday, May 14, and one of the species volunteer counters are hoping to see is the red crossbill, which is currently visiting several feeders in the county. Not yet known to nest in Garrett County, the possibility exists because of breeding reports from adjacent states, according to Walter Ellison, coordinator of the Maryland/D.C Bird Atlas project. "This could be the year we confirm the red crossbill in Maryland, but it will take sharp-eyed birders to find it as the female seldom leaves the nest while incubating the eggs, and is fed by the male," Ellison said. See story for information on how to volunteer for the count.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

Feedback

Q. Sometimes in a gymnasium or auditorium, the sound system goes nuts and screeches really loud. What causes that?

What you're hearing is known as feedback. It happens when sound waves are amplified in a very special (and unintended) way. It usually is caused by having the loudspeakers behind the microphone.

When a sound system is working correctly, sound waves enter the microphone, get converted into electrical signals, which travel through the amplifier, and go into the loudspeaker. The loudspeaker takes electrical signals and causes a diaphragm to move accordingly, thus producing new sound waves that exactly match what went into the microphone in the first place – with one big difference: these sound waves are a lot louder than the voice of the person speaking into the microphone. In a big amphitheatre, people hundreds of feet away from the stage can hear the person quite well.

If you turn up the volume on the amplifier all the way, you'll get very loud sounds, but it will still resemble the original. That's not feedback; that's just loud.

Feedback occurs when the sound going into the microphone is identical to the sound coming out of the loudspeakers. That can start in a fairly quiet room, and doesn't need anybody speaking into the microphone. Any old sound wave (for instance, the proverbial "pin drop") enters the microphone, loops through the system, comes out the loudspeaker and the identical sound goes right back into the microphone. That amplified sound then goes through again and comes out louder, goes back into the microphone for another round, and so on. If the loudspeaker is about 20 feet behind the microphone, this amplification cycle can be repeated about 50 times in only one second. Even a faint initial sound becomes excruciatingly large that way.

The screeching sound is not that of a voice or music, but is entirely at one frequency: the resonant frequency of the system. This is often around 1,000 cycles per second (1,000 Hz), which is right in the middle of the human hearing range, and therefore quite noticeable (and painful). That's because while this or that frequency might be multiplied 3 times or 7 times or 5 times, it is that single resonant frequency that gets multiplied a hundred times. That's the frequency that contains all the energy. So that's all you perceive, because your hearing blocks out all the weaker sounds.

In an auditorium, when feedback begins, a person will sometimes lunge for an electrical switch or try to disconnect a plug. There is a much simpler way to stop it: if you're the person holding the microphone, just put your hand over the place you would speak into. That will block the sound waves coming out of the loudspeakers from reentering the microphone. With the amplification loop thus cut off, the noise will cease. After that, just walk with the microphone to a point behind the loudspeakers. Or have somebody move the loudspeakers to the front of the stage, ahead of the microphone. When you start talking/singing again, there will be no feedback problem any more, because the amplified sound waves emitted by the loudspeakers are headed out toward the audience, not into the microphone.

If you're in the front row in the audience, when feedback starts you can look like a genius/hero by dashing up to the stage and clamping your hand over the microphone.

The right way to set up a sound system before a performance is to be sure that no loudspeaker is ever facing toward a microphone. The basic idea is to eliminate any path by which the output sound can become the input all over again.

Bark 'n Bites Of Your Garrett County Forest Conservancy Board

by Paul Shogren

The April meeting of your Garrett County Forest Conservancy Board featured discussion of the topics listed below.

NATURAL RESOURCES CAREER CONFERENCE

The board has sent the information packet for the annual Natural Resources Career Conference (NRCC) career week program at Hickory to the principals and biology, guidance, and vo-ag departments at both high schools; however, only one application has been received (from Southern High). This is an all expense paid opportunity to spend five days at the Hickory Environmental Education Center to learn about the many phases of conservation, and the board has one more scholarship available.

ARBOR DAY

Maryland's Arbor Day was observed on Wednesday, April 6, as board members planted a flowering dogwood tree at the Hickory Environmental Education Center in memory of Josh Fike.

The board members noted that the Garrett County commissioners had issued an Arbor Day proclamation for April.

SCHOOL REFORESTATION PROJECT

The following schools in the county participated in the school reforestation project this year: Southern Middle, Bloomington, and Swan Meadow schools; and Accident, Kitzmiller, Dennett Road, Route 40, Crellin, Yough Glades, and Grantsville elementary schools. Each received five or more red spruce and other trees.

MFA LOGGERS/FORESTRY FIELD DAY

The MFA Loggers/Forestry Field Day is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, June 10 and 11, at the Garrett County Fairgrounds. The Forestry Board will provide an educational display for the event.

GARRETT/ALLEGANY BOARDS TO MEET

A joint meeting between the Garrett and Allegany Forest Conservancy boards is scheduled for 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday, June 22, at Grantsville's Penn Alps Restaurant to discuss common activities, including the 2006 Maryland Forestry centennial.

TOP 10 BENEFITS OF FORESTRY

The Society of American Foresters has compiled its "Top 10" list of the environmental benefits of forestry. The first five items on the list – "Forestry is Bringing Back Forests," "Forestry Helps Water Quality," "Forestry Offsets Air Pollution," Forestry Helps Wildlife," and "Forestry Helps Reduce Catastrophic Wildfires" – have been noted in previous Barks 'n Bites columns.

A sixth benefit is "Forestry Provides Great Places to Recreate." Foresters manage forests that provide recreational benefits to communities and people. Forests provide areas for birdwatchers, hikers, campers, photographers, horseback riders, and snow enthusiasts. Because foresters put water values high on their list of priorities, the rivers, streams and lakes in forested areas provide recreation such as fishing, canoeing and rafting.

So, go recreate – but be careful with fire.

MAY MEETING SLATED

The May meeting of the Garrett County Forest Conservancy Board is scheduled for 9 a.m. Monday, May 9, at the DNR Forest Service office at Mt. Nebo. The public is invited, and persons interested in attending are asked to contact board chairman Chuck Hoffeditz at 301-387-5144 or county forester Ernie Metz at 301-334-3296.

THE UNMISTAKABLE AROMA OF RAMPS wafted through the Discovery Center, Deep Creek Lake State Park, on Saturday during the 5th annual Ramp Cook-Off. In years past, the event was held at Swallow Falls State Park. "The entrees keep getting more delicious and varied each year, with an always changing usage theme for the ramps," said one faithful (brave?) event goer. About 45 people attended this year's cook-off, which was organized by Caroline Blizzard and Connie Skipper, both naturalists with the Department of Natural Resources' Discovery Center. There were 18 dishes submitted for judging this year in two categories. Pictured at left is Tom Carr of Accident (a repeat winner), who won first place for his "Ramp Potato Omelet" in the cooked ramp category. Sue Glotfelty, also of Accident, won first place in the raw ramp category for her "Ramp Wraps." Pictured at right is cook-off judge Kevin Dodge, Natural Resources and Wildlife Technology program director at Garrett College, contemplating the nuances of one of the dishes. Mildred Cottrill from Spring Gap, a visitor at the Discovery Center, was the other judge. Photos courtesy of Tom Eichhorn.

Acetyl-L-Carnitine For Diabetic Neuropathy

Neuropathy is a common long-term complication of diabetes, often affecting as many as half of all diabetic patients. Neuro-pathy is characterized by pain and numb-ness in the hands and feet/legs. This type pain is caused by nerve damage from chronically elevated blood sugar levels. Acetyl-L-carnitine (ALC) is a substance that is produced in the human body. It is involved in many bodily processes, including energy production and the preservation of nerve function. It is often used as a supplement to improve memory.

A recent study in the journal Diabetes Care reported that ALC taken in doses of 1000mg three times daily for one year lowered the amount of pain experienced by diabetic patients with neuropathy. It also improved the perception of vibration in pa-tients with neuropathy. Those who exper-ienced the most benefit from ALC had type 2 diabetes (instead of type 1) for a short time period and were compliant with the supplement regimen.

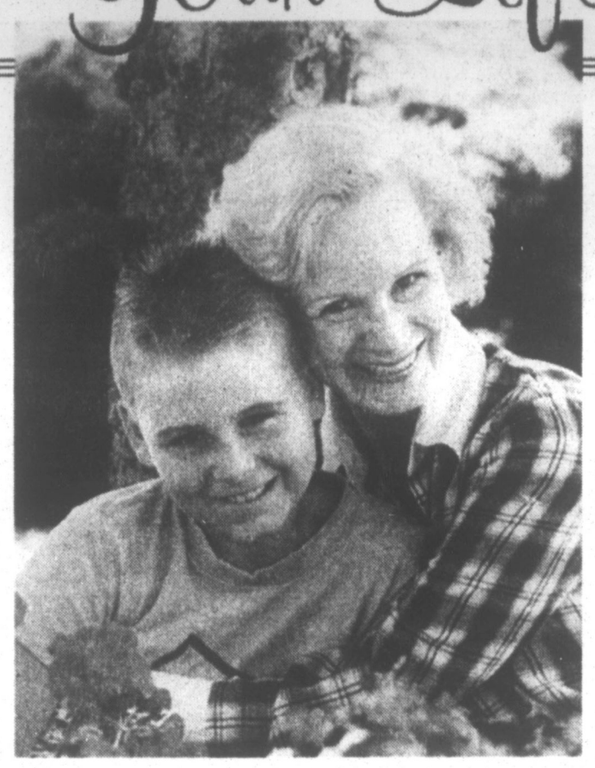
This is Your Life



In the first years, you were life itself. Warmth, sustenance, and the softness of loving arms were only a heartbeat away.

As we became young children, you were perfection personified...the queen of our world. A kiss erased the pain of a skinned knee or hurt feelings. Shelter was your arm.

During the teen years, your queenly crown tilted precariously. You became our "critic". "Your room is a pigsty!"... "That phone must be glued to your ear!" What's happened to Mom?

However, college gave us a new perspective, as you again became our rescuer. Goodies and loving letters (with an enclosed check) proved your crown was on straight. Thank goodness!

Finally, we launched lives of our own. You became our confidant and advisor as we began jobs and raised families. Again we were babes in a new world, and you were there.

Mom, life has come full circle. You played many roles with little rehearsal, but you were always right on cue. Today, you take center stage. Congratulations...and Happy Mother's Day!

Changing Our Outlook

The true value of life is determined more by our outlook than the external circumstances of our life. And although everything can be looked at in various ways, those people who are genuinely the happiest are usually the people who maintain a positive attitude despite the difficulties of their life. The stoic philosophers were fond of saying that it is not things which disturb us, but our view or judgement of things. When we simply change the way that we look at things, amazingly the things themselves will change. Ultimately, we should ask ourselves how we view the universe and our place in it. Do we see it as a hostile or a friendly universe? This is perhaps the most fundamental question in determining our perspective on life, and we would do well to consider that God is in control and that events are unfolding exactly as they should, despite external appearances to the contrary.

Count it all joy, my brethren, when you meet various trials, for you know that the testing of your faith produces steadfastness.

FIV Attacks Cat's Immune System

Q. My cat, Princess, is 13 years old. She developed a small sore on her front paw two and a half years ago that would not heal despite trying several types of antibiotics. The vet amputated the infected toe, thinking this would take care of the problem. It did for a few weeks, and then it started in another toe. Then they tested her for FIV and feline leukemia, and she tested positive for FIV. I don't see much hope of her getting any better, but I hate the thought of having her put to sleep. Do you have any suggestions? — J.K., via e-mail

A. FIV — feline immunodeficiency virus — is a serious illness, but it is not an automatic death sentence. With good medical care and diet, many FIV-positive cats live comfortably for months or years.

If your vet has not yet done so, have him or her get a white blood-cell count to determine how well Princess' immune system is functioning. A count below 2,000 is a critically low level; above 4,800 is the low-normal range for cats. At any level, it's important to continue working with the veterinarian to develop a health management regime for your cat.

A diet rich in protein, with vitamin supplements (available from the vet or at pet stores) and any medicines prescribed will help Princess' immune system stay strong. The sore on her toe should continue be treated as aggressively as possible, and any other illness or injury will need prompt attention. In addition, check Princess regularly for fleas and ticks, as these parasites can introduce other parasites, and their bites can become infected.

Eventually, the time will come when Princess cannot fight off illnesses any longer, and weakness, exhaustion and pain become a constant part of her life. This is when you will need to make the decision to have her put to sleep. I've heard many owners say that their sick pets actually "told" them when they were ready to go, and Princess may do that — through action or gesture.

But before then, learn as much as you can — through your vet, books or the Internet — about caring for an FIV-positive cat, and it may be some time before you have to make that final decision.

Mickey Mouse

Q. I have more than 3,000 Mickey and Minnie Mouse collectibles ranging from Christmas ornaments to cookie jars. Whom can I contact to liquidate this fascinating collection? — Raymond, Ridgecrest, Calif.

A. Your collection is probably quite valuable, so you have to get several opinions before you make a final decision. Doug Wengel is an appraiser who specializes in Disney items, and he might be a good person to contact first. His address is P.O. Box 305, Skillman, NJ 08558. Two clubs that might also be helpful are the National Fantasy Fan Club for Disneyana, P.O. Box 280681, Northridge, CA 91328; and the Mouse Club East, 11 Turnbull Ave., Wakefield, MA 01880.

I also highly recommend the auction services of Ted Hake, P.O. Box 1444, York, PA 17405. Incidentally, the fifth edition of The Official Hake's Price Guide to Character Toys has been issued, and it is both informative and what I believe is one of the better references for toys. This massive volume is a bargain at $35 and available through House of Collectibles, The Crown Publishing Company, 299 Park Ave., New York, NY 10171.

Strange BUT TRUE
By Samantha Weaver

• In a case of narcissism gone overboard — way overboard — a Chinese woman named Hu Pao-Yin stabbed her mother-in-law to death on Christmas Eve. To justify the homicide, she explained to police, "I am the most beautiful woman in the world, and the existence of other women is unnecessary." What's really interesting is that before this incident, she had attacked her adoptive mother for the same reason.

• "Home, Sweet Home" was the most popular song of its time. Its author, John Howard Payne, never actually had a home — he died alone and destitute.

• Actor Kirk Douglas' original name was Issur Danielovitch.

• It was a wise woman, Anita Brookner, who observed, "No blame should attach to telling the truth. But it does, it does."

• You may have never heard of J.F. Cantrell, but he was a pioneer in his industry. In April of 1934, he opened America's first Laundromat. Located in Fort Worth, Texas, the Washateria charged by the hour for the use of its four electric washing machines.

• German chocolate cake doesn't actually come from Germany. The recipe was created by an American whose last name happened to be "German."

• In 1957, Elvis Presley bought Graceland — for a mere $100,000.

• President Lyndon B. Johnson was a very wealthy man, but he didn't always act like it. It's been reported that he used to carry a light bulb around with him, screwing it into an empty socket whenever he entered a room. When he would leave the room, he'd unscrew the bulb and take it with him.

In their eagerness for government land grants, the two lines had built right past each other and the final meeting place had to be renegotiated.

AHIMA Awards Certified Status To GC Resident

The American Health Information Management Association (AHIMA) announced this week that Garrett County resident Margaret "Kitty" Taylor was awarded the Certified Coding Associate (CCA) credential. She is currently employed as office manager for Phenix Services, a Workers' Compensation case management firm.

AHIMA's CCA credential signifies that Taylor passed a comprehensive exam designed to measure her healthcare coding skills. Healthcare coding is a process by which diagnoses and treatments are converted into numerical values, which are then used to determine the amount of payment for healthcare services.

"AHIMA's CCA certification is the benchmark of competency in the area of healthcare coding," said Barbara Siegel, AHIMA president. The CCA credential signifies that Taylor has proven proficiency in entry-level coding.

Taylor has lived in Garrett County since 1983, returning to her family home from the Washington, D.C., suburbs where she had worked with the U.S. Department of Agriculture for 23 years. Following her retirement from Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, Alliant TechSystems, as an engineering associate with 18 years of service, Taylor decided on a career change in medical coding.

AHIMA is the professional association that represents 42,000 specially educated health information management professionals who work throughout the healthcare industry, according to the association. The AHIMA fosters the career growth of its members through education certification, and lifelong learning – promoting quality health information to benefit the public, providers, and others who use clinical data.

Fewer than 10 percent of all American high school students are recognized for this honor, according to the academy. Ryan will now appear in the USAA's official yearbook, which is published nationally.

Criteria for selection are based upon a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability, and recommendation from a teacher, coach, counselor, or other qualified sponsor.

Ryan attends Northern High School and is the son of Glenn and Kathleen Seaman.

Kitzmiller School To Raise Funds For New Books

Kitzmiller Elementary School is raising funds to purchase the Rigby Literacy reading supplement for kindergarten through fifth grade, according to principal Candy Dolan-Opel.

Rigby is a sister company to Harcourt, which is what the school systems currently use. Rigby will be used in addition to the regular reading books. "Rigby helps meet the needs of the individual student," said Opel. "These books are all different levels. They are high interest and very engaging. I know the kids will love them."

The school has already purchased books for the fifth graders which will be implemented next school year. The plan is to purchase books for the first graders next, said Opel.

Opel used the Rigby books while teaching at Friendsville Elementary School. "I saw high success with these books at Friendsville, so I know what they can do," she said. "I feel that those students scored well on their tests because they used the Rigby books."

Opel explained that the books discuss life topics that are not time sensitive, so the books won't become outdated in a few years. She said they really wanted to use a system that incorporated a lot of nonfiction writing. Opel explained that nonfiction is what people read on a daily basis when they read their mail or a newspaper. "We need to prepare the students for real life," she said.

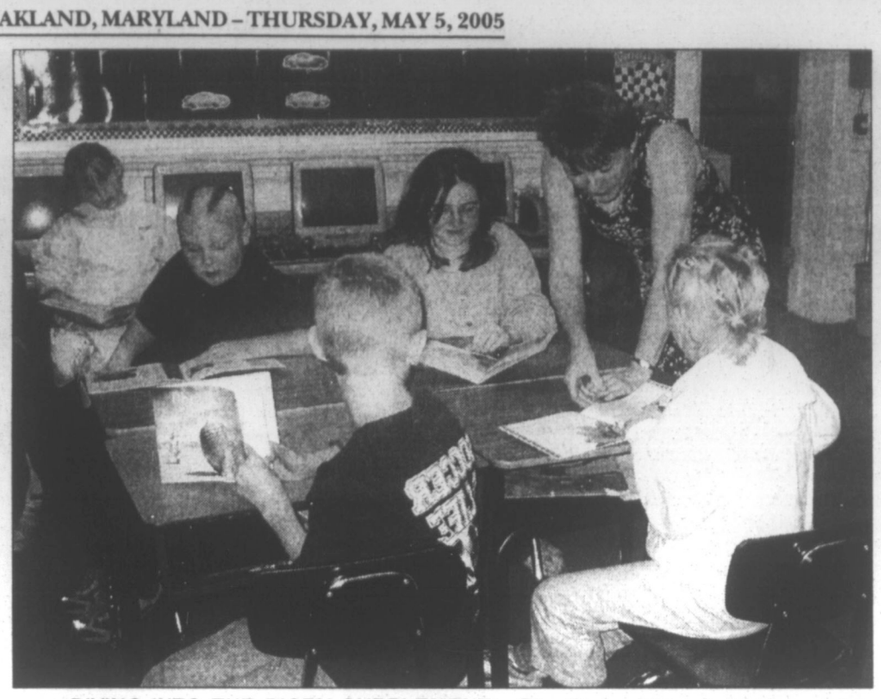
The books also incorporate all text structures, like biography, reference, question and answer, informative, and expositive history. It crosses all genders and is teacher friendly, she added.

Opel also added that the program encourages smaller groups in order to create conversations.

According to the Rigby web site, this program "is a dynamic K-5 comprehensive literacy program offering opportunities for modeled, shared, interactive, guided, and independent reading and writing. The program provides motivating fiction and nonfiction books and a variety of other components to develop children's reading and writing strategies and skills."

Amy Brantner, who will have two children in Kitzmiller School next school year, said she is excited about the new books.

"I am very excited to have a reading program in kindergarten for my daughter that focuses on the individual and will continue with her every year while in elementary school," said Brantner. "The nonfiction aspect of this program will give the students first-hand knowledge of places and things they have never seen."



DIVING INTO THE RIGBY SUPPLEMENT – The Rigby Literacy books, which are a reading supplement to the regular curriculum, has been purchased for the fifth graders at Kitzmiller Elementary School. The school plans on raising funds to purchase the program for all grades at the school. Pictured above, in the front from the left, are Josh Nesselrodt and Destiny Lloyd. In the back are Paige Lucas, Austin Berg, Ryann Reckart, and teacher Debbie Paugh. Below, in the front, are Cody Symons and Paige Lucas. In the back are T.J. Cross, Garrett Beachy, Matthew Virts, Paugh, and Shawna McRobie. See story.

The first fundraiser will be a carnival with Shaw Amusement on Saturday, May 21, from 1 to 4 p.m. The Kitzmiller Lions Club will be serving pre-ordered chicken dinners. There will also be a dunk-a-teacher booth, games, a petting zoo, raffles, and a basketball tournament.

For more information, to make a donation, or to pre-order a dinner, persons should call 301-453-3101.

Persons interested in making a donation to the book fund may sent it to Kitzmiller Elementary School, 288 W. Main St., P.O. Box 300, Kitzmiller, MD 21538.

The town-maintained street sweeping is rescheduled for May 6. Residents are asked to have vehicles off town streets, if possible.

The Mayor and Town Council would like for all old and faded, out-of-season decorations to be removed from the Friendsville Steele Cemetery to help maintain the appearance of the cemetery. They would like to have them removed by May 20 in time for the Memorial Day weekend.

State's attorney Lisa Thayer Welch attended the town council meeting on May 2. She suggested that the council rewrite the town charter to comply with the Annotated Code of Maryland. This would help with the enforcement of many of the town ordinances.

This is Spring Clean-Up Week. Recycling will be Friday, May 6, and large item pickup is Saturday, May 7.

Agnes Lichtner was nominated to replace Hobart Griffith, who recently resigned as town councilman. She will be sworn in at a future date by Mayor Schlosnagle. The next scheduled council meeting will be May 17 at 7 p.m.

Rita Watson from the Register of Wills office will be at the Friendsville town hall on May 16 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. She will speak with any resident who may have questions in reference to any estate issues.

The Revitalization Task Force is looking for new members. Persons interested are asked to contact Town Hall. The committee is hoping to have David Cotton from the Md. Dept. of Planning in Cumberland and Al Feldstein attend the meeting on May 19, to discuss obtaining funds for the mill and the Kendall Trail. Their scheduled meetings for the month of May are May 5 and May 19 at 7:30 p.m.

ON A PERSONAL NOTE
by Lucretia Sines

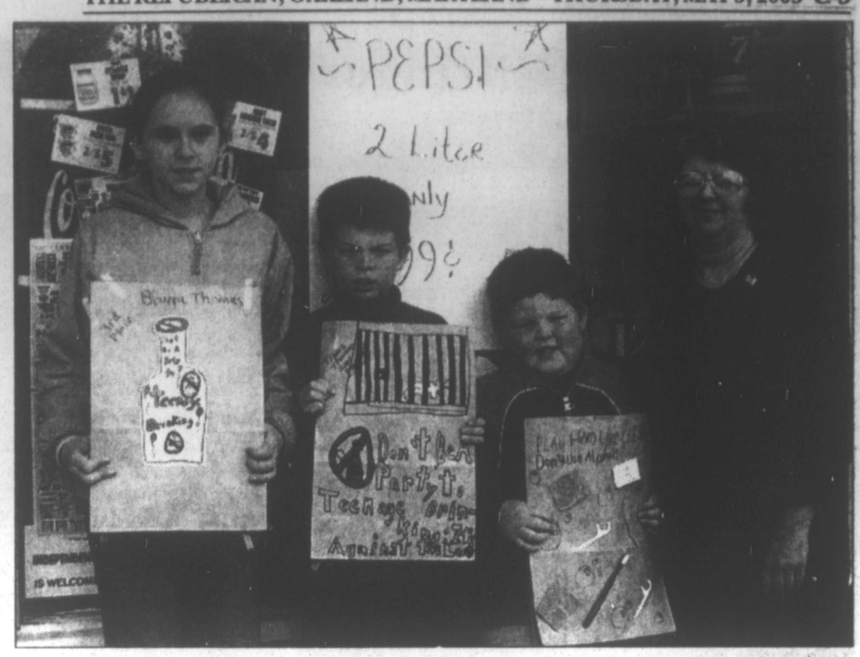
The Northern Garrett Rescue Squad lost a valuable member of Friendsville's Station 3 on Wednesday, April 27, after a short battle with lung cancer. Bob Humberson was a driver for Station 3 and was always available to drive. Even in poor health, he was always worried about making sure the ambulance got out. Before I really got to know Bob, I thought he was just another grouchy old man, and never really knew him until Station 3 was almost closed down a few years ago. I then found him to be very passionate about the rescue squad and very worried about losing it. When things resolved and he seemed to settle down, Bob seemed to make a mission out of recruiting me into the squad. He would pester me every chance he got and even swore that he would give up smoking if I would join. Well, it took way over a year of hearing him "harp" about joining the squad before I decided to take him up on the offer.

After joining the squad, I found Bob to be a very kind and caring man who was just there to help people. Now, don't get me wrong. He still had his grouchy ways, but his heart was definitely in the right place when it needed to be. The squad was his family, and he worked hard to keep it together. He refused to give up smoking though and said I had to become a paramedic first. (Don't worry, because that is not happening.)

Bob's last run as a driver was when he transported Gary Hoover, a fellow member of Station 3 who was severely injured in March when his snow plow was hit by a tractor-trailer on I-68. Bob was a part of the crew who helped save Gary's life by getting him to Ruby Memorial Hospital in 20 minutes. It was a very emotional moment when Gary was able to be a part of the funeral detail and walk into the funeral home where Bob lay for the last time. A person can go through life without making a dent if they choose to, but Bob chose to be very involved and passionate about any organization that he belonged to. As his nephew Willie stated at the memorial service for Bob, "That man scared me to death.., but I am really going to miss him." The feeling is mutual by many who knew him.

I guess it seems fitting that the last ride Bob would have to the hospital would be in the ambulance on which I was a crew member. I had just received certification as a first responder and was sure to tell Bob that. At first he did not believe me, but then he stated that that "was great." I also told him that his voice was greatly missed on the pagers and he pleasingly smiled. As we wheeled him into the emergency room, I laid his rescue squad jacket that he always wore with pride over his chest and told him that we wanted to show everyone how important he was, and he replied, "You do that."

Death came too soon to Bob, but I am glad that I got to know him. "Rescue 3-1 to Garrett Central, show this person home."



BAGGING YOUTH ALCOHOL ABUSE IN FRIENDSVILLE – The Friendsville Community Watch Group marked April as Alcohol Awareness Month with a contest in which youth decorated paper grocery bags with alcohol prevention messages. The contest was one of many programs sponsored by the Garrett County Health Department during the monthlong observance, which taught county youth about the dangers and consequences of underage drinking. "Large numbers of young people consume alcohol during their teen years," explained GCHD spokesperson Brenda Frazee. "Youth and adults need to be informed that alcohol is a gateway drug which can lead to marijuana, which can lead to cocaine and other hard drugs." Pictured, from the left, are contest finalists Sonya Thomas, third place; Trent Thomas, second place; Travis Thomas, first place; and S&S Market owner Freda Sines, who donated the paper bags and redistributed them to customers after the contest. The Friendsville Community Watch Group activities are supported in part by GCHD funds used to prevent alcohol, tobacco, and other drug use as well as teen pregnancy.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Glotfelty Sussman

WOODMEN LODGE #68

Adult and Youth Lodge #68 of the Woodmen of the World will be sponsoring "Join Hands" at the Bittinger fire hall on Saturday, May 7, starting at 9 a.m. Projects to be completed include painting the picnic tables, repairing the flag pole area, and replacing woodchips on the playground area. Come and bring the kids. Participate in a day that gives you an opportunity to give something back to your community. Hot dogs, chips, and drinks will be furnished at noon.

MOUNTAIN FEST AND PIG ROAST

Lana and Larry Roby hosted the party at the German Village on Sunday, May 1. Roasted pig and all the fixings were prepared by Chef Larry. Outdoor events included hog calling contest, scavenger hunt, story telling, and a sing-a-long. Feature of the Day was horse-drawn wagon rides.

My mother, Ruth, was the senior hog calling contest winner. I remember when she used to be in the contests at the Bittinger picnics when the late Leona Beitzel always beat her out. You just couldn't beat Leona.

Other Bittinger folks in attendance were Lana's extended family, Linda and Pete Buckel, Kim and Doug Collins and children, Tina Marucci and children, Margie Brenneman, and, of course Lana's mother, Lottie Brenneman. Hope I didn't miss any other "Bittingerites." Everyone had a good time and the meal was delicious.

BITTINGER LUTHERAN PARISH

A joint worship service was held at St. John's Lutheran Church, Meadow Mountain, to install our missionary now at the Lutheran Center in Mexico City. He is Kim Erno of Takoma Park. Kim grew up in a small town in New Hampshire, which was just across the border from Quebec, Canada. An offering was collected to fund the video library of the Lutheran Center in Mexico City. About 50 parish members worshipped and enjoyed a fellowship breakfast.

TERRAPINS FAN CLUB

A group of local Terrapin fans – Emma Bass, Meredith Sussman, Edward Herpel, and Erin Newman – accompanied Erin's parents, Carol and Lynn Newman, to Maryland Day at College Park last Saturday. They had a big day, and after the scrimmage football game at Byrd Stadium they joined the players to collect autographs and get pictures. Meredith was most excited to meet the handsome quarterback who transferred from W.Va. University. She was very impressed by the size of the squads' muscles. However, the biggest thrill was when they spotted their big cousin Robbie Glotfelty in the stadium. Robbie reported to sister Blakely that he heard a couple of young high school voices calling his name.

I guess even his littlest home folks were a welcome sight. They also saw Robbie at the Comcast Center for the basketball team's time with the fans. Mere met and got autographs from some of our big stars, like D.J. Strawberry, son of former NY Yankee shortstop Darryl Strawberry, Nick Medley, and Mere's favorite player, Chris McCray.

COLLEGE STUDENTS

I guess Robbie, my Claire, Torrey Poholsky, Landon Southerly, and Brent Housley are very busy with their final exams this week and will soon be home. I am expecting Claire home in time for Mother's Day, but sad to say, she will not be in time for the Mother and Daughter Banquet on Friday evening at the fire hall.

CHICKEN BARBECUE

Good news is that it is almost summer and that the first chicken barbecue will be held at the fire hall on Saturday, May 14, between 3:30 and 6:30 p.m. The winter's long layoff probably will cause high demand for the best chicken barbecue around, so plan not to wait until the last minute to roll in at the fire hall next Saturday.

MY NOTES

I hoped my eyes were deceiving me when I looked out to see the snow falling. Not enough to cover anything, but hard enough to remind us we never are completely safe from a few snowflakes in late spring. I guess it is good news to my peas, as they say a snow on peas ensures a good crop.

My mother talked to a part-time resident of Rock Lodge Road who said that her son in New York loves to read this column. Whoever he is if you are close to Manhattan, "Give my regards to Broadway, remember me to Herald Square."

The first week of May in 1979 was the most exciting time during my days in New York. I had the rare chance to get a close glimpse of some of Broadway's biggest names celebrating their Tony Awards for their work on Sweeney Todd. That show hauled in 12 Tony awards. My costume designer boss, Franny Lee, collected her second. Franny's most important contribution to American culture was her role as the original designer for the early days of Saturday Night Live. She designed the Cone Heads' costumes. That was 30 years ago. Time really does fly and the good times fly by.

However, I am very lucky to be living in one of the most beautiful places in the world, and that is one thing that does change for me. Of course, I guess I was due for some bad luck because most of my life was wonderful. I had a very happy childhood with a wonderful family and a galaxy of opportunities to pursue, and found success in them. Also, three beautiful babies and girls, some wonderful friends, a successful working life in at least four fields, and chances to rub elbows with some icons of the 20th century. I don't think I could ask for much more than what my first 40 years gave to me.

According to Sheila Southerly, our bears in the wild area behind the Peat Moss are up and cleaning their systems with a big breakfast of fresh skunk cabbage leaves. Apparently that diet cleans out their digestive system, as she saw many large piles of bear waste. A few years ago I saw one which I guess was almost five pounds.

Some beavers are hoping to move into the Buckel pond between the Southerly house and the Ramsey place. Why are they moving out of the old beaver dam below the flank of Meadow Mountain? Probably because quite a bit of water was lost in the last few years due to the lack of beaver population repairing their dam.

The silence was unreal coming from our wetland after a long day of May winter weather stopped the song of those precious little frogs. It looks like we are in for chilly nights because the clouds disappeared. Clear sky at night means cold nights. Thinking about the old saying "Red at night, sailors' delight," there was no red in our sunset this evening, but just slate grey and lemon yellow. But the forecast predicts milder weather later this week. I look forward to removing the tarp covering my little container garden and let in the sun. My baby plants have enough water for awhile, and now they need warmth and sun to get a really good start. I realize it is still a few weeks before my first fresh salad, but it is on its way.

That's all, folks!

With special help from Mary Ann Umbel, assistant at Northern High School, the students and staff at NHS collect pop tabs throughout the school year. This is the seventh year the school has been collecting the tabs. The tabs are recycled to help pay for expenses at the Ronald McDonald House, where parents and family members can stay if their child is hospitalized. Farming On The Mountaintop

Feasibility Study Planned For Dairy Processing Plant

Agricultural & Community Development Services (ACDS) is the consultant hired to conduct a feasibility study for a shared-use, value-added dairy processing facility in Garrett County. The study is being funded by a USDA Value-Added Producer Grant and the Garrett County Economic Development Office.

Donald Hering and Philip Gottwals of ACDS met with the Garrett County Dairy Processing Coalition board of directors for the first time last week to discuss the board members' plans for the facility.

"Our dream is to have a multi-purpose facility, where all types of milk from different animal species, such as cattle and goats, could be processed into bottled milk, flavored milk, cheese, cottage cheese, yogurt, cream cheese, sour cream, ice cream, and more," said Willie Lantz, agriculture extension educator.

"We would like the facility to include a tourism component, so people could see how milk is processed," said Cheryl DeBerry, agriculture marketing specialist for Garrett County Economic Development. "A retail area would offer folks a place to sample and purchase the 'fresh from the farm' dairy products."

The study will determine the type of facility that will be the most successful in this area, the officials said, as well as the operating efficiencies needed to make the facility solvent. Dairy farmers will be surveyed to determine interest in producing value-added products. Market demand will be evaluated, both from year-round residents and from tourists visiting the area.

"We are so excited about this study," said Joyce Bishoff, chair of the coalition and a dairy farmer. "This gives us the opportunity to explore more offerings of local foods. For now, just about all of our fluid milk goes to out-of-state processors. The milk in our grocery stores is not necessarily from our local dairy farmers. Today's consumers like to know where their food comes from."

Hering and Gottwals will be interviewing local officials, dairy farmers, retail outlets, and other interested parties in the next few months. Anyone interested in speaking with ACDS about the study may contact DeBerry at 301-334-6960.

USDA Announces Crop Insurance Deadline, May 31

Maryland nursery producers should be aware that the final date for a new applicant to apply for insurance on nurseies for 2005 is May 31, 2005, according to the Raleigh Re ional Office, USDA Risk Management Agency.

New applications for crop year 2005 may be accepted until May 31, with coverage beginning 30 days after receipt of a signed application. The premium for a new policy is prorated according to the month coverage begins.

Applications accepted after May 31 will not begin coverage until October 1, 2005. For existing policies, coverage automatically attached on October 1, 2004. The insurance year runs from October 1 through September 30.

Crop insurance provides protection for field-grown and containerized nursery plants against losses due to adverse weather conditions, fire, failure of irrigation water supply, wildlife, and delay in the marketability of plants, resulting in reduced plant value. Insurance premium subsidies have been significantly increased in recent years, particularly at the higher levels of coverage.

Producers are strongly urged to contact a local crop insurance agent as soon as possible for a premium quote and additional details. For a list of crop insurance agents in the area, persons may contact their local USDA Farm Service Agency office or log on to the following Risk Management Agency web site: www3.rma.usda.gov/tools/agents/.

Agency Highlights Noted By Local Area Farm Service

The following reminders were released recently by the Garrett County Farm Service Agency.

Loan Deficiency Payments (LDP): It's the time of year when farmers are considering their grain and wool marketing and storage plans for the year. Knowing the LDP rules before harvest or shearing is the best way to ensure eligibility.

Farmers must have "beneficial interest" in the commodity to sign up for an LDP. Sales, storage, future pricing, and future delivery contracts all affect eligibility. Once beneficial interest is lost, it cannot be regained and eligibility is lost. Commodities sold directly from the field or at time of shearing require the producer to file a form CCC-709 prior to harvesting or shearing.

Crop Disaster Assistance 2003 and 2004 Losses Covered: A Crop Disaster Program (similar to the one in 2001/2002) is available for losses from damaging weather for the 2003 or 2004 crop year. This program provides payments for eligible crops with production losses in excess of 35 percent and quality losses in excess of 20 percent.

"eGov": Persons may sign up for programs online and check out payment and program information from the USDA. Access to "eGovernment" services is available to all USDA customers by enrolling at this web site: www.eauth.egov.usda.gov/eauthCreateAccount.html.

For these and other programs, persons may visit online at www.fsa.usda.gov, or call the Garrett County FSA Office at 301-334-6954.

Preston Church To Present Scriptural View Of Dinosaurs

"Do dinosaurs prove evolution is true, or is there an explanation from the Scriptures? Have people seen dinosaurs?"

The Bethel UM Church is located along Texas Road. For more information, persons may contact Pastor Michael Ludle at 304-735-6391, or via e-mail at withoutexcuse_romans@yahoo.com.

Nat'l Senior Health, Fitness Day Set At Flowery Vale Ctr.

The 12th annual National Senior Health and Fitness Day (NSHFD) will be observed Wednesday, May 25, at Accident's Flowery Vale Health and Fitness Center, an official host site. From 10 a.m. until 2 p.m., local participants will join an estimated 150,000 seniors at more than 1,000 locations – all on the same day – as they walk, dance, play, and learn about better fitness and health.

More than 100 people are expected to attend the local event, and vendors will offer everything from free neck and shoulder massages to fitness and body-mass indexes. The Mountain Top Promenaders Square Dance Club will also be there, and lunch will be provided for a donation.

"We want to demonstrate that exercise can be fun," said Veronica Padmos, local coordinator of the Older America Act programs. "Our seniors look forward to this chance to experience some appropriate and enjoyable forms of exercise. It's also a great opportunity for them to find out about health-related resources in our community."

NSHFD gives older adults an opportunity to begin or renew a commitment to fitness and to celebrate the active senior lifestyle. Each year NSHFD coordinators in every state invent ways to engage seniors in regular exercise.

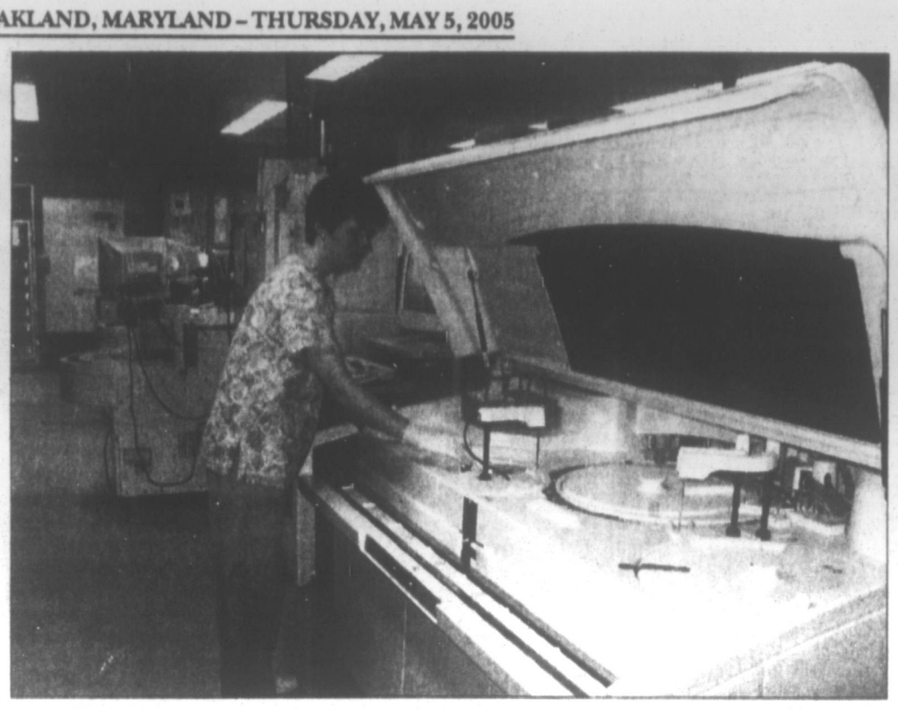
Even small increases in physical activity can be helpful. The Surgeon General's Report on Physical Activity and Health concludes that "older adults can obtain significant health benefits with a moderate amount of physical activity, preferably daily."

Among the benefits is increased cardio respiratory endurance, as well as stronger muscles, which help reduce the risk of falling and improve the ablitiy to perform the routines tasks of daily life, Padmos notes. Moderate physical activity also can reduce the risk of heart disease, diabetes, high blood pressure, colon cancer, and feelings of depression and anxiety.

To gain these benefits, people should engage in regular physical activity on all or most days of the week, according to Padmos.

National Senior Health and Fitness Day, coordinated by the Mature Market Resource Center, is always held on the last Wednesday of May as part of Older American Month. May is also National Physical Fitness and Sports Month.

For more information about the health and fitness day at Flowery Vale or to make lunch reservations, persons may call Christy Hoalcraft at 301-746-8050.



NATIONAL MEDICAL LABORATORY WEEK, April 24-30, was set aside to pay tribute to the more than 280,000 medical laboratory professionals across the country. "Good health care is a team effort," explains Joyce Nutter, laboratory director at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. "Our patients depend on the knowledge and skills of many different medical professionals – all working together to provide quality medical care. Laboratory professionals, while one [type] of many on that team, are among the most critical." Utilizing sophisticated technology and equipment, lab professionals perform and interpret tests that help to save lives and keep people healthy. They aid in disease prevention by identifying unknown health problems and assisting in the diagnosis and treatment of existing conditions by giving precise and timely test results. Laboratory test results make up an estimated 70 percent of a patient's medical records and are vital to diagonsis and treatment of illness and disease, according to Nutter. "I am proud of the laboratory here at Garrett County Memorial Hospital," she said. "We have some of the finest professionals here that I have ever worked with." Cumberland Man Found Not Guilty

Judge Fred Thayer found a Cumberland man not guilty of second degree assault in Garrett County Circuit Court last week.

Matthew Alan Riley, 42, a counselor/advisor at the Savage Mountain Youth Center, was charged by Maryland State Police last April following an incident with one of the youths at the center. According to the trooper's report, the youth was not injured.

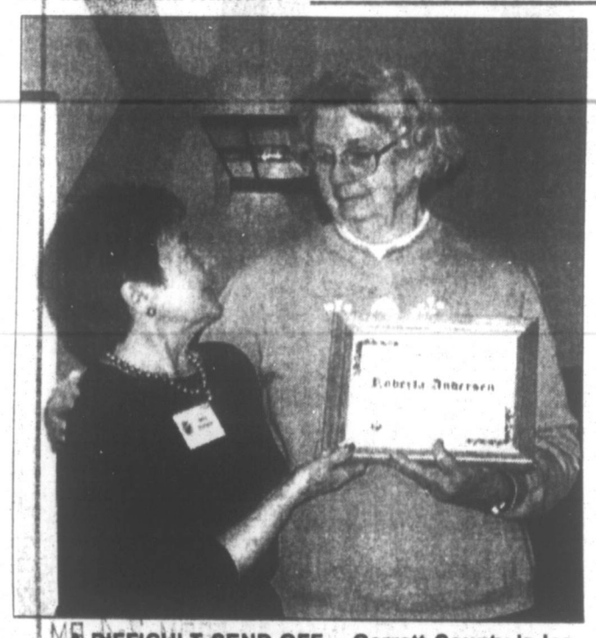
REGIONAL MAHA MEETING HELD AT GCMH – Garrett County Memorial Hospital recently hosted the Maryland Association of Hospital Auxiliaries Region II meeting. The region is composed of Allegany, Garrett, Montgomery, and Washington counties. During the event, Donald Battista, president/CEO of GCMH, discussed "Rural Health Care and How the Auxiliary Affects the Hospital." In Garrett County, "we still are that rural cohesive community ... and are pleased about that," Battista stated. But with Garrett County seeing between 400,000 and 600,000 visitors each year, GCMH is "the state's hospital to some extent... [The] Auxiliary helps the hospital deliver on the promise of personalized care." The Loar Auxiliary volunteers staff and maintain the Loar Auxiliary Gift Shop, located within the hospital. They also help with hospital beautification, which includes both the interior and exterior. Helen Earles, treasurer of Loar Auxiliary, worked with the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival to commission work from local artists to display on the walls of the hospital. Additionally, the Loar Auxiliary hosts fundraisers throughout the year, including bake sales, jewelry sales, and First Foto, photos of infants born at GCMH. Individuals interested in joining the Loar Auxiliary may contact Volunteer Services at 301-533-4178 for more information. Pictured, left to right, are Betty Patschak, Region II MAHA chairperson; Thomas Henry Sr., MAHA president; Betty M. Pritt, Loar Auxiliary president; Earles; Denise Shay, Loar Auxiliary buyer/gift shop manager; and Phyllis Gank, Loar Auxiliary secretary. Photo by Kearstin N. Hinebaugh.



A DIFFICULT SEND-OFF – Garrett County is losing one of its most dedicated and hard-working volunteers, as Roberta ("Bobby") Andersen is moving to Pennsylvania this month to be closer to her family. She and her husband Alden have lived in the county for 20 years and have been involved in a number of community organizations and efforts. Bobby was honored recently by the GFWC Civic Club of Oakland, of which she has been a member for many years, and was given a certificate of appreciation. Andersen is pictured above right as Betty Ellington, co-president of the Civic Club, presents her with the certificate. "The GFWC Civic Club members regret to see Bobby leave, and we appreciate all that she has accomplished for the club, as well as the community," said Ellington. "Bobby is an outstanding individual who has contributed greatly to many different organizations within Garrett County. She will certainly be missed. We wish her happiness in her new community. Our loss will be their gain."

What do Angels look like?
You can ask me, for I know...
I had an Angel come to me
A long, long time ago...

She welcomed me with open arms,
And loved with open heart;
And promised that, no matter what,
We'd never have to part.

Well, Angels keep their promises,
For mine is always there–
To encourage and to understand,
To comfort and to care.

She's never very far away,
And, now that I am grown,
I am sharing with my Angel
Little Angels of my own...

And when my earthly Angel
Walks the Earth with me no more,
I'll never need to wonder
Just what more God has in store...

Long after she has done her job
Among all living things,
She'll forever be an Angel–
But one who's got her wings...

So, what DO Angels look like?
You'll know one when you see...
Angels come in many forms...
But she looks like MOM to me.

Happy Mother's Day

With love, the Baker's Dozen

Each Spring
Life begins anew
After the harshness
Of Winter
As also do
Our souls
When we are no longer sinners
Awake to the spring of your life
God holds the key
Love is like a great wide river
watch it flow forth from me

Planning Commission Continues With Deep Creek Study Analysis

The Garrett County Planning Commission is continuing its ongoing review of the recommendations regarding Deep Creek Lake Watershed Economic Growth and Planning Study. Environmental Resource Management's (ERM) 16 major recommendations are available for review in the consultant's 40-page report, which can be viewed online at www.garrettcounty.org/pandz/dclstudy-.htm. The commission's minutes may be viewed in their entirety on the web site of the Planning and Land Development office, which can be accessed through the main Garrett County government web page at www.garrettcounty.org.

RECOMMENDATION #6

6. Create an Advisory Committee for the Deep Creek Watershed to assist county boards and commissions. This recommendation responds to the issue that the county boards and commissions are not sensitive to the watershed's needs, and that people lack a voice in the planning process. The ERM report envisions a permanent committee that would be advisory to the Board of County Commissioners, Planning Commission, Board of Appeals, and the zoning administrator, and sees this committee taking a lead role in developing the master land use and development plan for the lake area. The consultant suggests that the new committee would improve decision-making and provide the opportunity for broad representation including non-resident property owners, while not adding unnecessary bureaucracy.

The ERM report noted that the Citizens Task Force feels very strongly that the watershed's interests are under-represented on the Planning Commission, and that the watershed's membership representation should be commensurate with the watershed's economic and fiscal importance to the County.

The members of the planning commission discussed these suggestions at length, and members' views on the subject differ widely.

The commission noted that all of the members of the Citizens Task Force, who worked with ERM on the study, live or have businesses in the watershed. The board feels it is only natural for them to feel they should have a greater representation. The commission also noted that many of the residents who feel disenfranchised from the county are citizens elsewhere who only live here part-time or seasonally. Discussion ensued concerning voting privileges, prescribed membership for makeup of the planning commission, and the usefulness of this new, proposed committee.

Charles Thorne, full-time resident of Deep Creek, said he felt that a great portion of the revenue generated in the county comes from part-time residents at the lake. He stated that his group has pursued the idea of acquiring voting privileges for those residents, but the attorney general dismissed the idea unless the Maryland Constitution is changed. Thorne feels that a lot of the frustration felt by these property owners could be relieved by the addition of this new advisory committee. He noted that 80 percent of the watershed's residents are part-time.

A commission member noted that part-time residents would always have problems being on a full-time committee. Some members feel if the duties of the new advisory committee overlap the duties of the planning commission, then the committee is not needed. It was also noted that the disparity in the amount of taxes paid is due largely to the value of the homes and real estate at the lake. Members feel they and the county commissioners are sensitive to the needs of all residents of the watershed, and are well aware of the contributions made by part-time and full-time residents of the lake.

Some members also noted that other groups around the county might feel that they are not being represented by county government fairly if a new committee is formed only for the DCL watershed.

Public input on this specific recommendation was discussed, as the planning commission has received several letters and has hosted several citizens who voiced support the concept.

Scott Johnson, who represents the Property Owners Association (POA) spoke in support of this recommendation. Johnson is a full-time resident and business owner at the lake, and envisions this advisory board as not usurping the authority of the planning commission, but acting in an advisory role only. He said he thinks that this advisory committee could act as "eyes and ears" for the planning commission.

Planning commission member Troy Ellington spoke in favor of the recommendation in his role as the commission's representative to the Citizens Task Force, and he citied the amount of development in the lake area. He suggested that the new committee could help the planning commission by providing more input.

Questions arose regarding the role of the POA and this new, proposed committee, and Nelson explained that the group would be advisory in nature and would review and provide recommendations to the planning commission, county commissioners, and other bodies. The committee would not vote on planning commission issues, such as subdivisions.

Planning commission members speculated on what groups would be represented by such a committee. Planning Office director John Nelson pointed out that many people in the lake area feel that they are under-represented in the decision making process, as presented at the first public meeting. Members of the commission also questioned if other areas of the county would be therefore be entitled to their own advisory groups.

The planning commission recommended the creation of an advisory committee for the Deep Creek Watershed to assist county boards and commissions by a 3-0 vote, with 2 abstentions. The commission went on to clarify that this recommendation does not include any changes to the makeup of the planning commission by a 4-0 vote, with 1 abstention.

Further discussion notes will be published next week.

Sheriff Urges Residents To Watch For Signs Of Illegal Drug Activity

The following was submitted by Garrett County sheriff Dick Sanders. The information was supplied by the Maryland Sheriffs Association.

Methamphetamine: known on the street as "crank," "crystal," "glass," "ice," "chris," or just plain old "meth." A big city problem, right? Unfortunately, that's wrong – the truth is this highly addictive drug, which produces artificial "highs" that last far longer than cocaine – and costs much less – is being illegally manufactured in homes across America. In fact, as dealers and drug rings have been uprooted from the inner city, many have chosen to take refuge in safe, family-oriented neighborhoods.

How widespread is the threat? According to Sheriff Sanders, "The most recent statistics released by the National Institute on Drug Abuse, indicate that more than 15,000 labs have been reported. Of those, nearly half (46%) were found in 9 states located in America's heartland."

Meanwhile, the market for the drug continues to be robust, particularly with youth. The National Institute of Health's Monitoring the Future survey reveals that over 6% of high school seniors have used methamphetamine at some point in their lives. The figure drops only slightly (5.2%) for sophomores and 8th graders (3.9%). Figures also show that some 12.4 million Americans age 12 and older have tried meth at least once, with the majority of those who had used it in the past year falling between 18 and 34 years of age.

Underscoring the link between this highly toxic substance and crime, some 43.8% of men arrested in Honolulu between 2001 and 2003 tested positive for meth. More than 54% of the women detained during that same interval also were found to have the drug in their systems.

One reason for the proliferation of methamphetamine is the relative ease with which it can be made. There are numerous recipes, many of which use simple over-the-counter cold medications containing ephedrine or pseudoephedrine. These are then combined with chemicals such as red phosphorous (found on match heads), hydrochloric acid, anhydrous ammonia, drain cleaner, battery acid, lye, lantern fuel and antifreeze. Most are cancer-causing agents. And when they're "cooked" in makeshift labs, they produce a highly toxic, combustible atmosphere that can literally explode at any time during the process.

"This drug has the potential to cause complete and total destruction of lives, not only for the users, but those around them," said Sheriff Sanders. "The dangers are immense."

So, what are the possible signs of a home-based meth lab operating in your neighborhood? Look for:

•Unusual, strong odors (like cat urine, ether, ammonia, acetone, rotten eggs or dirty diapers).

Meanwhile, if you discover or happen to stumble across a suspected meth lab, there are some very specific protocols that should be followed:

•Do not touch any paraphernalia or chemicals present.

•Get to a safe location, keeping in mind that you could be contaminated.

•Try to recall everything you saw or smelled that could be helpful to a decontamination unit that will be called in to investigate.

•Immediately contact the sheriff's office or local law enforcement.

•Develop an evacuation plan. It may be as simple as taking the family to a neighbor's home.

•If you see children living in the home, note their condition. If they appear to be neglected, abused, or in any immediate harm, contact law enforcement and social services agencies immediately.

•In the event of an explosion or fire, do not try to fight the fire. Call 911 and provide the operators with your neighborhood's suspicions of the home being a meth lab. This will enable firefighters and law enforcement officers to take the appropriate precautions.

•Keep your family and neighbors at least 500 feet away and upwind of smoke and fumes emanating from a suspected home-based meth lab that's caught fire. This will help you avoid fumes that contain high dosages of toxins and contaminants.

Sheriff Sanders advised, "Remember, methamphetamine manufacturing is a dirty, dangerous business. However, with the proper amount of diligence and awareness among neighbors, these places can be identified and shut down – without injuring people who live nearby."

MTN. LAKE PARK WATER SYSTEM
NOTICE OF VIOLATION
Surface Water Treatment Technique

The Garrett County Department of Public Utilities is providing the following notice regarding the Mtn. Lake Park Water System. The springs for the water system have been evaluated for protection against surface water influence as required by the Surface Water Treatment Rule (SWTR), as adopted in the Code of Maryland; COMAR 26.04.01, Quality of Drinking Water in Maryland. The spring was determined to be under the direct influence of surface water by the Maryland Department of the Environment. As a result, this source requires additional treatment, such as filtration, or replacement with a protected water source. Federal and state regulations require that the Mtn. Lake Park Water System install filtration.

What is the Department of Public Utilities doing?

The Mt. Lake Park Water System disinfects the drinking water that is produced from the spring. The drinking water is tested monthly for coliform bacteria and results have met state and federal standards.

The Department of Public Utilities is in the process of testing the design for a new water treatment facility. After the pilot test is completed, design for the project will proceed.

What should I do?

People with severely compromised immune systems, infants, and some elderly may be at increased risk. These individuals should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. General guidelines on ways to lessen the risk of infection by microbes are available from EPA, Safe Drinking Water Act Hotline (800-426-4791). If you have specific health concerns, consult your physician.

What does this mean?

This is not an emergency. This notification is provided to advise Mtn. Lake Park Water customers of the treatment requirements for their water system. Any questions or concerns should be directed to Allen Festerman at 301-387-9141. Please share this information with others that may find it useful.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Deep Creek Watershed Board of Zoning Appeals wil conduct a public hearing on Thursday, May 19, 2005, starting at 7:30 p.m. in the County Commissioners' meeting room, Second Floor, Courthouse Annex, Oakland. The Board will review the following docketed cases:

1. SE-359 and VR-592 - an application submitted by Bill Ingram of Land Management Inc. for a Special Exception permit to enlarge an existing tavern known as the Honi-Honi Bar. The applicant also requests a Variance to come within 10 feet of two rear property lines, instead of the required 35 feet. The property is located at 19814 Garrett Highway and is zoned Town Center.

2. INTP-17 - an application submitted by Barbara Lombardi for an Interpretive Hearing regarding the issuance of a building permit. Mrs. Lombardi believes that the Zoning Administrator erred in issuing the zoning/building permit and that the building permit issued to Hugh D. Umbel was issued on the basis of plans that are too vague. She also feels that the permit is not consistent with the terms and conditions of a Variance granted by the Board of Zoning Appeals in June of 2004 (VR-580). The property, tax map 50, parcel 240, is located at 2693 State Park Road and is zoned Lake Residential.

3. SE-360 - an application submitted by Silver Tree Enterprises, LLC, for a Special Exception permit for a private membership club. The property is located at 567 Glendale Road and is zoned Town Center.

4. SE-361 - an application submitted by Max Peterson for a Special Exception permit to establish a seven bedroom Transient Vacation Rental Home. The property is located on lot 133, in the Sawmill Hollow Subdivision, at 400 Sawmill Hollow Road and is zoned Lake Residential.

5. VR-593 - an application submitted by Gary Wakefield for a Variance to come within 5 feet of a side property line instead of the required 15 feet. The property is located in Sky Valley, at 145 Woodland Way, and is zoned Lake Residential.

6. VR-594 - an application submitted by Kevin Kelly for a Variance for a deck to come within 1 foot of a rear, lakefront, property line instead of the required 5 feet. The property is located at 20610 Garrett Highway and is zoned Town Center.

Interested persons are invited to attend.

Annual Drinking Water Quality Report for 2004
The Town of Oakland
PWSID # 0110008
May 2005

We're pleased to present to you this year's Annual Water Quality Report. This report is designed to inform you about the water quality and services we deliver to you every day. Our constant goal is to provide you with a safe and dependable supply of drinking water. We want you to understand the efforts we make to continually improve the water treatment pro-cess and protect our water resources. We are committed to ensuring the quality of your water. The Oakland Water System obtains all of its raw water from two separate sources. Source #1 is the Youghiogheny River and it supplies water for the Bradley Lane Water Treatment Plant which is located off Bradley Lane in Oakland. Source #2 is called Broadford Lake, which is located just off Broadford Road and it supplies water for the Broadford Water Treatment Plant. Once the water is treated, it is pumped directly to the customer with excess capacity held in reserve at our 800,000 gallon water storage tank to meet daily needs. Water from both sources is blended together in this storage tank.

I'm pleased to report that our drinking water is safe and meets federal and state requirements.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

If you have any questions about this report or concerning your water utility, please contact Randy Sharpless at the Oakland Water Department at 301-334-3836 or Mayor McCain at 301-334-2691 for additional information regarding the data in this report. The Mayor and Town Council of Oakland holds regularly scheduled meetings on the first Monday of the month at 7:00 p.m. in the Council Chambers, 15 South Third Street, Oakland, Maryland. Please call 301-334-2691 to schedule your topic on the agenda for discussion at any regularly scheduled meeting.

The Town of Oakland routinely monitors for contaminants in your drinking water according to Federal and State laws. This table shows the results of our monitoring for the period of January 1 to December 31, 2004. As water travels over the land or underground, it can pick up substances or contaminants such as microbes, inorganic and organic chemicals, and radioactive substances. All drinking water, including bottled drinking water, may be reasonably expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. It's important to remember that the presence of these contaminants does not necessarily pose a health risk.

In this table you will find many terms and abbreviations you might not be familiar with. To help you better understand these terms we've provided the following definitions:

Non-Detects (ND) - laboratory analysis indicates that the contaminant is not present.

Parts per million (ppm) or Milligrams per liter (mg/l) - one part per million corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000.

Parts per billion (ppb) or Micrograms per 1iter - one part per billion corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000.

Picocuries per liter (pCi/L) - picocuries per liter is a measure of the radioactivity in water.

Nephelometric Turbidity Unit (NTU,) - nephelometric turbidity unit is a measure of the clarity of water. Turbidity in excess of 5 NTU is just noticeable to the average person.

Action Level - the concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.

Treatment Technique (TT) - A treatment technique is a required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.

Maximum Contaminant Level - The "Maximum Allowed" (MCL) is the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal - The "Goal" (MCLG) is the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

As you can see by the table, our system had no violations. We're proud that your drinking water meets or exceeds all Federal and State requirements. We have learned through our monitoring and testing that some contaminants have been detected. The EPA has determined that your water IS SAFE at these levels.

Beginning in 2004 the MCL for total trihalomethanes (TTHM) was lowered to 80 ppb as a running annual average for systems of our size. These contaminants are formed by the reaction of our chlorine disinfectant with naturally occurring organic materials which are carried into our sources through runoff from rainfall. Our 2004 average slightly exceeded this new standard. We are currently looking at adjustments to the disinfection processes to reduce the formation of disinfection by-products.

All sources of drinking water are subject to potential contamination by substances that are naturally occurring or man made. These substances can be microbes, inorganic or organic chemicals and radioactive substances. All drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791.

MCLs are set at very stringent levels. To understand the possible health effects described for many regulated contaminants, a person would have to drink 2 liters of water every day at the MCL level for a lifetime to have a one-in-a-million chance of having the described health effect.

Please call our office at 301-334-3836 if you have questions.

Correction Noted On Sen. Hafer's Retirement Plans

Last week's article about Sen. John Hafer's decision not to run for a fifth term as state senator in 2006 contained an error. The article indicated that Hafer did not feel Gov. Robert Ehrlich Jr. would be re-elected. This is incorrect. Hafer said just the opposite is true.

The senator said he firmly believes that just as President George W. Bush won re-election, in the same vein, Ehrlich will also win a bid for a second term in office.

"I have every reason to believe that Governor Ehrlich will be re-elected next year," Hafer said, "and, in fact, I will be working to support that re-election, along with getting other Republicans elected to the General Assembly.

The senator added, "Gov. Ehrlich has done extremely well in handling the budget. He inherited a $2 billion budget and has succeeded in reducing that deficit in three years to less than $300 million without raising taxes. Additionally, he has held down the growth of the state budget, unlike the previous administration that increased our state budget by $8 billion ($1 billion of increase for each year in office)."

Hafer further explained the political climate in Annapolis as being one of the Democrats versus the Democrats. Democratic leadership in the Senate and in the House were at odds with each other over most of the governor's issues, such as

THE COCKTAIL HOUR TO OPEN AT OTT – The latest stage offering at Our Town Theatre in Oakland is A.R. Gurney's The Cocktail Hour, a "sparkling social comedy," said director Jane Avery. The play will be given at 8 p.m. on May 19, 20, and 21, and at 2 p.m. on Sunday, May 22. The show is sold out for May 19, but Avery said "plenty of tickets" are still available for the other shows. The ticket prices are $8 for May 20 and 21, and $5 for the Sunday matinee. Cast members are pictured. Standing is Matt Eary, and seated, left to right, are John Wilson, Deirdre Kildow, and Donna Miller. The focus of the play is on John, a playwright, who has penned a stage play about his family. He hopes to obtain their permission to stage the show, but his wealthy and proper parents have reservations, as does his sister Nina. "This witty, perceptive play blends modern humor with moments of affecting poignancy," a reviewer stated. The play is being produced via special arrangement between OTT and the Dramatists Play Service. It is funded in part by the arts councils of Maryland and Garrett County, as well as the Knott Foundation. To reserve seats for the show, guests are encouraged to call the theatre at 301-334-5640 and follow the directions on the answering machine. Photo by Richard Hill.

Oakland Man Sentenced For Assault, CDS

An Oakland man pleaded guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court last Thursday in two separate matters. In the first case, Edward Scott Moats pleaded guilty to a second-degree assault that occurred last May.

He was then sentenced by Judge Jim Sherbin to two years in the Division of Corrections, with all of that suspended but 90 days. The 20-year-old will be on supervised probation upon his release from the Garrett County Jail.

In this case, Moats was arrested by sheriff's deputies, who responded to a complaint of a disorderly person at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. While the officers were attempting to separate Moats from other persons and to persuade him to receive medical attention for a cut on his arm, Moats continued to curse at the officers and punched one of them.

"Alcohol was noted to have played a role in this event," said the state's attorney.

In the second case, Moats pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana. He was living in a Mtn. Lake

State Competing With Pa. For A GC Wal-Mart Distribution Center

Maryland Department of Business and Economic Development (DBED) officials said this week that the department is pursing a Wal-Mart distribution center for Maryland which could be located in Garrett County. The county's I-68 corridor, Maryland's Eastern Shore, and western Pennsylvania (specifically Somerset County) appear to be on the Wal-Mart Corporation's list for the center, which would cover between 30 to 50 acres while employing upwards of 750 workers.

"We've been working with the state for well over a year to see if we could make this happen," county Economic Development director Jim Hinebaugh said yesterday, adding that he believes the county can provide an attractive scenario for Wal-Mart with its existing interstate access and ready workforce.

"If built here, the distribution center would initially be a 500,000 square foot facility employing 500 people, and would later likely expand by another 250,000 square feet to house refrigerated groceries. The refrigeration section could employ as many as 250 people." Typical entry-level pay in Wal-Mart distribution centers is approximately $12 an hour.

"It would obviously be a real boost for our employment base," county administrator Monty Pagenhardt commented. "Although we have one of the lowest unemployment rates in the state at approximately 4 percent, we could easily supply the necessary work force. A study by the county's Economic Development office of the 3,500 people who applied for work at the new American Woodmark facility in Cumberland found that over half of those applicants lived within a 25-mile radius of

N.J. Man Charged With DUI After Fleeing Accident

A New Jersey man who allegedly fled from the scene of an accident on Interstate 68 Wednesday morning was apprehended near Friendsville a short time later by Maryland State Police troopers, who filed several charges including driving while under the influence of alcohol (DUI).

At approximately 6:45 a.m. Darrin Leroy Frambes, 34, Glassboro, was traveling west near the 34-mile marker, in the far eastern end of the county, when his 2001 Dodge Dakota truck reportedly struck the rear of a tractor-trailer. According to police, after Frambes fled the scene a trooper working traffic control in a construction zone on the interstate near Keyser's Ridge observed a Dodge Dakota bearing front end damage traveling in an erratic manner. Two troopers began a search for the pickup truck, and located it west of Friendsville as it approached Sand Spring Road.

Upon being questioned, Frambes admitted to striking the trailer and fleeing the scene. He was arrested and charged with DUI, driving while impaired, fail-

Memorial Service For Slain Deputy Slated In Oakland

Garrett County Lodge 99 of the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) will conduct a police memorial service for slain Garrett County sheriff's deputy David Livengood at noon on Tuesday, May 17, at his gravesite in the Garrett County Memorial Gardens in Oakland. The event is open to the public, and light refreshments will be served following the service at Proctor Kildow American Legion Post #71, located at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Fourth Street in Oakland.

Livengood was gunned down after responding to a burglar alarm at an Oakland business on January 18, 1979. To date, he has been the only law enforcement officer killed in the line of duty in Garrett County.

Edwards Defeats Beachy In Grantsville Mayoral Election

This week made history for Grantsville when two candidates ran for the position of mayor during the town election. Of the 366 eligible votes, 147 people voted, according to a town spokesperson. The newly elected mayor is Paul Edwards with 85 votes. The current mayor, Gerald Beachy, received 60 votes. There was also one write-in vote for Robert Singell.

"This was the first time in more than 30 years that the maximum number of candidates ran for mayor and town council," said the spokesperson. "A primary would have been necessary if one more person had filed for mayor or council."

Elected to the council were Allen Shapiro, 108 votes; Sean Jones, 91 votes; incumbent Joe McRobie, 91 votes; incumbent Jim Wilburn, 81 votes; and incumbent Dr. Ronald Gillum, 69 votes.

Also vying for those five council seats were incumbent Rich Towers, 57 votes; Heather Martin, 54 votes; William "Bill" Martin, 52 votes; Paul Shillingburg, 45 votes; Ginny Keller, 43 votes; and Robert Singell, one write-in vote.

Commissioners Award Bid To Design Performing Arts Center

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners awarded a bid this week for architectural/consulting services for the proposed Performing Arts Center to EwingCole for $44,000, plus reimbursable expenses.

Though the center is an initiative of a nonprofit group, Garrett Performing Arts Center Inc. (PAC), the county has agreed to pay up to 10 percent of the construction cost of the project. The PAC is responsible for securing all construction funding.

Last week Commissioners Ernie Gregg and Dave Beard voted in favor of the 10 percent allocation, while Commissioner Fred Holliday abstained from voting. Holliday added, however, that he would support the appropriation, under the conditions of approval, if total funding is identified.

The rational for the allocation is that an arts center will help economic development by increasing tourism and attracting new businesses to the county, officials have stressed.

The county also agreed earlier this year to help the PAC with the project's design process and to support it with up to $42,000. The county's procurement office has been facilitating the bidding process.

Last week, however, Jim Hinebaugh, Garrett County Department of Economic Development, informed the commissioners that a PAC committee wanted to award the design bid to EwingCole, which was over the previously budgeted $42,000. Commissioners Ernie Gregg and Dave Beard moved to allocate additional funding, up to $3,000, for the design phase. Commissioner Fred Holliday opposed this motion.

At the formal bid award this week, Procurement Officer Brian Bowers told the commissioners that the county and PAC had received 12 responses to their request for proposals. Four responders were interviewed, Bowers said.

Bids for the architectural/consulting service ranged from $5,000 to $220,000. EwingCole was not the lowest bidder, but the majority of the PAC committee voted in favor of the firm because they felt it was more suitable to design a performing arts center,

THE DUCKS ARE IN THE CORRAL and ready to race this Sunday at Southern Garrett Athlete Association's annual Duck Derby, to be held at the Mountain Fresh Pavilion in Oakland. An afternoon of festivities is planned, beginning with a "Fun Run" at 12:30 p.m. (See story). The actual Duck Race, featuring the little plastic guys shown above, will officially begin at 2 p.m. when they are dropped into the Little Yough. People may buy the ducks ahead of time for five bucks a duck. The person who "owns" the winning bird will earn a $250 prize. Other prizes will be awarded as well. Food and entertainment will be provided all afternoon. All proceeds from the day will go toward SGAA scholarships and awards.

COUNTY ADOPTS BIRD, FLOWER – The Board of Garrett County Commissioners officially adopted the eastern bluebird and the wild columbine as the county's bird and wildflower after the Swan Meadow students presented the board with the results of the countywide survey this week. The students developed a matrix and each school participated by voting for its choice. The Swan Meadow students narrowed the selections down to four birds and four flowers: chickadee, bluebird, kinglet, grosbeak, jack-on-the-pulpit, painted trillium, lady slipper, and wild columbine. "I am particularly pleased that the bluebird is making a comeback in Garrett County," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg. The commissioners all commended the students on this project. They also agreed to use the bird and flower on the cover of next year's budget. Pictured above are the Swan Meadow students with Commissioners Gregg, Dave Beard, and Fred Holliday.

Local Historians To Portray Living History Of Region At 4-H Center

by Jo Donaldson

Adults and children alike will have the opportunity to step back into our nation's past when the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce's Living History Program on the mid-18th century will be presented from Wednesday through Saturday, May 18-21, at the Western Maryland 4-H Center near Bittinger. While the first three days of the event will be geared toward approximately 350 students from nine Garrett County elementary schools, Saturday's final offering will be open to the public and will feature more detailed workshops, lectures, and demonstrations.

For the past two years, "frontier men and women" and "Indians" have shared stories from the 1750s while participating at the trading post and encampment during Living History programs in May and November. This year's living history programs will focus on the ill-fated trip of General Edward Braddock and future president of the United States George Washington as Braddock met his death at enemy hands in the vicinity of nearby Fort Necessity, Pa.

"This is a chance to learn what life was like when Washington passed through these mountains," said Charlie Ross, president of the Chamber of Commerce. "The significance of these events on our country's history must be recognized. We want to preserve this history in the minds of our young people."

Ross said he wants to continue promoting these types of events for county students and expand the offering to young people from outside the county, as well as to visitors in the area. The programs feature actual encampments, a trading post of artifacts, historical characters in period dress, movies, and colonial cooking.

More than 170 county students and teachers took part in the program last November and traveled back in time for the 251st anniversary of Colonel George Washington's first expedition on the Nemacolin Trail.

"It was a young Col. George Washington who led Colonial militia across northern Garrett County in 1754 heading toward Fort Duquesne," Ross said. "We can revisit that time and reconnect with the people who were forming the future of our nation."

"George Washington got his start here," said committee member Jack Caruthers, who will be portraying the nation's first president. "He found out he could lead men in combat."

The man who was to become the first president of the United States followed the Nemacolin Indian Trail in 1753. Then in 1754, Washington's troops cut a road somewhat following this trail. Later, in 1755, Braddock's troops forged a new road. It was along this road that George Washington marched to his destiny.

It took weeks to hack through the wilderness to construct the Braddock Road. Braddock strove to drive the French from the area and died in retreat. Young George Washington was among those who survived. His skills as a leader of men were developed along this trail. As a surveyor, as a soldier and as a government representative, he matured with each trip.

"George Washington is the common denominator of everything that happened between 1753 and 1758," said Robert Adamovich, who leads some of the programs as a maker of maps. Adamovich lectures and writes about colonial America, is an elected member of the board of directors of the Braddock Road Preservation Association, is acting curator of the Rinfuss Museum at Jumonville, a member of several historic societies, and produces his own television program, Historically Speaking.

Local historian Bob Bantz will lead students along a public section of Braddock's Trail. They will also have a chance to taste frontier food, as well as hear from other living historians.

The Western Maryland 4-H Center is located along Rt. 495 south of Bittinger. Additional information on the living history programs can be obtained from the Chamber of Commerce web site at www.deepcreeklake-info.com, or by calling the chamber at 301-387-4386.

New Amendments Approved For GC Water/Sewer Plan

The Garrett County commissioners approved two new amendments to the county's Water and Sewer Master Plan on Tuesday, following a public hearing. No members of the general public attended the event.

The first addition to the plan will allow Grantsville to request assistance from the Maryland Department of the Environment for a water project. The town wants to replace a 4,300-linear-foot supply line from the town's primary well to the water treatment plant with C900 PVC pipe.

The second amendment expands the Shady Acres Sanitary District to include all of the Southern Garrett County Industrial Park and a site intended for residential development. The park is located along Rt. 135 east of Mtn. Lake Park.

The amendments were effective immediately.

Older Americans To Be Honored Throughout May

The Garrett County Commissioners have proclaimed May 2005 as "Older Americans Month." The declaration was officially made during a luncheon on May 4 honoring the county's centenarians.

Accepting the proclamation on behalf of the Area Agency on Aging were Commission on Aging representatives Pat Adams of the Grantsville Senior Center, and Robert Alexander from the Mary Browning Senior Center.

MAY IS "OLDER AMERICANS MONTH" – Commissioner David Beard is pictured above right as he reads a proclamation declaring May 2005 as Older Americans Month in Garrett County. Also pictured are Commission on Aging representatives Robert Alexander and Pat Adams. See story.

Americans are living longer and staying healthier than ever before, according to a spokesperson from the Garrett County Area Agency on Aging.

"Older Americans now have more choices than the long-term institutional care that once was the primary option of our senior citizens," said Adina Brode, director of the agency. "More and more people of Garrett County are remaining in their own homes and communities well into their later years. Keeping older adults healthy, independent, and engaged benefits all generations."

Next year, the 78 million "baby boomers" will begin turning 60.

"This May, as we celebrate Older Americans Month, the Area Agency on Aging will consider this momentous demographic change in the aging of our population," Brode said.

She went on to explain that the theme "Celebrate Long-Term Living" was selected to honor older Americans as a "national treasure," and to highlight the need for mid-life and older persons to be prepared to live longer than previous generations.

"Older adults and baby boomers need to make thoughtful choices now so they will be more likely to remain healthy, productive, and financially secure in their later lives." she said.

The U.S. Administration on Aging wishes for all Americans to know that better planning, better community-based long-term care options, and more consumer-friendly systems are allowing more older Americans to remain vibrant and independent.

"As Americans, we value choice," said Brode. "Studies have shown that, given the choice, older adults will remain in their homes and communities for as long as possible."

The Garrett County Area Agency on Aging offers services that help older individuals accomplish this. A variety of offerings have been established to help older persons eat more healthful diets, to keep active, to learn the positive benefits of civic engagement, and to "redefine aging in our society."

"We invite older adults age 55 and older to visit our facilities or contact us to learn what we have to offer. Our goal is to make available the services, programs, and social/recreational opportunities that will enhance and improve our older citizens' retirement years," she continued. "It's never too early to begin exploring the options available to you or to a loved one. We urge you to begin planning for your later years."

For information about the agency's offerings and services, persons may call the office at 301-334-9431 or toll free at 1-888-877-8403, ext. 140.

Charges Filed In Saturday Mishap, One Driver Injured

A two-vehicle accident at the intersection of Dennett Road and Pensinger Blvd. sent one driver to the hospital Saturday afternoon, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Brigette E. Lennox, 18, was traveling north on Pensinger Blvd. and failed to stop at the intersection with Dennett Road. Frank Russell Smith, 50, Oakland, was traveling eastbound on Dennett Road and struck the Smith vehicle. Lennox was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for treatment of minor injuries.

Lennox was charged with failing to yield the right of way. Oakland firefighters also assisted at the 2:30 p.m. accident.

In a separate incident, deputies discovered a badly damaged 1998 GMC truck lying sideways in the middle of Deep Creek Drive while on patrol early Saturday morning.

Police made contact with the driver, Kalon Vain Sherwood, 24, McHenry, and contacted EMS. Sherwood was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital fro treatment of injuries.

Charges are pending.

In other police news, a juvenile was treated and released from the hospital after falling from a dirt bike while driving on private property near Bittinger Road Sunday night.

It's a Catch-22...

While it has been over 3½ years since the terrorist attacks of 9/11, the after-effects of that massacre continue to take their toll on us Americans today, both in our behavior and, in a somewhat more subtle way, on our psyches. Prior to that fateful day, no one would have blinked an eye if a private Cessna airplane entered the air space above our nation's capital.

But yesterday around noon, when one inadvertently did so, the District erupted into a frenzy. Within seconds hundreds of people were literally running for their lives, or so they thought. It's surprising that there were no injuries, strokes, or heart attacks during the panic. Several fighter jets arrived within seconds, and the two occupants of the aircraft came within a heartbeat of losing their lives, as the order to blast them from the sky was surely on the tip of a military VIP's tongue. We are a changed nation.

In a more personal example, the writer of this column happens to be the director of an annual, week-long church camp. Recruitment of nearly 400 youth to attend that camp, prior to 9/11, was like falling off a log. In fact, there were years when youth had to be placed on a waiting list. Not so since 9/11, as the junior program of the camp (for youths from grades 3-5) has steadily dwindled. In the 2001 camp, held three months before 9/11, there was a full group of 120 juniors, as it had been for many years. The next year, however, the number dropped to 100, the next year to about 95, last year to 85, and this year the number is less than 80. For the first time in recent history, the numbers in the intermediate program have now begun to drop.

Is this an after-effect of 9/11? Are we parents now too clingy to our loved ones to allow separation from them for as long as a week? Or is the decline in camp numbers being caused by factors that have nothing to do with 9/11? We wonder.

The sudden death of several thousand innocent Americans lives on 9/11 was such an obvious, horrendous loss to our nation. But we are now beginning to see how much more we lost that day.

We are a skittish nation, and that is certainly understandable. Perhaps in some cases we are overreacting to things, but we almost can't afford not to. The catch-22 is that, the more alert we are to the potential of terrorist attacks, the safer we should be, but the longer we go with no incidents, the more likely complacency will return, making us vulnerable again.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to accomplish two goals.

First, I want to express my appreciation to Mr. Glenn Tolbert and The Republican for the May 5 article "Concern Noted about Possible Cuts In Mental Health Services" that succinctly captured the relationship of the growing concerns about Maryland's public mental health funding reductions to community safety, family health, addictions, school problems, and other serious social concerns. The eventual expense to taxpayers for delaying or not paying for prevention and early intervention will be costly. More than 200 years ago, a Philadelphian by the name of Ben Franklin wrote, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." What was true then is true now.

Secondly, on behalf of the Mental Health Center's board of directors and its Garrett County staff, I want to express my elation and pleasure at the wonderful turnout we enjoyed of so many visitors who joined us for our May 6 open house at our new office at 14689 Garrett Highway. To our many visitors, including families, consumers, educators, elected officials, and friends who extended their best wishes and support for our efforts to treatment mental illness, thank you to all.

Sincerely,
Mark Lannon
Executive Director

To the Editor:

A potato bar fundraiser held recently for the Grantsville Community Museum was an enormous success. More than 140 people attended the event, held at the Grantsville Senior Center. Proceeds will be used for the restoration and future renovations of the museum.

The museum, located along the historic National Pike in Grantsville, is in its infancy. Restorations have just begun in this historic building.

The Grantsville Community Museum committee members thank the many businesses and individuals who made this fundraiser a success. We thank John Goehringer, chef at the Grantsville Senior Center, for his great talent and energy in making the event possible; Mayor Gerald Beachy for his very generous monetary donation to the museum; Bingman Packing Company of Berlin, Pa., and Grantsville Hill Top Fruit Market for providing the food; members of the "Golden Glows" and the young women who helped clear and clean tables; Maxine Broadwater, Jean Swauger, Robert Leece, Margie Menges, and David Trauger for monetary contributions; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kriley for donated food items; and the following for providing entertainment: Loretta Hummel, Harry Minick, Lindy Moebs, Susan Weineke, Steve Snider, Matt Eary, Ben Haught, and Aaron Snider.

Finally, thanks to all who attended the fundraiser. Grantsville will some day have a beautiful museum, thanks to all of the support the community has shown. Every donation is greatly appreciated.

The museum is not yet open to the public, but restoration is under way.

To the Editor:

The World View International Club (WVIC) at Garrett College comprises students who were born in different countries, including Canada, Kenya, Croatia, Eritrea, Estonia, India, and the United States. These students share an understanding that each of us is part of a larger community, one that encompasses the entire globe, and are committed to fostering this world view here in Garrett County. Recently, the WVIC held an activity in support of this commitment – the "Tastes of the World" International Dinner, held at Garrett College on April 30, which featured international fare prepared by the WVIC students.

The students, none of them with great experience in catering and food service, worked tirelessly on the international dinner and were thrilled by the fact that 90 or so people attended the dinner. The vast majority of the guests gave us very positive feedback on their dining experience. The success of this event would not have happened, however, without the support, guidance, and generosity extended to the WVIC by many people, including: Tony Rodnicki, Aladdin Foods & Garrett College Food Service; Wendy Friend, catering/banquet manager at Will O' the Wisp; Brenda McDonnell, owner of Brenda's Pizzeria & Trader's Coffee House; Dmitriy Kubin, flamenco and classical guitarist and borscht maker; Josh Gambetta, drummer and didgeridoo player; Caroline Stahl, Garrett College music student; Bill Dawson, pastor of McHenry Methodist Church; Tina Buckel, Garrett County Health Department; Sysco Food Services of Virginia; Central Coca-Cola Bottling Company, Inc.; Gregg's Pharmacy, Arrowhead Market; and of course, the 90 or so people who purchased tickets to attend the International Dinner.

We would like to publicly thank these kind and magnanimous members of our community, who are also contributing members of our global community.

Award Bid

Bowers noted.

"My personal recommendation was Maclachlan, Cornelious, and Filoni," he said. That firm's bid was $16,000.

EwingCole received a slightly higher point total (445) than the Maclachlan firm (444) when such things as scope and quality of services and compliance with requirements were evaluated.

"I'll support the recommendation of the committee," said Gregg, and he made a motion to award the bid to EwingCole. Beard agreed. Holliday opposed.

"I think its foolish to pay twice as much money," said Holliday about choosing EwingCole over MacLachian, Cornelious & Filoni.

EwingCole will develop a floor plan, a case statement, and interior and exterior perspectives. After the schematics are completed, the PAC's board of directors will begin raising funds for construction of the estimated $6 million project.

Initial plans for the performing arts center include seating capacity for approximately 800 seats, offices, dressing rooms, rehearsal rooms, a box office, and scenery construction shop.

Established in the early 1960s, EwingCole offers architecture, interior design, and planning services to domestic and international clients. The firm has offices in Cleveland, Ohio, Irvine, Calif., Las Vegas, Nev., Philadelphia, Pa., and Washington, D.C.

Its design credits include the Skidmore College Performing Arts Center in Saratoga Springs, N.Y.., the Boardwalk Hall Performing Arts Center in Atlantic City, N.J., and Bryn Athyn College's Mitchell Performing Arts Center in Bryn Athyn, Pa.

The Garrett Performing Arts Center will be located beside the county's proposed exhibit hall, to be built along Rt. 219, south of Deep Creek Lake. The two buildings will share parking, restrooms, lighting, and infrastructure.

The commissioners and Fred Polce, general superintendent, have been discussing the possibility of the Garrett County Roads Department doing some work at the exhibit hall/performing arts center site such as construction of a new bridge and paving the road leading to the site.

Work at the Rt. 219 entrance way, however, will probably not be done by the roads department. Polce said, among other things, four lanes for traffic will be needed (two shoulders and north/south lanes) and 1,400 to 1,500 feet of curbing.

"We can do roads, bridges, and tar and chip, but this is a little much for us," he told the commissioners on Tuesday prior to the design bid award.

Grantsville.

Wal-Mart, which has expanded exponentially over recent years to become the nation's largest grocer, has been adding supercenters at a fast pace to keep up with its distribution network. The company operates over 100 distribution centers, and the overriding factor in choosing a location is interstate access and the number of existing and planned stores in a region covering up to 300 miles.

Other state and local governments that have successfully recruited a Wal-Mart distribution center have been known to provide incentives in the form of state and local highway and sewer improvements, job creation tax credits, and tax exemptions for equipment, as well as an attractive price for the land parcel.

There is no specific parcel that Maryland and Garrett County officials are pitching to the company yet, according to Hinebaugh and Pagenhardt. Wal-Mart has not indicated if and when it might be making a decision on distribution center in the wider region.

He added that these agenda items, of which the Democrats refused to compromise, are issues that they will attempt to move forward next year as their initiatives.

Hafer said his decision to not seek re-election was a very emotional one, and it was for very personal reasons that he made the decision.

The Republican regrets the error.

CHANTILLY LACE

"Chantilly lace and a pretty face and a ponytail hangin' down," sang the Big Bopper. Jiles Perry Richardson Jr. is remembered for that song (the third most played song in 1958) and for dying in a plane crash on Feb. 3, 1959 with Buddy Holly and Richie Valens.

"Chantilly lace" was his designation for a certain girl with "a wiggle in her walk and a giggle in her talk." That song has an iconic power for at least two generations of Americans, but what is Chantilly lace?

A cousin came to see me, and we set out to discover Chantilly, just thirty miles north of Paris, and its lace.

The town takes its name from Cantilius, a native of Roman Gaul (what France was called in those days) who built the first castle there. In A.D. 1386 the royal chancellor of France bought the land, and had another castle built on the same spot. Since then some sort of chateau has been built and rebuilt another three times.

Today the town is an exclusive residential suburb of Paris and home to one of the premier tourist attractions in France, not just the chateau but the rather amazing stables that go with them.

Lace made from silk was once a specialty of this town, one of the several luxury goods produced there. The silk lace dyed black came to be known as "Chantilly" lace. One step removed, any black lace became "Chantilly."

Another Chantilly luxury invention was whipped cream, known in France as "Chantilly cream." Hard paste porcelain was also manufactured there. Its special quality was derived from the chemical make-up of the local clay.

Chantilly is arguably the capital of French horse country though there are competitors for that title. During most of the second millennium the chateau was a high-end hunting cabin. That may sound too humble for a moated castle with the interior luxuries of a palace, but at least one of the owners managed to hunt every day of the year.

French "hunting," regardless of the quarry, entails riding a horse. In order to accommodate the horses for magnificent hunting expeditions, an eighteenth-century dandy – affectionately known as "Monsieur le Duc"– had stables built. They were to house 240 horses, 500 dogs, and 100 lads. Six hundred feet long, the stables occupy the space of a small American shopping mall.

The average farm wife has often complained that her husband cared more about his barn than her house (usually true). Such a complaint would be warranted at Chantilly where the stables dwarf the chateau and – with their lofty architecture and twelve-foot thick walls – are, at least, as grand.

In short, these stables are even more to "horse barn" than the chateau is to "hunting cabin."

On May 15, 1834, Chantilly added racing to hunting. The following decades were also the time of Chantilly lace because the Empress Eugénie, a princess of Spain, led the world of fashion by wearing the black lace of Chantilly. Some accounts of the Empress would suggest that perhaps she wore that lace with a wiggle and a giggle.

Certainly, some of the later lines of the Big Bopper's ballad befit Emperor Napoleon III's spending habits in relation to his wife (and the decadent air of the court): "Ain't nothing in the world like a big eyed girl/ To make me act so funny, make me spend my money."

Far more likely is that the Big Bopper had in mind the Mexican girls whom he saw on the streets of Texas towns wearing black lace mantillas to and from church. Black lace travels well; wiggles and giggles are to be found everywhere.

Chantilly, at the turn of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, comes into view. There was the last hurrah of mediaeval tradition, luxury from the wealth of the French Empire and the fast living bourgeoisie in the modern Republic. Chantilly cream served on Chantilly porcelain eaten by women wearing Chantilly lace in company with their menfolk while attending the Chantilly races.

My cousin and I admired the glories of the chateau, and wondered at the grandeur of the horse barn. We strolled through the manicured gardens and into the forest. There we found an apparently mediaeval village actually built in 1775 by one of the lords of this manor to entertain royal guests in supposed simplicity.

Perhaps we have more in common with Marie Antoinette than we might want to think since, like her, we enjoyed restorative comfort in the same feigned rusticity. Seated in the half-timbered mill, we fell silent as we ate a salad of smoked duck breast, followed by pork in mustard sauce with au gratin potatoes and completed by desserts topped with the best whipped cream we had ever eaten.

That was not what the Big Bopper had in mind, but we could have sung his words in relation to another kind of pleasure, "oh baby, that's a-what I like!"

Garrett County Centenarians Honored, Discuss Good/Not-So-Good Old Days

by Glenn Tolbert

When Chauncey Friend was born, the world was a very different place. There were only 144 miles of paved roads in the entire country. None in Garrett County. The average wage was 22 cents an hour. Ninety percent of all physicians had no college education. Women washed their hair once a month with either Borax or egg yolks.

It was 1904, and on February 6 of that year, Chauncey was born on a 300-acre farm that was nearly self-sufficient. It had to be. Grocery stores were few and far between, and shopping in them was considered a luxury.

"When we wanted to go somewhere, we hitched up the horse and buggy and took off," he says. "Life in general is a lot better now. It's not as difficult as it was back then."

At 101 years of age, Chauncey was one of four Garrett County centenarians honored last Tuesday during a luncheon ceremony at the Mary Browning Senior Center in Oakland. The county commissioners were among those attending the event.

"I saw my first car in 1910. It was a 1908 model T Ford," Chauncey said.

He took all the change going about him well and went on to be a real asset to his community. Chauncey graduated with a bachelor of science degree from the University of Maryland and taught school in Garrett County for 47 years, many of those years in a one-room school building.

When asked the inevitable question of his secret to a long life he answered, "I never smoked, drank, or chased wild women."

Chauncey and his fellow centenarians were being honored at the luncheon because May is National Older Americans Month. The event was sponsored by Area Agency on Aging.

Also honored and in attendance were Ida Reckner of Accident and Gertrude Bernard of Oakland. Elva Tasker, 105, of Kitzmiller, and Elizabeth Randol, 100, Grantsville, were also invited, but were unable to attend the ceremony.

Gertrude, 100, disagreed with Chauncey that all the changes they have seen were for the better.

"Things were better then than they are now," she said. "There weren't so many bad things going on. Oh, sure life was harder, but you never heard about murders, rapes, and drug problems. I just think things were a lot more peaceful."

But Ida, also 100, agrees with Chauncey that life is better now than it was when she was coming of age.

"Just having indoor plumbing is a wonderful thing. You don't know how wonderful it is until you've lived without it," she said. "Also wonderful are our roads and highways. We take them all for granted . . . .well I don't. I've spent too much time in a surrey with the fringe on the top going down dusty, rutted, dirt roads."

A graduate of Frostburg Normal School, Ida taught in four schools across Garrett County.

As for her secret to a long life? "I just don't know. It just happened," she said.

Oakland Man Charged With Burglary, Theft

An Oakland man was arrested after police received a call of a burglary in progress at a residence on Table Rock Road Friday, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Through the investigation, police learned that Robert Lynn Pyles Sr., 40, knew the victim would be out of town on business and entered the residence on May 4 and stayed until May 5. According to police, when he left he removed numerous handguns and had planned to return the next day and get more.

When he returned the next day, he was met at the door by the owner of the residence. Pyles was arrested on the strength of a warrant of which the deputy had prior knowledge. He was also charged with two counts of second-degree burglary, two counts of theft over $500, and destruction of property under $500.

Pyles is currently incarcerated at the Garrett County Detention Center awaiting a bond hearing.

Oakland Man Faces Charges Of Domestic Assault

An Oakland man was arrested by Oakland police officers early Sunday morning on charges of first- and second-degree assault when he returned to the scene of a reported domestic altercation.

Kenneth Wayne Lantz, 21, was allegedly engaged in an argument with his wife at the Overlook North apartments at approximately 2 a.m., when the woman said that he held his hand over her mouth and squeezed her nose. When he released her, he reportedly pushed over a stand and punched several holes in a wall before fleeing into some woods behind the apartment complex.

Oakland police officers and Garrett County sheriff's deputies were summoned, and while they were conducting their investigation Lantz returned to the scene and was arrested. He was later released from the Garrett County Detention Center on his own recognizance.

OBITUARIES

MARY T. DOUGLASS

Born Sept. 7, 1907, in Crafton, Pa., Mary Taylor was one of three children of James and Augusta Taylor. After graduating from high school, Mary attended Carnegie Institute of Technology College of Fine Arts (now Carnegie Mellon University). In accordance with her father's wishes, Mary majored in organ performance, thinking that she would have a career accompanying silent films in the movie houses of the era. But soon, Mary changed her major to piano performance and teaching. She said later that this was a fortunate choice, since the need for organists in movie theatres disappeared with the advent of talking films.

Mary's lifelong love affair with the piano brought her to study with Leonard Shure in Cleveland, Mae MacKenzie and Julian DeGrey, lately of Bennington College, the last two being eminent pupils of the great Tobias Matthay and leading proponents of the Matthay piano method. She played for Clara Haskil and also performed with the Pittsburgh Symphony and Cleveland Symphony, although Mary made teaching the main focus of her musical career.

While attending the Dalcroze School of Eurhythmics in New York City, Mary made the acquaintance of Katherine Douglass, daughter of George and Daisy Douglass, who introduced Mary to her brother, Gordon K. Douglass. Mary and "Sandy," as Gordon was known to his friends, were married in 1933. Their son, Alan, was born May 12, 1945.

Mary and Sandy worked together to develop the Thistle, a fine example of the one-design sailing boat which was a novel concept at the time. In 1959 at the age of 55, Sandy moved to Oakland with Mary and Alan, founding the Gordon K. Douglass Boat Company, and designing and producing the renowned Flying Scot sailboat. Mary worked with Sandy to build the business and also to race the Flying Scot, wining an unprecedented number of national championships, and thereby proving the worthiness of this fine vessel.

Mary taught piano in Oakland for 30 years, and her pupils profited from an excellent musical education and from exposure, through their beloved teacher, to the wide and exciting world of art and music. The whimsically named "Upper Pennington Street Chamber Music Soirées" that Mary organized and led were especial treats for county residents, as were her student recitals and Christmas carol parties. The soirées featured a rich variety of chamber music for viola, violin, and cello in various combinations with piano, as well as music for clarinet (with Charles Morris), flute, and piano, and for piano four-hands.

Sandy's failing health prompted Mary and Sandy to move to Albuquerque to be near their son Alan. Sandy died in February 1992. Mary continued to teach on a limited basis. She continued to play the piano until two days before her death at 97 years of age on Sunday, May 8, 2005. She remarked that some of the big stretches demanded by the romantic composers became painful for her in her later years, but that concentrating on the works of J.S. Bach and Mozart was not at all a burdensome restriction, but instead an opportunity to commune with these great artists. (And she still played a wider range of music, recently having discovered a modern composer, Mompou.)

Mary passed away peacefully in her own home in her own room, with the sunlight streaming in the window, flowers budding outside, and the door open to spring breezes. She is survived by her son, Alan Douglass, and by the numerous friends and pupils who love her.

"'Boards...A to Z' is a one-stop workshop for board development," said a spokesperson for the Maryland State Arts Council. "Discussion will include sound advice on recruitment, development, governance, and evaluation."

Additional workshop items will include a review of the roles and responsibilities of board members, and the role of board members in adopting and exercising effective fiscal oversight. Donations Still Sought For Little Yough Music Fest

Little Yough Summer Music Festival programs, posters, and other printed materials will soon be going to print. Event promoters, however, are still seeking monetary donations.

"We are still quite short of our goal required to cover our expenses," said Cherie Ross, manager of Oakland's Main Street Program.

"Building Support" listings are $100. Sponsorship levels are $250, $500, $1,000, $1,500, and $2,500. All other donations will be listed on the donor page. Sponsors will be listed on all print material and rotated through radio advertisements.

"We want to make sure everyone who so generously supports this concert series is recognized for their contributions," said Ross, stressing the importance of making donations before the promotional items go to print.

For more information, persons may call Ross at 301-616-3026.

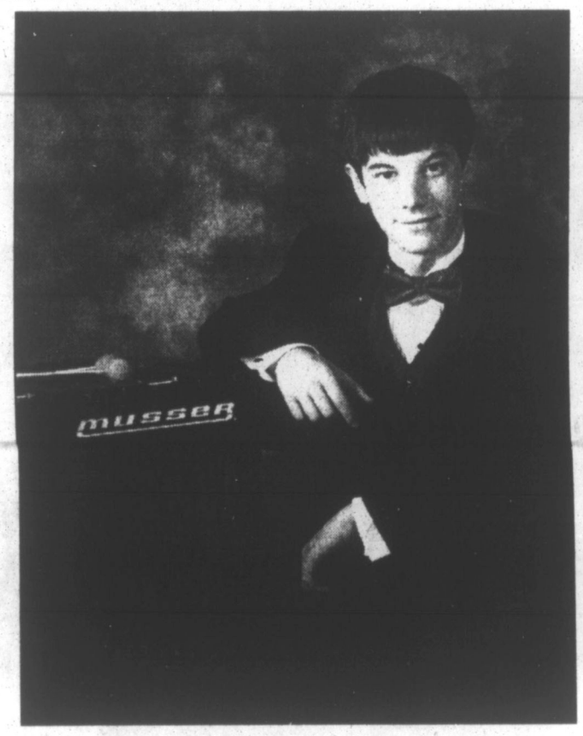
William Georg Marimba Recital Set For May 17



WILLIAM GEORG

William Georg, a senior at Southern High School, will present a student marimba recital on Tuesday, May 17, in conjunction with the 2005 spring concert of the Southern concert band. The concert will be held on the Southern High stage.

Georg's program, slated to begin at 8 p.m., is titled "Mallet Magic" and will include music from the Baroque and Classical periods. It will feature music by J.S. Bach, as well as selections from the opera Carmen, by Georges Bizet. The piano accompanist will be Elaine Bateman.

Georg, who is a four-year member of both the Southern Garrett Marching Band and Concert Band, was named one of 81 Maryland state finalists as a Maryland Distinguished Scholar/Talent in the Arts in 2004. He is presently ranked fourth in the senior class at Southern, having maintained distinguished honor roll status throughout his four years of high school. He plans to attend Towson University, from which he has been awarded a full-tuition scholarship for music. His major will be music education.

Georg is employed at Garrett 8 Cinemas and attends Oak Park Church of the Brethren.

Georg's last performance was in the Garrett County Ultimate Talent Show, held at Garrett College in March. "After the show at Garrett College, many people approached me to ask when my next performance would be," he said. "Well, this will be it!"

The concert band performance, under the direction of Richard Clever, will follow Georg's recital.

Rev. John Grant To Officiate As Clan Chief At Highland Festival

by Jo Donaldson, Chamber of Commerce

Rev. John Grant will serve as the honorary clan chieftain at the 18th annual McHenry Highland Festival on Saturday, June 4. The event will be held at the Garrett County Fairgrounds from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Grant was a member of the first bagpiping class held in Garrett County. That was more than 25 years ago. Judge Fred Thayer was his teacher when he first started to learn, with some instruction from Chip Evans.

"Fred had talked to me about it, but didn't think I wanted to become a piper," said Grant. "One evening, I was playing bridge at Fred's house, and he had some recordings playing of Scottish piping tunes. After about 20 minutes I said, 'sign me up.'

"I did want to learn the pipes. My grandfather Grant came from Scotland and [so did] grandmother Williams, so we always had a lot of things Scottish in our family. I remember the old gentleman. My great-great-grandfather's kilt was still around the house."

When Grant first started, he played in the Ali Ghan Shrine bagpipe band in Cumberland. He has been involved with the McHenry Highland Festival since its beginning 18 years ago.

Grant plays the great highland pipes. He has traveled extensively and played them in many different places, including Canada, Brittany, England, Scotland, Ireland, Turkey, and Greece.

Grant practiced in a park in Edinburgh, Scotland, a few years ago while visiting his brother at the University of Edinburgh. Some young men in the park, after listening to him play, were surprised to learn he was from America.

While doing some work at Princeton University in continuing education, he would practice before breakfast in the parking lot. Joggers would stop by and pay their compliments.

"A man from the radio station jogged by and asked me to come to the radio station and play the pipes. He interviewed me about how I came to play the pipes and what tunes I played," Grant said.

He has played the bagpipes on Maryland Public Television three or four times, primarily advertising the Highland Festival. He has played for students in the elementary schools and with the College and Me Program.

"I feel very honored," said Grant about presiding over the 18th annual McHenry Highland Festival. "I've known other people who were clan chieftains at events. I was glad when Fred [Thayer] was named last year and feel honored to follow in his footsteps.

"People are often impressed by the variety of music you can play on the bagpipes. Some hymns are ideally pitched for bagpipes. 'Amazing Grace' is one everybody asks for. Also, many dances, highland flings, or somber numbers are among the tunes played on the bagpipes."

"John Grant is well-deserving of this honor," said Jerry McGee, chairman of the Highland Festival board. "He has given much to the community and has researched and supported the Scottish heritage of the Appalachian region."

Grant will be the featured speaker at the festival's opening ceremony at 11:30 a.m. and will bless the event.

"As a way of thanking John and showing our support for all he has done, it would be gratifying to see all of his friends at the ceremony," said McGee.

SHS Band To Present Annual Spring Concert

Southern Garrett Band will present its 39th annual spring concert on Tuesday, May 17, at 8 p.m. at the school.

The evening will begin with a student instrumental recital. The first half of the performance will feature a military-style march, as well as symphonic band selections. After a brief intermission and award presentation, the concert will close with several lighter selections featuring familiar tunes from the cinema. The band is under the direction of Richard Clever and Duane Salisbury.

This event is supported in part by grants from the Garrett County Arts Council and from the Maryland State Arts Council, an agency funded by the state of Maryland and the National Endowment for the Arts.

TO PERFORM IN FAIRMONT – Loretta Hummel, Grantsville, will perform at the Sagebrush Roundup in Fairmont, W.Va., with her band, High Mountain Dobro, on Saturday, May 14, at 8:45 p.m. Hummel has just released a 17-track country gospel CD titled "Remind Me Dear Lord," which is her third CD. The band's musicians include Wayne Weimer, bass; Walter Dixon, fiddle; Hummel, acoustic guitar; Bill Nelson, dobro and guitar; and Harry Minnick, harmonica. For more information about Saturday's performance or purchasing CDs, persons may contact Hummel at 301-689-8160.

Drunk Driving Arrests Noted

Thomas Marsh Hickey, 67, Oakland, was arrested for drunk driving after police observed his vehicle speeding and crossing the center yellow line on Garrett Highway near Weber Road Monday night.

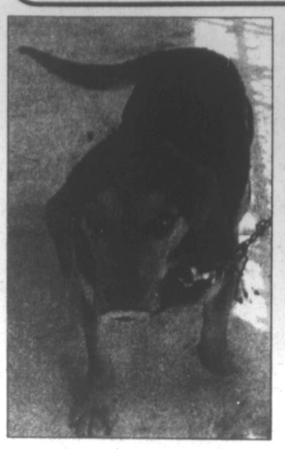
After failing field sobriety tests, Hickey was charged with driving while impaired (DWI) and driving under the influence (DUI).

A Mtn. Lake Park man was arrested for drunk driving after he failed to stop his vehicle at a stop sign at the intersection of Deer Park Ave. and Oakland Drive last Thursday night.

Edward Roy Bennett, 59, was arrested and charged with DUI, DWI, and failure to stop at a stop sign.

In another traffic stop for speeding, Michele Lee DeWitt, 26, Oakland, failed sobriety testing after her vehicle was stopped on Main Street in Deer Park. She was charged with DWI. She was later released.

Adorable Adoptables



THIS IS OSCAR, a male hound mix (pictured at left) who is available for adoption from the Garrett County Animal Shelter. He is short but makes up for it with his friendly loving personality. He would make a great pet though he may need some housetraining and vaccinations, according to a Garrett County Humane Society spokesperson. He also needs to be neutered. Pictured at right is a female hound who was picked up in Kitzmiller. "We hope the owner comes to reclaim her," said the spokesperson. "If not reclaimed in three days, she can be adopted by someone who will care for her and make sure she has her shots and a collar and ID tags." The male beagle and blue tick hound featured in the past issues are still patiently waiting to be adopted. "Please bring in any kittens that you may find or that show up at your house. At the shelter they will be fed and taken care of until they can be adopted," said the spokesperson. "If you give them away to strangers, there is no guarantee they will be cared for properly or spayed/neutered. Note that a female cat can have three litters of kittens a year, starting at the young age of 5 or 6 months. So, please have your pets spayed or neutered to prevent more homeless animals in our county." For more information, persons may call the animal shelter at 301-334-3553.

ure to control speed to avoid a collision, and failure to stop after a motor vehicle accident involving an attended yehicle.

Neither Frambes nor the tractor-trailer driver, Milton Arnold Bartz, 46, Plymouth, Wisc., were injured in the mishap.

NHS Crushes 'Cats, Bombed By BW, Nipped At Southern

The Northern High School varsity softball team ended its regular season this week by taking one out of three contests. The Huskies edged Westmar in a 14-13 thriller Friday, then dropped an 11-0 game to Bishop Walsh Monday before being edged by Southern 4-3 in Oakland Tuesday. (See SHS coverage for details.)

The Huskies, who recorded a 4-11 record for the regular season, open in the Class 1A West Region playoffs on Monday in a 5 p.m. game at Hancock.

Friday's high-scoring Westmar affair was a nip-and-tuck battle. The Wildcat guests opened with two runs in the top of the first, and NHS responded with six in the bottom half of the stanza. Westmar regained the lead, 8-6, after a one-run second inning and a five-run fourth before the Huskies rallied with four runs in the bottom of the fourth to go up 10-8. Northern scored once in the fourth, the 'Cats put three runs across in the top of the fifth, and NHS responded with two runs in the bottom of the stanza to take a 13-11 lead.

Westmar tied the score with two runs in the top of the seventh. That set the stage for some Northern heroics in the bottom half of the stanza as, with senior Sarah Masters on base, freshman Casey Fratz cracked a single that sent the winning run home.

NHS's 12-hit offensive output was paced by Emily Sisler, who smacked a home run and a single to drive home four runs, while winning pitcher Masters helped her own cause with three singles and an RBI. Fratz ripped a triple in addition to her game-winning single, Danielle Glotfelty ripped a double and a single for an RBI, and Kerry Harding launched a triple.

Molly Cheshire and Stephanie Broadwater had two singles and an RBI for Westmar (5-10), while losing pitcher Jesse Wilhelm hit a two-run single.

Northern fell to a powerful Bishop Walsh squad that improved to 16-4 with Monday's win over the Huskies. Spartan pitcher Amy Hartman held NHS to one hit over five complete innings, a second-inning single by Esther Schmuck.

BW scored in every inning the Spartans appeared at the plate, with three runs in the first, one in the second, two in the third, and five in fourth.

HUSKIES CATCH 'CAT IN A RUNDOWN – A good old-fashioned game of "pickle" broke out on the Northern High School softball field Friday as the Huskies nabbed a Westmar baserunner in a rundown between first and second base, captured in this three-photo series. The above shot shows NHS first baseman Casey Fratz (#24) chasing the Wildcat runner and making an underhand toss to Dani Glotfelty at second, with NHS shortstop Kerry Harding moving into position to back up Glotfelty. The second photo, below, shows Glotfelty astride the bag as the Westmar runner is caught like a deer in the headlights. As the runner did a 180, pictured at bottom, Glotfelty went on the chase and tagged her out from behind. The play concluded in laughter, as can be seen on the faces of the players – it is, after all a game at heart. Photos by John McEwen.

RAMS' BOSLEY BAGS WILDCATS – Southern High School varsity softball pitcher Julia Bosley turned up the heat Monday to fire a four-hitter in a 15-5 win over visiting Westmar. In the background is second baseman Anna Lucas. Bosley, a senior righthander, struck out eight Wildcats in her complete-game victory. Rams Lose To Alco; Beat 'Cats, Huskies; Fall To High-Flying BW

The Southern High School varsity softball team split in four outings this week to close out its regular season with a 6-9 mark. In what was a preview of an upcoming playoff match-up, the Rams lost 10-8 to Allegany on Friday before whipping Westmar 15-5 on Monday and edging Northern 4-3 on Tuesday. Yesterday SHS visited Bishop Walsh, where the host Spartans took their 13th straight with an 8-3 victory.

Southern's two-run loss to Allegany came despite some strong Ram batting performances, as senior Sarah Bittinger blasted a triple and single for two RBI, and classmate Kayla Nazelrod smacked three singles, and scored twice while sending home another run.

Winning pitcher Alco Lindsey Twigg drove in three runs with a home run and two singles for the Campers (13-7).

A Julia Bosley four-hitter keyed Southern's homefield win over Westmar Monday. The senior whiffed eight Wildcats in her six innings of complete-game work.

Westmar had opened with one run in the top of the first, but the Rams roared back with four in the bottom half of the stanza, five in the second, three in the third, and one in the fourth to jump out to an insurmountable 13-1 lead. The visitors put four runs on the board in the fifth before SHS scored twice in the sixth for the 10-run win, shortened by the 10-run mercy rule.

Brenneman and Nazelrod were again forces at the plate, as Brenneman whacked a two-run homer and a single while Nazelrod uncorked a trio of singles to send home four runs. Southern had a total of 15 hits for the day.

Erin Steele and Molly Cheshire had doubles for Westmar (5-11).

The following afternoon's Oakland showdown with the Northern Huskies was everything a cross-county battle should be.

The contest was a pitching duel between NHS's Emily Sisler and Southern's Ashley Metcalfe, as each pitcher gave up eight hits. The first run didn't come until the bottom of the second, when the Rams put one runner across the plate, and Northern didn't answer until the Huskies scored two runs in the top of the fifth. Southern went up 3-2 with two runs in the bottom half of the stanza.

Northern scored once in the top of the seventh when Kayla Kipp, who had singled and reached third on an error, scampered home on a Jayme Miller single to knot the score at 3-all.

Southern loaded the bases in the bottom half of the seventh on singles by Katie Mark, Bosley, and

Shue Twirls SHS Jayvees To Wins Over Alco, BW

Southern junior varsity softball pitcher Lauren Shue guided the Rams to wins over Allegany and Bishop Walsh this week, in respective 9-8, 10-2 victories.

Shue recorded 12 strikeouts as Southern squeaked by the Campers by one run, and helped the cause by ripping a double at the plate. Teammate Brittany Boyce also doubled, and Alyssa Dick tallied two singles.

Yesterday's convincing win over Bishop Walsh was sparked by a Shue two-hitter, and the Ram ace also whacked a triple and a double. Sarah Brenneman singled three times, Nicole Harvey and Elizabeth Ray each singled twice, and Boyce doubled.
